of Defense — House Hearing.

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Tackling the job of mobilizing the home front behind the nation's fighting forces, Banking committees of the Senate and House today began public examination of the broad powers requested by the Truman Administration to control and allocate steel, rubber and a long list of other materials.

At the Senate Committee's hearing, W. Stuart Symington of St. Louis, chairman of the National Security Resources Board which has the job of planning for production of war materials, described the Administration program as designed "to take the profiteering out of war."

He reviewed the control steps proposed by the Administration and reminded the Senators that Truman has promised to ask for "more drastic measures or price control and rationing" if these become necessary.

Panic Buying and Hoarding. He added that such authority should "not be immediately necessary provided that panic buying is avoided and hoarders are discouraged by their neighbors and suppliers."

When Senator Tobey (Rep., New Hampshire), remarked that "Ration books are printed and ready," Symington replied: "I don't know. That's news to me."

Symington said there is a "general abundance of consumer goods in this country."

The Administration's five-point controls bill does not involve retail price controls at the civilian level, or controls over manpower, but Symington told Senators these things are under consideration and may be asked for later if needed.

He noted that "prices of 28 basic commodities have risen 10 per cent since the invasion of South Korea" and added:

"The controls provided in this bill are essential to reduce these inflationary pressures."

Use of Existing Bureaus. Symington said Truman hopes to avoid setting up a series of new special agencies to carry on the war effort. That was done in both World Wars I and II. This time, he said, existing government agencies and departments will be expected to carry the load.

Symington also said there would be an effort this time to avoid the "piecemeal basis" of emergency measures used in World War II.

"Manpower shortage in this emergency will be more pressing than ever before," he said.

"There will be military demands on the men and women working in the factories, on the farms, and in such fields as transportation. Also, however, there is a great new additional manpower requirement which for the first time has become very real and practical to the security of the United States—this air-atomic civil defense."

Definition of Powers. Senator John W. Bricker (Rep., Ohio), asked whether the bill would give the President power to take over some of the "facilities" he noted that the bill would give the President power to take over "facilities" needed for the national defense.

NSRB General Counsel Charles H. Kendall said that "facilities" never had been used to describe anything.

MAYOR, 8 OTHER LEADERS
JOIN IN PLEA FOR CHARTER

City Now 'Good Example of Bad Governmental Structure,' Father Reinert Says.

Compelling reasons why St. Louisans should vote for the proposed new city charter on Aug. 1 were advanced last night by Mayor Joseph M. Darst and eight other prominent citizens during a half-hour broadcast over station KMOX.

Mayor Darst was joined by two former mayors of the city, Aloys P. Kaufmann, a Republican, and Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann, a Democrat, in a plea for a more efficient, solvent and progressive city government which they said, the charter would make possible.

Father Reinert's Views. That the present city government is sharply lacking in these qualities was pointed out by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S. J., president of St. Louis University. Father Reinert told the radio audience his school's political science department had singled out St. Louis "as a good example of bad governmental structure, a system which has not kept pace—a system which groups the various functions of city government into illogical, unrelated divisions."

Adoption of the new charter would not only correct these faults and shortcomings, he said, but also would serve as an inspiration to young citizens to enter "the important work of political service."

Mayor Darst noted the city had experienced financial deficits in 24 of the last 31 years.

Deficits 'Bad Business.' "Deficits have become the rule rather than the exception," he said. "This is bad business. The new charter not only forbids deficit financing, but also provides for modern financial practices to avoid this unhealthy condition."

Toussaint on the "home rule" provisions of the instrument, the Mayor said: "This means that your locally elected officials would have the broadest authority possible to cope with purely local conditions. No longer would we be utterly dependent upon a rural-dominated State Legislature, which is unfamiliar with and unsympathetic toward the problems of St. Louis, for permission to do those things which are necessary for the well being of our city and its people."

He also praised those provisions which would centralize responsibility and authority in the Mayor's office.

CIO ORGANIZING
WAR ON HOARDING
AND PROFITEERING
IN CITY, COUNTYAsks AFL, Others to Urge a Mayor's Committee—Plans to Educate Members Against Scare-Buying Boom.

The St. Louis CIO Industrial Union Council is organizing a campaign to combat hoarding, profiteering and the retail buying boom induced by fear among consumers of wartime shortages. Oscar A. Ehrhardt, executive secretary of the council, told the Post-Dispatch today.

CIO leaders, Ehrhardt said, have requested consumer, church and American Federation of Labor officers to join with them in urging Mayor Joseph M. Darst to appoint a large and representative citizens committee to head off what he termed an "unhealthy trend."

Unions affiliated with the council will be instructed to carry on educational campaigns against "scare buying" among their 65,000 members in the city and St. Louis county.

AFL Study Promised. Louis J. Renschen, president of the AFL Central Trades and Labor Union, said the AFL "realizes the importance of the problem we are facing" and that the problem will be taken up at the group's next meeting Aug. 1. He said he could make no commitment to the CIO plan until he found out more about it.

The buying boom, price increases and hoarding were discussed by the executive board of the CIO Council Wednesday. Ehrhardt said, and invitations to other groups to join in the fight against them went out later.

"Our big job is to point out the fallacy of scare buying," Ehrhardt said. "We think, too, that the Mayor should appoint a committee to look into the whole situation and point the finger at persons taking advantage of the war situation. When the people are getting gouged it becomes the Mayor's business."

Don't Favor Controls. "We're not particularly in favor of price controls at this time. We should be sane enough to keep things on a sensible level. But in less than a month some people are behaving like they would if we were in the middle of a major war. We think that inventories are high enough to take care of buyers' needs and there is no reason why people should hoard goods like they would if we were in the middle of a major war. We think that inventories are high enough to take care of buyers' needs and there is no reason why people should hoard goods like they would if we were in the middle of a major war."

Retail buying in the St. Louis area has picked up briskly in the last week, with appliances heading the list, followed by domestic goods, tires and automobiles.

Post-Dispatch survey showed. Buying pressure also is being felt in the real estate and wholesale dry goods markets. Retailers said supplies are ample in department stores and other big buying centers. Retail coal dealers reported today they had noticed a "slight increase" in orders in the last few days but they attributed the rise to drawing nearer. They said they anticipated no coal shortage because of the Korean war unless large numbers of coal cars are requisitioned by the Government, thereby cutting deliveries. They said they did not regard this as a possibility in the foreseeable future.

The Laclede Gas Co. reported a recent rise in the number of applications for gas heating equipment in homes, but added that applications were running close to estimates made long before the Korean war started.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24 (AP)—The CIO Transport Workers' Union announced yesterday it will establish picket lines in Philadelphia this week—not to win a strike but to protest against hoarding and profiteering of food and other commodities.

Andrew J. Kaelin, president of Local 234, said the pickets will be selected from the 30,000 members of the 10,000-member union who are veterans of both World Wars.

He said the picket lines will be thrown around retail stores which he said are creating artificial shortages by panic buying.

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)—After a survey showing excessive buying of some food items, Edward Hausman, officer of a retail grocer association, yesterday gave this warning to 1500 members:

"If you permit this buying in quantities for hoarding purposes, you will be the loser in the long run, because the customer will hate you later on."

TWO RED KOREAN CAPTIVES GRIPE ABOUT LOW PAY

AN ADVANCED COMMAND POST IN KOREA, July 24 (AP)—South Korean troops today captured two barefoot North Korean soldiers in filthy mud-colored uniforms. One captive is 19 years old, the other 31. This is what the Reds said:

They were foraging for food. The North Korean army is living off the country—but not well. American air strikes have undercut northern morale—except for the Korean Labor party (Communist) members who still are riding a high emotional jag.

The soldiers' big gripe: The pay is 15 won monthly (almost one cent).

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C., July 24 (AP)—An Air Force transport plunged into a swamp near here yesterday and exploded in a blazing funeral pyre for 34 service men.

The dead included 30 members of the Tennessee Air National Guard, en route to Nashville from war games in this area. Four Air Reserve crewmen were on the plane.

Minutes after the C-46 climbed from the municipal airport it plunged into the pine-spotted muckland. The service men were still within sight of the airport until just before the ship crashed.

Towering, gasoline-fed flames held back would-be rescuers for hours. Helpless, they watched the cremation. When the flames died, white-jacketed Army medical corpsmen began removing the bodies. Late last night, they had recovered 15. The others were buried in charred wreckage.

Bits Flung 100 Yards. Bits of the big transport were flung in a 100-yard circle. The wings were still further away. Some said the plane seemed to explode in mid-air. But a pilot who flew over the swampland said the ship didn't blow up until it struck.

At Nashville Sunday dinners were interrupted by a terse broadcast that a plane-load of home-bound Guardsmen had crashed and they were on their way to the airport.

They were three hours—some weeping, others white-faced and silent.

Mrs. Mary M. Brown, a widow from suburban Antioch, sat outside the adjutant general's office with two sons. They were called into the general's office and told that Cpl. Emmett C. Brown, the youngest son, was aboard the crashed plane.

Cpl. Brown, 19, finished high school this year. There were 29 other similar messages.

Two Parachutists Reported. At the scene of the crash an unidentified woman said she saw two men parachute from the plane, but she said they dropped into the blazing wreckage. That report couldn't be verified.

All Guardsmen who perished were members of the 18th Air Service Group and all were from Nashville or nearby communities. Half of them were in their teens.

The Tennessee adjutant general's office released the names of 29 of the 30 Guardsmen. One name was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The victims included: Ollie H. Willis Jr., Walter Richard Jones, Raphael A. Gregory, Bernard W. Johnson, Emmett C. Brown, Richard M. Oilphant, Raymond T. Kimbro, James L. Schaub, James R. Garrett, Billy G. Shearon, Robert G. Dixon, James E. Lynch, Joseph E. Worralls, Thomas A. Cole, James A. Vick, Walter W. Malone, Kenneth G. Eller, James E. Wright, Oscar T. Thiberry, John E. Eubanks Jr., Robert M. Thomas, Douglas C. Ryan, William G. Swafford Jr., Harold G. McDonald, Jerry W. Gabwell, Harrison W. Foster Jr., Warren H. Laubheimer, Donald E. Wolf and John T. Gage.

Air officials at Miami said the crew members included Pilot First Lt. Alexander M. Smart and Co-pilot Capt. Wade A. Carpenter, both of West Palm Beach, Fla.

YANK WHO HANGED NAZI CRIMINALS IS DEAD, FAMILY HEARS

WICHITA, Kan., July 24 (AP)—Master Sgt. John C. Woods, the United States Army non-com who hanged Nazi war criminals at Nuremberg in October 1946, is dead, an uncle said today.

He said Woods still was in the Army but the family did not know if he was killed in Korean combat.

Rube E. Woods, Sedgewick county court house custodian and an uncle of Woods, told reporters word of the death reached him in a telegram from the sergeant's brother-in-law, Ennis Chilcott of Boise, Idaho.

The sergeant's wife, Hazel Woods, at Boise said she had no information other than that her husband had been killed, and his body would be sent to Honolulu.

Gen. Dean Escaped From Taejon,

When Last Seen.

By WILLIAM B. MOORE
AN ADVANCED AMERICAN COMMAND POST IN KOREA, July 24 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, commander of the Twenty-fourth Division, escaped from burning Taejon Thursday night after personally leading a bitter street-by-street fight against tank-led North Korean forces.

But the General stayed behind in the mountains—now enemy territory—to round up American stragglers. When last reported early Friday morning, Dean had not been wounded, although others in his party were hit in a running fight out of Taejon.

The account came from an aide, Lt. J. Arthur Clarke of Boone, Ia. Clarke led 12 men from Dean's party into American lines at noon Sunday.

"Earlier, the Army had listed the 50-year-old Dean as missing in action. A report to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters by Col. Jimmie Kim, Dean's interpreter, said Gen. Dean had been wounded. Kim, hit by a machine-gun bullet in the flight from Taejon, dropped out because he could not keep up with the party. He later made his way to safety."

Clarke himself was wounded in the shoulder. He related this story of the Taejon fighting and flight.

Dean, 6-foot 2-inch native of Carlyle, Ill., was in the thick of the battle. He directed bazooka teams firing the new, king-size rocket against Red tanks and lugged ammunition for buck privates.

By nightfall, the Korean Reds were everywhere. Dean gathered a small group in jeeps and trucks and they roared through the burning city.

They made a wrong turn, however, and ran into a Communist road block. Machine-gun fire sprayed the convoy. The convoy doubled back, ran into other North Koreans.

The party abandoned their vehicles and scurried across rice paddies toward the hills. They eluded the Reds and paused on a mountainside to rest.

Dean said, "You can wait for me," and trudged down the mountainside toward a river, apparently to round up other stragglers.

The party waited two hours, then left.

Earlier Dean had expressed his concern in Taejon. "I want all of you boys to get out," he told Pvt. Alfred Vessels of Stanton, Tex.

As for Dean, associates earlier had expressed their confidence in his resourcefulness.

"The General can take care of himself."

Reds Force Old Korean to Stooze By Threatening to Kill Grandson

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, July 24 (UP)—Refugees from Communist-held Seoul said today that one of the city's most respected citizens had agreed to make a radio speech prepared by the Communist conquerors after they threatened to kill his grandson.

He was identified as aged Oh Se Chang, one of the 33 signers of Korea's "Declaration of Independence" in 1919 who also spent years in Japanese jails.

The refugees said the "peoples army" called Oh out to make the speech. "I am old enough to die," Oh said in refusing.

When informed that the Communists would kill his family if he didn't make the speech, Oh said quietly:

"Go ahead."

His family was brought out and lined up before Oh.

"We will start with him," a Communist officer said, indicating the youngest grandson, a 7-year-old.

The old man then said wearily: "All right, I'll read it."

TOKYO, Tuesday, July 25 (UP)

American troops have beaten off repeated attempts to break the center of their line southeast of Taejon. Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today.

They were fighting desperately to save the strategic rail center of Yongdok, 23 miles southeast of Taejon. The Communists threw heavy forces, led by armored formations, into two drives northeast and southwest of Yongdok. Red artillery shells fell into Yongdok yesterday, and Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commander of the First Cavalry Division, said: "The situation is very serious."

Old Effort Apparently Fails. But a communique from MacArthur's headquarters early today indicated the center of the American line had held firm. It added that the Communist attempts to encircle the Americans apparently had failed. There was no indication that the Communists would abandon their attempt to break the center of the line.

On the extreme flanks of the American-South Korean battle line the news was bad. MacArthur's communique said a South Korean division had lost the city of Yongju, near the Korean east coast. He said the South Koreans fell back two miles from the city to "more tenable positions."

South Korean officials reported Yongdok had been recaptured by the North Koreans. South Koreans and Americans took Yongdok last week after it had been shelled by naval guns. Gen. MacArthur said "Yongdok remains in enemy hands."

On the other flank, the North Koreans swept far southward along the west coast, captured Kwangju, and were reported by MacArthur to be in the vicinity of Mokpo, some 20 miles farther south, on the southwestern tip of the peninsula. The Communist radio claimed the capture of Mokpo, a South Korean naval base, and Namwon. Red forces in that area were under attack by American fighter planes.

Reds Opposed by Police. The communique indicated MacArthur did not consider the flanking movement along the west coast as too important. It said the Communists were opposed there only by units of the South Korean national police.

"Measures which are being taken to contain or eliminate these roving bands cannot be disclosed at this time," the communique said.

In Washington, the Navy said American warships have moved into the Yellow Sea and are now patrolling the Korean west coast. Allied naval activity previously had been limited to the east coast.

Ten to 20 North Korean tanks were reported destroyed in the new fighting on the central front.

As the northerners mounted their attacks, the Communists and bombers roared out at dawn in support of hard-pressed American ground troops.

B-29 Superforts struck in clear weather at Communist transport lines. They dropped tons of bombs on roads, bridges and roads leading to the Taejon front.

It was announced that the Far East Air Forces have moved their advance base to Korea from Japan.

COOL ENOUGH?
16 YEARS AGO IT
WAS 110 JULY 24

With St. Louis enjoying summer resort weather for the past several days, the Weather Bureau pointed out that 16 years ago today the temperature rose to 110.2 degrees, the highest ever recorded by the bureau here.

Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren forecast the high today to be about 85. On July 24, 1934, the minimum was 87.2 degrees compared with a low this morning of 68, Wahlgren said. The average temperature for 1934 was 83.3 compared with a mean so far this year of 76.3, he said.

While St. Louis is enjoying a cool summer so far, it is not particularly unusual, Wahlgren said. The summer in 1947 was cooler than this has been so far and in 1915 the average temperature for the entire summer was 72.9, he said.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE PLANS LIKELY TO BE READY ABOUT SEPT. 1

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—W. Stuart Symington said today that federal plans for civilian defense against possible atomic bomb attacks would be ready about Sept. 1 and would be sent to governors of the states.

"We've made a lot of progress on these plans," he told the Senate Banking Committee in reply to a question by Senator Sparkman (Dem., Alabama).

Symington, a St. Louisan, is chairman of the National Security Resources Board which has the duty of planning for civilian defense. He said that the civil defense plans must be developed largely by local areas and not just come down from Washington.

"It will be largely in the grass roots," Symington said, adding that one of the biggest problems would be providing doctors and nurses who would be needed in any bombed area.

CAT PACES RESCUER UP TREE TILL BOTH ARE 55 FEET HIGH

Tree-climbing cats have nothing on Humane Society Officer Sam Rosenblum, who yesterday rescued a recalcitrant one from limbs about 55 feet high in a tree outside the home of Mrs. Henderson Taylor, 3850 Page boulevard.

Answering a call from Mrs. Taylor, Rosenblum found the cat on a perch about 35 feet up and proceeded after it with the aid of a fire department ladder.

Rosenblum approached the cat climbed higher until the length of the ladder was used and both the cat and Rosenblum were ascending the tree limb by limb.

Finally the cat stopped and Rosenblum coaxed it to a point where he could grab it. After making the climb halfway down with one hand holding the cat, Rosenblum dropped his quarry into a net fireman had made from a large piece of muslin.

Truman Grimmer and Trimmer, But Undismayed by Month of War

WASHINGTON, July 24 (INS)

A grim and determined but untiring and undismayed President Truman has emerged from the first month of the Far Eastern crisis.

Harry S. Truman's face is set in serious lines, but in his lighter moments his friendly smile returns momentarily and he still is able to walk through the White House lobby, stop for a moment's chat with a few reporters, and remark:

"I've got to go over to Blair House and comb my hair."

He is thinner, but likes it that way. He is down five or six pounds from a solid 182 pounds.

Truman has worked as much as 18 hours a day in formulating some of the toughest decisions that have faced a president since Lincoln's day. His nights have meant more long hours of work. However, his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, reports the President has come through his month's ordeal in tiptop condition.

The President and his daughter, Margaret, attended services yesterday at the First Baptist Church and heard the Rev. Edward H. Pruden tell the congregation that the American people are not blameless in the Korean crisis.

The Rev. Mr. Pruden said Communists fail to recognize "two basic spiritual truths"—the sovereignty of God and the brotherhood of man.

"However," he continued, "if we are to be perfectly honest we must admit these truths do not find complete expression in us."

"Wars do not start in foreign offices but in the hearts of individuals."

TAFT SAYS WAR BILL WOULD GIVE TRUMAN DICTATOR GRIP ON INDUSTRY

Senator Asserts Such Extreme Controls Are Unnecessary—Urges Pay-as-You-Go Taxes for Defense.

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Senator Taft (Rep., Ohio), said today the economic controls asked for by the Administration would give the President "arbitrary and dictatorial powers over industry."

Taft maintained that such a program is unnecessary for a "semi-war" economy.

In a Senate speech the G.O.P. policy committee chairman urged instead a three-point program of controls on private credit, a reduction of domestic Government spending and an immediate tax increase to put military expenditures on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Taft said he didn't think the people realize "how extreme these controls are" which are proposed by the President. He added:

"Long-Desired Powers." "There is at least a suspicion that the present crisis is being used to secure powers long desired but unrelated to present necessities."

In a broadcast yesterday, Taft took the position that the nation must remain partly mobilized for the next 10 to 15 years and should boost taxes now.

Taft called for new taxes on everybody immediately to meet what he estimated may be between 10 and 20 billion dollars added annual defense costs. The new taxes will drain off excess buying power, Taft said.

Taft saw "a new normal" condition in which about 20 per cent of our national production will be devoted to sustaining partial mobilization. This, he said, is something "which we must accept as permanent, for we don't know when the Russians are going to strike."

Defense Figures. "An additional 10 to 15 billion dollars a year over the present level of 13 billion for military plus perhaps some additions for foreign aid, will take the budget up from around 40 billion a year to about 55 billion and perhaps to 60 billion."

"And since this is not a temporary condition but one that may continue indefinitely, we should tax the people for the whole cost."

Taft said all-out mobilization probably would cost 150 billion a year and this would be too much "to try to pay for all at once."

Tell the People. Truman should not wait until after the election to tell the people what they face, Taft said, and added:

"He proposes all the industrial controls but leaves out all the things that might be unpopular before the election—consumer price controls, rationing and taxes."

"He's trying to keep the weight of this thing off the people until after the election. I think the people are ready to accept it. . . . I agree with the President on credit controls, controls over strategic materials, but the President is asking controls so sweeping that he could tell every farmer how to run his farm, and regulate every part of our economic life. This is not necessary at this time."

Priorities on Steel. Taft agreed with Senator Sparkman (Dem., Ala.), another participant in the broadcast, that the tax boosts should include an excess profits levy to take back the windfalls of profiteers and discourage price gouging. Both urged quick priorities on steel and other strategic materials.

Taft's call for quick and big tax increases backed up a similar demand voiced by Senator O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyo.), chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee which has taken the same position.

"No one is wise enough to predict when the Communist attack in Korea may be overcome," O'Mahoney said in a statement.

"No one knows where Communist pressure will next assert itself. . . . but everyone knows that unless the home front is speedily organized to provide economic preparedness for a struggle that may last years, the Communists will succeed."

O'Mahoney, who has talked of a 10 per cent additional tax on both individuals and corporations, also urged a quick excess profits tax.

It carried four Air Reserve crewmen.

Yanks Too Green to Mine Roads, Ill Trained; Communications Bad

Keyes Beech Says This Report May Give Aid and Comfort to Enemy, but Folks Back Home Should Know.

By KEYES BEECH
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio Copyright, 1950.

TOKYO, July 24—Ten days ago in the mist-shrouded dawn I was helping back to the Korean war front when a sentry stopped me.

"My orders are that nobody goes any farther," said the sentry. "But we're correspondents," I protested.

"Okay," he waved us on. We drove for perhaps one mile to the deserted village of Chonui where a blasted bridge stopped us. We got out and looked around. Half a dozen mines were planted like naked turnips on each side of the bridge. We got back into the jeep and backed gingerly out.

Back at the battalion command post I mentioned to the battalion commander that we had driven to Chonui.

"The hell you say!" he exclaimed. "That road is mined."

The point is that I shouldn't be here to write the story. I should have been blown up. More important, enemy tanks that came down that road a couple of hours later should have been blown up.

This is just one illustration of how unprepared we were for the Korean war. American soldiers who bore the brunt of the North Korean attack didn't know how to lay mines.

They don't know how to park their vehicles properly or how to space their vehicles in convoy. On more than one occasion I've driven at least three-quarters of a mile past American trucks strung out bumper to bumper. One enemy plane could have blown the whole convoy to pieces.

The Stanner Air Force prides itself on communications, yet our communications in Korea have been fantastically inadequate.

Trapped American forces in Taejon asked the regiment in the rear to cover their retreat. The regiment never received the message.

I watched a battalion, with two thin companies at stake, sweat out a two-hour period when everything depended on communications with the regimental commander.

Speaking of Taejon, nobody has explained why, when it was obvious the city was about to fall, we failed to get out our heavy equipment, guns and ammunition.

Back at Twenty-fourth Division headquarters I asked a colonel why.

"I cannot answer that," he said. "We left more than half a dozen 155-mm. guns in Taejon, not to mention more than one 105 plus 10 carloads of ammunition."

It may be said with some truth that a dispatch like this gives aid and comfort to the enemy. Certainly it won't give aid and comfort to folks back home. But this is not the time for Americans to be comfortable. Our one consolation should be that we discovered our inadequacies while we were up against a second-class enemy.

TRUMAN ORDERS FBI TO TIGHTEN ANTI-SPY DRIVE

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—President Truman today ordered the Federal Bureau of Investigation to tighten its enforcement program against espionage, sabotage and subversive activities.

He called on citizens to give the FBI all possible help.

Truman said in a statement he had asked all law officers, both federal and state, to report information relating to espionage, sabotage and subversive activities to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in this manner," he added.

Any information which is picked up should be reported promptly to the nearest FBI field representative, the President said.

KOREAN REDS SAID TO FORCE SCHOOL CHILDREN TO FIGHT

EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA, July 24 (AP)—The North Korean Communist army was reported today to be forcing 13-year-old school children into combat against American and South Korean troops.

This report came from Col. Lee Sun Keun of the South Korean army, who formerly was dean of the Seoul University of School. It was confirmed by Capt. Kenneth R. Cornell of Brewster, N.Y., an adviser to the Republic of Korea.

Col. Lee said captured North Korean troops and refugees from the Communist-held areas have reported the use of school children—both boys and girls—in the fighting zones.

WEST GERMANS SEIZE FOUR AS URANIUM SMUGGLERS

HELMSTEDT, Germany, July 24 (AP)—German police reported today that three men and a woman have been arrested in Helmstedt for attempting to smuggle about two pounds of uranium into the Russian zone.

Police said the four arrived at this Russian border checkpoint by automobile on Friday and that they intended to hand over the uranium in Helmstedt to accomplices who had crossed the border from the Russian zone.

11,500 U.S. AIR FORCE, NAVY MEN IN BRITAIN NOW, ATTLEE DISCLOSES

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—The United States now has 11,500 members of its Navy and Air Force stationed in Britain.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee furnished the figure in the House of Commons today in reply to a question by Laborite S. O. Davies.

Attlee said it includes 10,000 Air Force men in three B-29 groups with a total of about 180 aircraft. The Navy has 1500 men stationed here, including those attached to the headquarters of the Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean Fleet.

SUBMARINES SEEN TWICE OFF CANADA; MAY BE RUSSIAN

OTTAWA, July 24 (AP)—A Navy spokesman said today reports from fishermen indicate that at least one and perhaps two unidentified submarines—possibly Russian—are operating outside the three-mile limit on Canada's East Coast.

The spokesman said Canada's Defense Department has been investigating such reports for two weeks. The reports say the submarines bear no distinctive markings.

The first sighting, the spokesman said, came about three weeks ago. The latest was reported Saturday by Newfoundland fishermen off the Grand Banks.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 24 (UP)—E. K. Thompson, chief engineer of the freighter W. R. Arbutus, said today the ship sighted two unidentified submarines on a trip from Jacksonville, Fla., to Bermuda.

He said the first was seen Tuesday 250 miles east of Jacksonville, the second Friday night 250 miles west of Bermuda.

GERMAN REDS SAID TO FORM PARTY OPPOSING KREMLIN

DUESSELDORF, Germany, July 24 (AP)—German Communists are reported forming an independent Communist party here.

Joseph Schappe, former party leader ousted as a Titoist divergent, said more than 100 leaders expelled by the German party met yesterday to get the new group going. Schappe said he expected "tens of thousands" of Communists to join them.

The new party, Schappe said, still regarded the Soviet Union as the "ideal and as the fatherland of the working class." But Schappe said his group opposed the agreement of the Communist East German Government to cede to Poland all territory east of the Oder and Neisse rivers. He also denounced Russia's recent announcement that all but 13,458 German prisoners of war had been repatriated.

FIRST CAVALRY'S GEN. GAY HAS PATTON'S SWAGGER STICK

WITH THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION, KOREA, July 24 (UP)—Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding general of the First Cavalry Division, carries a military swagger stick that once belonged to the late Gen. George Patton.

Gen. Patton, who carried the stick throughout World War II, presented it to Gen. Gay, who once was Patton's chief of staff.

MARINE CORPS STRENGTH TO BE BOOSTED 60 PCT.

Present 75,000 Men to Be Increased by 57,000, Adm. Sherman Is Quoted as Saying.

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Congressional sources said today an immediate 60 per cent increase is planned in the fighting strength of the Marine Corps.

They also said the Navy is preparing an additional two—and possibly three—aircraft carriers for duty as quickly as possible.

House members, whose names cannot be used, told of these Navy mobilization plans after a closed-door session of the House Armed Services Committee with Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations.

Adm. Sherman was reported to have told the committee that an increase of about 57,000 men would be made in the fighting strength of the Marines. Of June 30, the Marines were reported to have approximately 75,000 men.

Boost in Air Strength. Part of the Marines' added strength would be in the aviation squadrons, which would be increased from the present 12 to 18 squadrons.

The members said the Navy plans to complete modernization of one Essex-class 27,000-ton carrier, complete de-mothballing of a second in 90 days, and possibly put a third carrier in commission.

Plans also call for a number of cruisers and destroyers to be put back in battle readiness.

The House group heard Adm. Sherman as part of a general inquiry into the state of American preparedness. He will be followed by Air Force leaders Wednesday and by army heads on Friday.

The big question for all of them: What does the country have to show for the 48 billions appropriated for the armed services in the last four years?

While Senate and House leaders promised speedy action on two emergency bills designed to expand fighting forces for the battle in Korea or any other trouble spot.

The Senate already has passed a bill that would allow the President to extend the service of enlisted persons in the Army, Air Force, Navy or Marines for a year beyond their voluntary terms.

Awaiting Senate action is a bill that would remove peacetime limits on the manpower of the armed services.

House leaders expected to call up both measures Tuesday for quick passage.

Check on Foreign Ships. The Marine Corps said yesterday it was calling up certain of its aviation squadrons from the organized reserves. The personnel of these squadrons apparently will be assigned to fill out under-strength regular outfits.

The Marine Corps is limited to its call-up of women reserves to those who are already trained. Last week it announced it was calling all women reservists to active duty. But a headquarters statement said today the call applies only to members of reserve units with at least 90 days of prior active duty or who have attended at least 36 weekly drills or 30 drills plus 10 days duty.

The Air Force promised an early call to some of its reserve units and some units of the Air National Guard. It already has begun calling individual reservists.

Army National Guard units began receiving their marching orders after being alerted for federal service last Friday. The units affected came from all over the nation—from Maine's 703d Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion and 354th Signal Radar Maintenance Unit, California's 161st Ordnance Depot Company.

RED CHINA SHIPS REPORTED ON WAY TO QUEMOY ISLAND

Junks Said to Be Approaching Under Cover of Gunfire—Invasion Attempt Feared.

By SPENCER MOOSA
TAIPEI, Formosa, July 24 (AP)—A defense ministry spokesman said today a number of junks were approaching Quemoy Island under cover of a Chinese Communist artillery barrage.

It may be the long expected invasion attempt against the Nationalist-held island used as a blockade base against the Reds.

The spokesman said Nationalist forces on Quemoy, just off the mainland port of Amoy and 100 miles across the water from Formosa, were adequate to meet the expected Red attack. He said they would be supported by Nationalist air and naval units.

Communist artillery began bombarding the town of Guanau, on Quemoy's northeast coast, Sunday.

Defense Is Likely. The spokesman said President Truman's July 27 request to halt aid and sea operations against the Red mainland did not preclude the defense of Nationalist positions.

Asked whether there was effective co-operation between Nationalists and the United States Seventh Fleet, assigned to safeguard Formosa from Red invasion, the spokesman replied: "That's a military secret."

In Washington, the State Department indicated the United States won't interfere if the Communists try to invade Quemoy. An official said President Truman's bar on fighting between Nationalists and China Communists applies to Formosa and the nearby Pescadore Islands.

The spokesman expressed doubt that a reported large concentration of Communist craft in the vicinity of Quemoy would pass the island for a direct attack on Formosa.

"It looks as if Quemoy is going to be their target," he said.

Danger of Formosa Attack. Military sources said the danger of an attack on Formosa was greater now than it was two months ago.

Although the Nationalists have halted air and sea operations against the China mainland, air reconnaissance continued.

Four Communist armies have been moved to coastal regions in the provinces of Chekiang and Fukien, presumably for an invasion of Formosa, the sources said. Leader of these troops was identified as Gen. Chen Yi, famed Red commander.

Since the Nationalists have stopped their operations, the informants added, the Reds have utilized the lull to develop and expand air bases and occupy islands off the coast.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, meanwhile, announced a sweeping change in his political party. The central executive and central advisory committees were dissolved. A high official said the action would end the power of the "CC clique," long known for its intrigues. It is headed by the brothers Chen Li Fu and Chen Kuo Fu.

This official said the action also eliminates influence of T. V. Soong, brother of Mme. Chiang, and her brother-in-law, H. H. Kung, both of whom are in New York.

Chiang will replace the two dissolved committees with a central reform committee headed by himself and a central advisory committee.

BRITISH MUNITIONS BLASTS SABOTAGE, SAYS ATTLEE
LONDON, July 24 (UP)—Saboteurs set off the blasts which destroyed eight naval ammunition barges in Portsmouth harbor two weeks ago, Prime Minister Clement Attlee told the House of Commons today.

Attlee said a board of inquiry concluded definitely that the fire which set off the series of blasts was caused "maliciously."

He said the means used to detonate the ammunition "were based on considerable scientific knowledge and were carefully calculated for their effect."

The eastern zone police army is now represented for the first time in party leadership.

U.S. ASKS FOR MEETING OF SECURITY COUNCIL

Seeks Session Tomorrow for First Report of MacArthur to U.N. on Korea.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., July 24 (AP)—The United States today requested a meeting of the Security Council tomorrow to hear the first report of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the United Nations on the Korean situation.

Jacob Malik, Russian delegate, is scheduled to preside over the council next month, but he is expected to turn down the post.

It is Russia's turn under the alphabetical rotation system.

However, with the Soviet boycott expected to continue, the council must either select a presiding officer for the month, or drop Russia from the rotation list for the time being and seat Sir Gladwyn Jebb, of Britain, who is next in line.

A way to prevent a clash between Chinese Communists and American forces over Formosa also may be sought at the meeting.

Thailand's formal offer to send 4000 troops to Korea was received by the U. N. today. It was in response to Secretary General Trygve Lie's appeal for contributions of effective aid to the U. N. effort to halt the North Korean invasion.

In Washington, Ambassador G. P. Jost told Secretary of State Dean Acheson that South Africa was giving "serious consideration" to means of helping in the Korean war.

Offer of Philippine Scout Division for Korea Predicted.
MANILA, July 24 (AP)—Informed sources said today the Philippine Government will offer to recruit a full division of former Philippine scouts for service in Korea.

One source said the expense of equipping such a force would have to be borne by the United Nations, however.

COUNTY DEFICIT OF LESS THAN $300,000 PREDICTED

Despite the expense of four elections and increased demand for services, the deficit in the general fund of St. Louis County should be less than $300,000 at the end of this year, County Auditor Clarence H. Hackmann told the County Court today.

Replying to statements by certain Democratic candidates for public office reflecting on the county's solvency, Hackmann said the first deficit in recent years occurred in 1948, due largely to loss of revenue in 1947 caused by a change in the tax and revenue structure set-up in the new Missouri Constitution.

The deficit was reduced to $224,906 at the end of 1949, Hackmann said. He based his hope the deficit would not go above $300,000 on an increase in assessed valuation, better collection procedures now in force and firmer budgeting of expenses. Elections this year will cost $160,000, he said, and will offset to some extent the expected savings.

MARINE RESERVE INFANTRY UNIT HERE IS CALLED TO ACTIVE DUTY

Third Battalion of 35 Officers, 716 Enlisted Personnel, Gets Order—First St. Louisans Given Draft Tests.

The Third Infantry Battalion, Marine Corps Reserve, received orders today to mobilize Saturday for extended active duty. The battalion, of 35 officers and 716 enlisted men and women, was the largest of the three St. Louis units to be called so far.

Yesterday Marine Air Reserve Squadron 221, stationed at Lambert-St. Louis Field, received extended active duty orders. First unit to be called was one of the 12 Naval Air Reserve squadrons at Lambert, which got its orders last Wednesday.

Meanwhile, examination of the first St. Louisans selected for possible military service under the draft, to fill the city's quota of 110 men, began today at the Old Federal Building, Eighth and Olive streets.

50 Men Report. Fifty men called by Selective Service Board 103, whose district covers the First, Twentieth and Twenty-seventh wards, reported shortly after 8 a.m. and were given the standard medical and mental test, to be followed by physical examinations.

Sixty-five men classified as 1-A had been ordered to report, as in the case of all nine of the city's draft boards, her reporting was explained as due to the fact that notices failed to reach some and that others had reported change of status to their draft board too late to permit other men to be called.

Examination of men for the draft will continue until the city's quota and that of the county, 45, are filled, selective service officials said. The state-wide quota is 482 men, part of the 20,000 for the nation in the call by the Government early this month.

Inductions in September. Of the men examined today, 10 will actually be inducted and will be sent to Fort Riley, Kan., for training. Inductions will take place the week of Sept. 11 for all Missourians drafted. All men selected will go into the Army.

Tomorrow men will be examined from Board 104, whose district represents Wards Two, Three and Twenty-one. Examinations of men from other boards will follow daily in order of board numbers.

The Marine battalion, which had received alert orders last Thursday, will mobilize at its station at the foot of Ferry street, for movement to Camp Pendleton, Calif. Date of movement will be withheld under security regulations.

Instructions Tonight. Members were instructed to report at battalion headquarters at 7:30 o'clock this evening for mobilization instructions. The battalion has 31 male officers, one woman officer, 650 enlisted men and 55 enlisted women. Naval personnel attached consist of a physician, dentist and chaplain and 11 enlisted hospital corpsmen.

The marine air unit, of about 180 officers and enlisted men, was instructed to mobilize Aug. 1, for movement to the Pacific coast. The squadron, a fighter unit, returned Thursday from a two-week active duty tour at the Marine Air Station at Cherry Point, N.C., where it underwent intensive training in aerial gunnery, rocket-firing, dive-bombing and other ground support missions.

Youth Caught in Robbery. Lt. Col. M. K. Peyton, inspector-instructor of the squadron, said all members were combat veterans of World War II and that the unit, known as the Fighting Falcons, has been recognized as 100 per cent combat trained and ready for action.

Peyton, who was executive officer of Squadron 221 in World War II, said he expected the unit would remain intact rather than being broken up as fillers for regular Marine squadrons. It has been flying World War II type Corsair fighter-bombers, but it will receive more modern airplanes on the West coast, it was said.

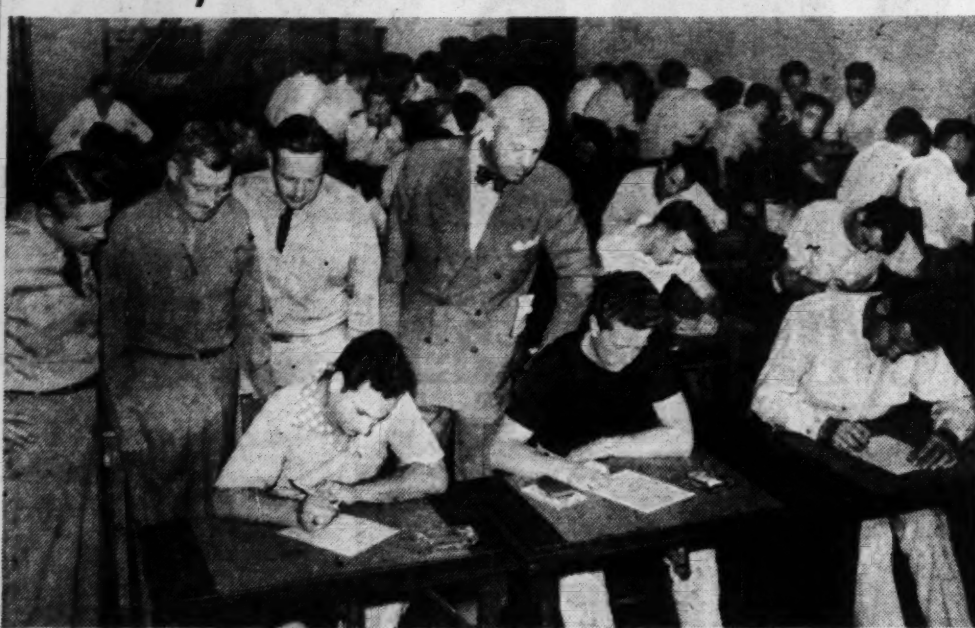

Youth Caught in Robbery. Robert Grant of Kokomo, Ind., 17 years old, was arrested by East St. Louis police early today in a filling station at Seventeenth street and Lincoln avenue and held for Indiana authorities after he admitted escaping last week from a reformatory there.

Police said Grant broke into the station. They took from him several rolls of pennies which he said he had taken from the cash register. Grant told police he had escaped last Wednesday from the boys' reformatory at Plainfield, Ind., where he was serving a term for auto theft.

Army Mental Tests for St. Louisans

Army mental examinations being given today to the first 50 St. Louisans selected for pre-induction tests under the draft act. Ten men will be chosen from this group, representing Selective Service Board 103. Observing the men are, from left, standing: MAJ. H. J. ROUTZONG, commanding the induction station here; BRIG. GEN. RICHARD G. TINDALL, chief, Missouri Military District; MAJ. EDWARD OWSEY, selective service liaison officer, and COL. R. T. FINKS, deputy state director of selective service.

BRAKEMAN RESCUES MOTHER AND BABY IN PATH OF TRAIN

ST. CHARLES, Va., July 24 (UP)—A young mother and her infant son owed their lives today to the bravery of a 60-year-old veteran brakeman of the Southern Railroad.

Jim Dowell looked down the tracks from his caboose seat on his slowly-backing train and spotted 16-month-old Jimmie Woodward.

The child was only 60 feet from the train. Conductor Hug Kestner tugged desperately at the air brakes but could not stop the train in time. It bore down on the child.

Dowell leaped from the caboose and ran along the tracks with the train only feet behind him. At the same time, the mother, Mrs. Frances Woodward, 23, saw her son and also started running toward him into the train's path.

Dowell scooped up the child with his left hand and pushed the mother to safety with his right, diving off the tracks with the same motion. The caboose missed him by inches.

"That was the prettiest little baby I ever saw," said Dowell, a Negro. "I just couldn't bear to see it die."

SHOE FIRM BOOSTS WHOLESALE PRICES 15 CENTS A PAIR. Increases averaging 15 cents a pair in the wholesale price of shoes were announced today by International Shoe Co.

Women's and children's shoes will go up about 10 cents a pair, and men's and boys' shoes will sell at about 20 cents a pair, the company announced.

The increases affect all types of shoes. Edgar E. Rand, company president, said higher costs for raw materials caused the increases. He cited a 30 per cent rise in hide and skin prices and a 75 per cent rise in the cost of crude rubber since last April.

"It is notable that a substantial part of the increases of raw material costs occurred prior to the attack on South Korea on June 25. This means we were feeling pressure on our prices even without war," Rand said.

BARTHOLOMEW TO BE PLAN COMMISSION CONSULTANT. Harland Bartholomew, who resigned July 12 as engineer of the City Plan Commission, is to be appointed as a special consultant to the group, Joseph A. McClain Jr., retiring chairman, announced today. Formal action on the appointment, to which Bartholomew has agreed, was to be taken later today.

The commission will promote William H. Colburn, now assistant engineer, to Bartholomew's old job. As engineer, Bartholomew operated on a part-time basis and was paid $4329 a year; as special consultant, he will be paid $4000 annually.

Bartholomew, nationally known city planner, has been connected with the commission since 1916. He resigned as engineer in order to devote more time to his private engineering firm.

DRIVER FINED $60 AFTER 2-MILE EAST ST. LOUIS CHASE. Carl Shelton, who gave an address in the 2000 block of Illinois avenue, Granite City, was fined $60 for traffic violations late last night, after a two-mile chase through residential East St. Louis at speeds up to 70 miles an hour.

Shelton was arrested at Seventeenth street and Lincoln avenue, where he was halted and overpowered by state and city police officers after losing control of his automobile and narrowly missing a loaded bus of the East St. Louis City Lines. He admitted he had been drinking and pleaded guilty to charges of speeding, passing a boulevard stop, reckless driving and disorderly conduct.

URGES CITY POOLS BE CLOSED DURING ELECTION PERIOD

N. A. A. C. P. Man Suggests This Action for Three Days While Police Are Not Available.

A recommendation that the city close its open-air pools at Fairgrounds and Marquette parks next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, when the police department will have large numbers of officers detailed to election duty, was made today by Henry W. Wheeler, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Wheeler expressed fear of outbreaks, particularly at Fairgrounds, if the police should remove their heavy concentration, 12 men at the park, where a series of disturbances have occurred since the city's open-air pools were opened to Negroes last Wednesday.

Harold L. Mueller, 4216 Margaretta avenue, and Alois Steffen, 3209 Dodder street, were fined $50 each by Police Judge John Leo Waechter today because of disturbances at Fairgrounds last week. Steffen's fine was stayed and he was placed on parole when he acknowledged he had been wrong.

Three persons were arrested at Fairgrounds yesterday, as a large police detail was on hand to prevent outbreaks.

Among those taken into custody were two women. A man was booked for peace disturbance when he began addressing a group near the pool.

A crowd of several hundred white persons, the largest since the pools were opened to Negroes Wednesday under a federal court order, assembled near the Fairgrounds park pool. There was no disturbance or crowd at Marquette Park, site of the city's second open-air pool.

In the four shifts at Fairgrounds, a total of 129 Negro and 12 white men and boys were swimming. Before the new regulation went into effect, the pool had several thousand swimmers on any given day.

No Negro swimmers appeared at the Marquette pool on the South Side. Eight white women and girls used the pool.

The Fairgrounds pool is closed today for cleaning. Tomorrow will be girls' day. Marquette is open today, for boys, but will be closed tomorrow for cleaning.

2 OLD MULES DOING BILT FOR BUDGET OF CITY, REFUSE TO DIE. City finances have been given a slight shot in the arm by a team of mules that refuses to die. The situation came to light today when Budget Director E. G. Schubkegel approved the request of Walther Fahr, superintendent of Meramec Hills, municipally operated school for delinquent girls at Valley Park, to transfer $400 from Account 17B to Account 14A.

Account 17B, which has been included in the Meramec Hills budget for the last several years, is for the purchase of two mules to replace the old pair now in use at the school. Account 14A is for maintenance and repairs.

"We are hoping," Fahr said in requesting the transfer, "that our ancient team will live another year." The school inherited the mules more than 20 years ago, when the city abandoned use of mules to draw garbage wagons. They are so old they had numbers rather than names, and the numbers long since have been forgotten.

TWO ST. LOUISANS AMONG WOUNDED IN KOREA FIGHTING

Pvt. Norman Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, 3708A Oregon street, was listed today as wounded in the fighting in Korea in a new casualty list issued by the Defense Department in Washington. Pfc. Harold Fenwick, 6420 Glenmore avenue, Uplands Park, also was listed.

St. Louis county, also was wounded, he has informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fenwick. The following casualties were among those announced yesterday and today:

Killed in action: Maj. Fred E. Marlowe, husband of Mrs. Yetta Marlowe of Chicago.

Wounded: James R. Zumwalt, Warrensburg, Mo.; Sgt. First Class Robert L. Baker Jr., son of Mrs. Adelia Baker of Hinch, Mo.; Cpl. Robert Van Natta Jr., son of Mrs. Flossie Van Natta of Ambory, Ill.; and Pfc. William R. Rich, son of Mrs. Emma M. Rich of Waynesville, Ill.

Missing in action: Pfc. Paul E. Hoots, son of Mrs. Eunice W. Hoots of Galesburg, Ill.; Pfc. Miletus E. Stone, son of Mrs. Eva M. Stone of Harrisburg, Ill.; Calvin J. Taylor, son of Calvin Taylor of Jonesboro, Ill.; Pvt. Benjamin P. Ferguson, son of Mrs. Laura Shoemaker of East Moline, Ill.; and Cpl. Wayne E. Simpson, son of Mrs. Callie Emily Simpson of Mena, Ark.

CHAPLAIN AIDING WOUNDED CITED FOR BRAVERY IN FIELD. WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST ST. LOUIS DIVISION, July 24 (UP)—Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding the First Cavalry Division, has recommended Capt. Donald F. Mills of the Chaplains' Corps for the Silver Star for bravery in the field.

"That chaplain personally led the litter bearers to the wounded and got them out without any regard for his personal safety," Gay said.

Some chaplains at the front, as well as Medical Corps men, are now bearing arms because of the Communist guerrilla tactics in respecting no conventions of war. It is not a matter of policy, the chaplain said; it's a matter of staying alive.

TRUMAN NOMINATES VETERAN AS BELLEVILLE POSTMASTER. Eugene H. Brauer, disabled World War II veteran employed in the Veterans' Administration in St. Louis, was nominated for postmaster at Belleville today by President Truman. Brauer was recommended for the post last month by Congressman Melvin Church, and the nomination now awaits Senate action.

Brauer was among three men named by a Civil Service committee to hold the position, which has been filled by an acting postmaster for the last two years. Brauer, who is 29 years old, married and the father of two children, lost a leg in the war.

TRAIN WRECKER SOUGHT IN FATAL CRASH ON FRISCO

Engineer Loses Life, 13 Injured in Derailment of St. Louis - Bound Carrier.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

An investigation was under way today to determine the identity of the person who opened a switch yesterday on the Frisco railroad's main line near Holland, Mo., wrecking the St. Louis-bound Memphis, killing the engineer and injuring 13 passengers and crew members. Holland is 228 miles south of St. Louis.

E. H. Wilson, chief special agent of the Frisco, said the lock of the switch, between the single-tracked main line and a freight siding, had been sawed through. The switch then was opened and a red signal light was broken. The light would have warned the engineer that it had been burning.

The six-car train hit the switch at about 50 miles an hour, the locomotive and tender moving into the siding before they hit the freight cars. The freight cars, two coaches, directly behind the baggage cars, were derailed but did not turn over. A sleeping car and dining car, two in line, were not derailed.

Engineer Killed. Engineer Ira Woods, 60 years old, of Chaffee, Mo., was pinned inside the cab. It took rescue workers about four hours to remove his body. His fireman, Fred Thurman, also of Chaffee, was thrown clear of the wreck but suffered serious burns. He was taken to Wall Hospital, Blytheville, Ark.

Twelve of the 68 passengers aboard the train suffered bruises and cuts. All the injured were riding in the two coaches. Ambulances and doctors were sent to the scene from Blytheville, about two miles south of Holland, but only one passenger was taken to the hospital, the others later continuing north.

The passenger taken to the hospital was Walter Rosenthal, a resident of Blytheville.

Lock Sawed Through. Special agents of the Frisco arrived at the scene shortly after the accident, which occurred at 5 a.m. and the wrecked train covered the lock on the switch had been sawed through. They were joined by Sheriff E. F. Claxton of Pemiscott county and a detail of Missouri highway patrolmen under C. L. Davis.

The passengers later were placed aboard the sleeping and dining cars and backed to Blytheville, from which they were transferred to busses and driven north. Service was restored on the main line about 10 a.m. The train runs between St. Louis and Memphis, Tenn.

The southbound Memphis, meantime, was rerouted around the wreck by way of Brooks Junction. Service was restored on the main line about 10 a.m. The train runs between St. Louis and Memphis, Tenn.

OFFICIAL BALLOT CITY CHARTER ELECTION

August 1, 1950
(Submitted Pursuant to Ordinance 45,391)

For the new or revised Charter YES

For the new or revised Charter NO

(To vote in favor of said new or revised Charter, strike out the word "No"; to vote against it, strike out the word "Yes.")

This is the official charter ballot which voters at the primary election a week from tomorrow will receive with the primary ballot. It is marked to show how to vote in favor of adopting the proposed new city charter. A simple majority will insure its adoption.

Mayor, 8 Other Leaders Join in Plea for Charter

office. "You, the people of St. Louis, will for the first time be in a position fully to give credit for a good job or to fix the blame if the city is not operated to your liking. No longer will there be a host of minor officials responsible to one. All will be part of one governmental team, harnessed together for greater economy, efficiency and responsibility to the voter."

Raymond R. Tucker, chairman of the Board of Freeholders, took the occasion to deny categorically the rumors being circulated that the new charter would result in new or higher taxes. He accused some opponents of the charter of misinformation and distorting the facts about its provisions.

The accusation was amplified by John I. Rollings, executive secretary of the AFL Central Trades and Labor Union and a member of the Board of Freeholders.

"Real Reason Not Given." "Opponents of the new charter are not giving the real reason why they oppose it," he said. "They will not come out in the open and say they want the charter defeated because it strengthens and extends civil service. The attacks they are making on the tax provisions of the charter—attacks based on misinformation and false statements—are a smoke screen for their real reasons for wanting to see the new charter go down in defeat."

Besides Father Reinert, the religious leaders appearing on the program were the Rev. Russell S. Brown, superintendent of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, and Rabbi Julius Gordon of Shaare Emeth Temple.

Rabbi Gordon observed that "rarely does an issue arise which evokes such overwhelming support from representatives of differing religions, from political parties, from civic, labor and industrial leaders who often appear to have widely separated points of view. When these people can join together to support a cause, the cause must have merit."

Others on the program included Mrs. Richard M. Hoffman, vice president of the League of Women Voters, and H. Sam Priest, co-chairman with Kaufmann of the Citizens' Committee for the New Charter.

Priest said he had tried to analyze widespread appeal of the charter which, more than any other civic problem in recent years, "has touched off such a spontaneous display of support and enthusiasm."

"I think the answer is simply that for 35 years, we have known what it means to be frustrated in every effort to improve our cumbersome city government. The single fact that so many purely local issues had to be decided in the State Legislature, rather than right here in our city legislature where they belonged, has left us helpless to accomplish many improvements which would have benefited St. Louis and St. Louisans."

It gives us the greatest degree of home rule we have ever had in the history of our city. And this home rule will give St. Louis an unequalled opportunity to go forward in sound, progressive government."

Elephant Trainer Joins Army. CHICAGO, July 24 (AP)—The Army got a 21-year-old elephant hunter and trainer today. Ralph Brown, who told recruiters: "I'm just tired of elephants," signed up for a three-year enlistment. He said he had been employed by Clyde Beatty, animal trainer and circus owner, for five years.

William Simpson, night clerk at the Fairmount Hotel, Euclid and Maryland avenues, was held up in the hotel lobby early today by two men who took $75 of the hotel's funds.

Simpson, who lives at 4240 West Florissant avenue, said the two men did not display weapons but had their hands in their pockets to indicate they were armed.

After taking the money, the men ordered Simpson and an elevator operator, Ora Hudson, Negro, of 4221 West Cote Brilliante avenue, to enter the elevator and go to the top floor. They complied.

U.S. BOARD REJECTS PARNELL THOMAS'S PLEA FOR PAROLE

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—The United States Parole Board today refused to parole former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (Rep., New Jersey, who is serving six to 18 months in the Danbury (Conn.) Federal Correctional Institution for padding his congressional payroll.

In response to inquiries members of the parole board noted that Thomas was also fined $10,000 and that no arrangements for paying this have been made.

Thomas made a direct appeal to President Truman several weeks ago for a pardon which would cancel the remainder of his sentence and also delete the fine. The President referred the appeal to the Justice Department.

Thomas, one-time chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, entered Danbury Dec. 9 and became eligible for parole on June 8, 1950. His term would normally run to June 8, 1951, but with good behavior allowances, he could go free next Feb. 20, if there is no parole or pardon action before that time.

U.S. SEEKS WIDER POWER TO MOVE PERISHABLE FOOD

Brannan Asks for Authority to Pay Transport, Packaging Costs for Relief.

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan asked Congress today for broader authority to move Government-owned surplus perishable foods to feed the needy at home and abroad.

He told a House Agriculture Committee that he is "seriously concerned" about mounting Government stocks of butter, cheese, dried eggs, dried milk, and potatoes under farm price support programs.

At present, he said, the Government does not have ample authority to make use of these foods before they go to waste.

Brannan asked specifically that his department be permitted to pay transportation costs on these items from points of storage to local relief distribution centers, and be allowed to package them.

The department now is allowed to donate surplus perishables for relief, but domestic and foreign relief agencies must pay transportation and packaging costs.

Brannan said the Korean situation has largely changed the problem with regard to Government stocks of non-perishable products.

"Current high levels of supply and production are among the best guarantees against food price inflation, but the Commodity Credit Corporation is nevertheless confronted with serious disposal problems for these perishable commodities," Brannan said.

Brannan said the export market is affected by dollar shortages and relief agencies are short of funds. He said the defense effort may open outlets for some Government stocks, especially those in more concentrated form.

The Agriculture Department today tightened provisions of its farm building loan program in a move to slow down buying of materials. From now on, a building loan plus any other indebtedness on the farm must not exceed 95 per cent of the appraised value of the farm. Previously it could be as high as 100 per cent.

TWO-STAGE ROCKET FIRED; FIRST U.S. LEVEL FLYING V-2

LONG RANGE PROVING GROUND, COCOA, Fla., July 24 (AP)—A two-stage "bumper" rocket thundered into the air at 9:29 a.m. today in the first United States horizontal test firing of a guided missile. It was the first successful rocket launching from this Florida proving ground for guided missiles.

An attempted test-firing of a similar two-stage rocket fizzled last Wednesday.

Col. Harold R. Turner, safety officer, said the main part of the missile, a captured German V-2 rocket, soared up 51,000 feet (about nine and one-half miles). At that time it was 15 miles east of the launching point.

A 700-pound Wac Corporal, a small rocket riding in the nose of the V-2, separated from the "mother rocket" and streaked eastward.

At the moment of separation the rockets were traveling 2700

NEW, MIRACLE ELECTRONIC EAR HIDES DEAFNESS

CHICAGO, (Special)—An amazing new electronic ear which hides deafness and transmits even whispers with startling clarity, was revealed today by a noted Chicago electronic scientist.

He disclosed that this miraculous new discovery has rendered old-style hearing aids obsolete almost overnight, and brings new hope to the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing.

He reported that this electronic ear enables the deaf to hear without any button showing in the ear and without dangling battery wires. To acquire the hard of hearing readers of this paper with this new miracle electronic ear which hides deafness, full details are described in a fascinating booklet, "New Discoveries to Help the Deaf Hear." It will be sent free in a plain wrapper to anyone who requests it. Address: Electronic Research Director, 1450 W. 19th Street, Dept. 9142, Chicago 8, Ill. A penny postcard will do.

miles per hour horizontally. The V-2 reached a maximum altitude of 10 miles 83 seconds after the takeoff and then began to nose down toward the Atlantic. When the missile got down to 20,000 feet exactly 140 seconds after the start, Col. Turner pressed a button and exploded the rocket. Information on what happened to the Wac Corporal rocket after it left the V-2 is a military secret.

BIG BOY that parks like a midget

YOU look at the king-size wheelbase on this strapping Buick ROADMASTER.

You look at those long Buick-tapered fenders sweeping from bumper to "double bubble" tail beacon.

You step inside and luxuriate in legroom and hip-room and headroom generous as old-time hospitality.

You ride it—and wonder if wings were ever so soft.

You feel that big bonnetful of Fireball power whisk you from standing start to road speed with the honeyed magic of Dynaflo Drive.

And you tell yourself this is entirely too perfect. All this automobile must be hard to handle, too big for your garage.

Good sir, just slide over and take this ROADMASTER's wheel.

Pick a curb space you'd ordinarily pass by, and back this Buick into it on your very first try.

Here Buick has done a neat job of reducing over-all inches while keeping interior king-size comfort. When you wheel this whopper into your own garage, you'll be tickled pink at the room all around it.

So come on! Head for your Buick dealer's now for a tryout of a Buick ROADMASTER.

You will find it in a selection of body types, in finishes to suit a queen's taste—and at prices to make you wonder why anyone ever pays more.

U.S. TROOPS UNDER HEAVY ATTACK AT YONGDONG FRONT

southern Japan. The move was made so the Air Force could speed up its war against the North Koreans, headquarters said. The new advance headquarters of the Fifth Air Force has been located near this headquarters. Maj. Gen. Earl E. Partridge is in command of the Air Force headquarters.

"You can say we are here Gen. Partridge," he said. "We are here to give them the best co-operation and support."

Northeast of Taejon, the Twenty-fifth Division stopped cold a Communist infantry assault. The G.I.s destroyed six out of eight enemy tanks hurled at one sector of the American positions on the central front.

(The Associated Press reported a savage First Cavalry counter-attack halted a Red thrust along the mountain highway leading to Yongdong east of Taejon. Farther to the east in the Hamchang sector the South Korean First Corps pulled back, the dispatch said.)

MacArthur said North Korean infantrymen with eight tanks attacked First Cavalry positions near Yongdong Monday night. The headquarters announcement said the Red infantry was hurled back and three of the tanks were knocked out by 3.5-inch bazookas. American tank-killing teams were hunting the other five in the darkness.

(On the Yongdong front, Associated Press correspondent Hal Boyle reported Red infantry at one time got behind advanced American positions and threw up a mortar-backed road block.

(This serious threat was cleaned out in two hours with the aid of American tanks and artillery, Boyle reported.

"We didn't fool with it; we sent the tanks to clean it up," he quoted an artillery commander.)

Gen. Gay said he did not intend to withdraw his First Cavalry units, which were well supported by artillery, for the time being. But he termed the situation "very serious."

Some time after reporting that Communist troops had wedged into the American positions in the foothills about 20 miles southeast of Taejon, front correspondents said the United States units which had been on the line since Sunday morning were still in their main positions, but were hard pressed on the north and south flanks.

The division or so of North Koreans charged down the Kum valley and undertook to throw a corridor of steel around the Americans who had braced in the foothills after giving up Taejon.

Threat Is Intensified. A guerrilla threat intensified suddenly. About 120 guerrillas were spotted six miles due south of Yongdong, attacking American rear elements in sniper parties.

United States artillery roared all day, plastering the shifting targets of enemy troop concentrations, vehicles and tanks.

Communists armed with mortars and machineguns and small arms roamed in the area stretching southward from Yongdong.

Camouflaged with leaves and bushes, North Korean troops stole up on an American outpost in some force even while the G.I.s subjected them to artillery, automatic weapon and rifle fire.

The United States dilemma developed with totally unexpected swiftness around noon, field reports said. Yesterday the infantry, airmen and artillery had stopped the North Koreans in their tracks on the first day of the big battle.

Saw Possible Turning Point. As late as Monday morning officers were saying that maybe the battle would wind up soon, and would mark the turning point of the war.

Then, using the tactics which carried them from Seoul to the Yongdong area, the North Koreans sneaked well-armed guerrillas around the flanks and through the American positions. They played hob around and behind the battle lines.

were only in the nature of preliminary skirmishes.

"All day reports from stragglers passing through the area above the battle line and from fighter and reconnaissance planes indicated the North Koreans are moving up material and men," Bennyhoff said.

But the manner in which the Americans in the front line were beating off the preliminary enemy thrusts heartened their commanders.

Gen. Gay told newspaper men Sunday night:

"I feel very confident of the outcome of this action, and I assure you that the morale of our troops is higher tonight than at any time in this war."

Gay himself was pinned down by enemy fire for an hour during an inspection trip to the front yesterday.

Red Tanks Knocked Out. Correspondent Gene Symonds reported from the Twenty-fifth Division sector on the central front that an estimated 750 North Koreans attacked northeast of Yongdong.

Troops of the Tropical Lightning Division, only lately thrown into action, knocked out four of the tanks leading the Communist charge. The Allied Air Force was credited with two more. Symonds said the day's score of enemy tanks smashed in that area was 10.

Two tanks broke through the American front line, and were being hunted down by G.I.s with bazookas.

A Twenty-fifth Division Infantry unit extricated itself from a trap on an undisclosed sector of the central front. For a day and a half, the Americans fought off Communists hemming them in from three sides against a flood-swollen river.

Disengaging themselves, the Americans abandoned all their heavy equipment and swam the river with most of their wounded. Later, several Yanks swam back across the river to bring out the remainder of the wounded.

U. S. Planes Attack Tanks. Fighter planes joined American artillery Sunday in destroying or damaging 38 tanks.

Gen. MacArthur warned of a build up of North Korean Communist troops in "considerable strength" on the southwestern, western and central fronts.

The Reds were reported to have 15 divisions south of the Thirty-eighth parallel, of which no more than seven have been officially identified in action against American troops.

MacArthur said Allied naval guns continued to blast enemy troops concentrating along the east coast and also continued to maintain their blockade.

Mustang fighter pilots of the Royal Australian Air Force reported they destroyed two tanks and damaged six others Sunday.

CONGRESS GROUPS EXAMINE TRUMAN MATERIALS PLAN

"human beings," Kendall also said that the term would not include farms.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, said the bill as worded would let the President "nationalize every industry in America."

Symington and Kendall said the bill carried no provision for the Government to operate industries if they were requisitioned.

"To nationalize you have to have authority to operate," Kendall said. "There is no such authority in this bill."

Symington conceded that the President "would have a lot to do with the operation of every business, there's no question about it."

He said compulsory allocation of industrial "facilities" is necessary because the last war demonstrated that "you can't get 100 per cent co-operation" from business men.

Senator Sparkman of Alabama noted that Symington had made no mention "of the most important thing—taxes" in his discussion of controls needed to prevent inflation.

Symington said the tax boosting request would come up soon as a separate measure.

"Will it include an excess profits tax?" Sparkman asked.

"Yes sir, I would hope so," Symington replied.

Chairman Maybank (Dem.), South Carolina, of the Senate committee announced his group would act with speed. He said Bernard Baruch, veteran financier and volunteer adviser to Government, would testify Wednesday.

Under the Administration bill, the Government could order factories to give first priority to any military needs. That would mean airplanes, tanks and guns ahead of automobiles, household appliances or other civilian goods.

This or other civilian goods, the President also could decide what essential military or civilian needs should get first call on any scarce materials. He could seize properties or materials for national defense, or use Government credit and funds to expand production of necessary materials.

Finally, the President could fix definite limits on installment buying credit, terms of real estate and house loans, or speculation in food and farm products.

Carrier Division Lists Successes In Attacking Red Communications

New U.S. Jets and Other Planes, Pound North Korea's Supply Facilities in 573 Sorties.

By MILTON MARMOR
A UNITED STATES AIRCRAFT CARRIER AT SEA, July 23 (Delayed)—Navy and Air Force attacks have "contributed to a demoralization of enemy communications that will eventually cause the collapse of the North Korean war effort."

This statement came today from R. Adm. John M. Hoskins, commander of Carrier Division 3, which just completed a series of attacks on North Korean supply and communications facilities.

Hoskins and V. Adm. Arthur D. Struble, Seventh Fleet commander, released a summary of activities of Carrier Division 3 on July 4, July 18 and 19, and July 22.

The planes of that division flew 573 sorties (a sortie is one flight by one plane), including 10 strikes (an air attack in which bombs are dropped) and 16 sweeps (strafing and rocket attacks by fighters in group).

Jet planes flew their first combat missions—and suffered their first casualty—in the air attacks. Jet Performance Praised.

Performance of the jets—only recently checked out for carrier duty—and other carrier planes won a "well done" from Adm. Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations, in a message from Washington.

The summary recounted strikes by the new jets, attack bombers and standard fighters on oil refineries and depots at Inchon, which is Seoul's port, and Wonsan, north of the thirty-eighth parallel; on Seoul's Kimpo airport and marshaling yards, railroad bridges, locomotives and vehicles feeding the North Korean offensive to the south.

The first American naval pilot to die in the Korean war was a victim of his own gallantry. The flyer, whose name was withheld pending notification of kin, swept down to strafe a highway when he spotted civilians jumping from a truck and running for safety.

The pilot held his fire and died slightly. In doing so, his wing touched the ground and the plane crashed and exploded.

Pilot Shot Down, Rescued. Lt. (jg) Wendell R. Muncie, 27, of San Diego, Calif., was the first naval pilot shot down by North Korean anti-aircraft fire. He was picked up Wednesday after two and a half hours in the water by an amphibian rescue plane from a British carrier.

Muncie, a Corsair fighter pilot, was none the worse for his experience. His plane had been punctured by fire from three North Korean gunboats during a low level attack on them. He

WOUNDED WIFE SAYS HUSBAND ORDERED SON, 8, TO SHOOT HER

JONESBORO, Ark., July 24 (AP)—A Hardy (Ark.) woman, said by police to have been shot by her 8-year-old son, is in a hospital here, and her 73-year-old husband will be charged with assault to kill.

State Police Sgt. Wyatt Patrick said Mrs. Jewel White, 45, told him her husband, Leon, taught their son, Billy, to fire a rifle, and then ordered the boy to shoot her in a quarrel at their home Saturday night.

Prosecutor Carmack Sullivan of Hardy said White is being held in jail here.

Mrs. White is in a hospital here with a bullet wound in her right lung.

Patrick said Mrs. White told him this story of the shooting.

Her husband came home drunk and a quarrel started. White took Billy into the back yard and taught him to shoot a .22-caliber rifle, allowing him to fire 15 or 20 practice rounds.

Then he told the boy, "if she don't do just right, shoot her."

NEW SON FOURTH IN FAMILY OF SIX TO BE BORN ON JULY 23

PROVIDENCE, R.I., July 24 (AP)—The Sittnick family is going to have a really big and bright birthday cake come next July 23.

A son born yesterday to Mrs. Vincent G. Sittnick was the fourth member of the family of six to be born on July 23.

The father, a fireman, was 36 years old yesterday. Daughters Ruth Mary and Kathleen were 8 and 4, respectively. Another son, Vincent Jr., was born in October 1947. The mother was born on July 5.

NAVY PILOT UNHURT IN CRASH-LANDING

Reservist on Training Flight
Plunges Into Soybean Field
When Engine Quits.

A Navy plane made a crash-landing in a St. Louis county soybean field yesterday, breaking the propeller and damaging the fuselage, but the pilot, Lt. (jg) Charles Wigham Jr. of St. Charles, was unhurt.

Wigham, member of the organized naval reserve, was on a routine training flight out of Lambert-St. Louis Airport when the plane's engine quit. He radioed the field to prepare for an emergency landing but the plane went down, wheels up, about a mile away.

As the AM-1 Martin Mauler, a single-engine attack plane, known in the Navy as an "Able Maibie," plowed into the field near Natural Bridge and Lindbergh roads, it cut a wide swath through a soybean patch. Navy authorities hauled the plane back to the field in a truck and prepared to pay the farmer for his beans.

Wigham, a painter, lives at 816 Forest avenue in St. Charles. He is the holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal for achievements as a torpedo squadron flyer in World War II.

SOCIALISTS TALK OF STRIKE WAVE AGAINST LEOPOLD

BRUSSELS, July 24 (AP)—King Leopold and his Social Christian Government today faced tightening opposition which promised to take a far more solid form than catcalls and press blasts.

A Socialist leader declared that a wave of strikes would start today in Belgium's Walloon area. They would spread, he said, until the King quits the throne he reigned only two days ago.

Leopold has shown no signs he intends to submit to his opponents' demands that he abdicate and let his eldest son, Crown Prince Baudouin, reign.

MAN AWAITING MURDER TRIAL SHOT; VICTIM'S BROTHER HELD

John M. Thomas, Negro, who is awaiting trial on a charge of killing Samuel Harris, Negro, last May 15, was shot and seriously wounded early today in the 2500 block of Goode avenue. Police arrested Robert Harris, Negro, a brother of the slain man, who admitted, police said, that he shot Thomas.

Thomas, who was shot six times, told police Harris fired at him after he refused to give him money to help support Samuel Harris's widow. Thomas said the shooting took place in an automobile. He was lying on the sidewalk when police arrived, with a fully loaded automatic pistol at his side. He was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital.

Harris was booked suspected of assault with intent to kill. He lives in the 4400 block of Greer avenue. Thomas gave an address in the 1500 block of Pendleton avenue.

FOUR IRISH GROUPS URGE END OF IRELAND'S DIVISION

Members of four Irish organizations affiliated with the United Irish Societies of St. Louis held an Irish day picnic and celebration at Dillman's Grove, Chain of Rocks Park, yesterday, in which they called for the end of the division of Ireland.

Dr. R. Emmet Kane said Britain should give up its hold on the six northern counties of Ireland and allow them to join the independent country to the south.

The meeting was attended by members of the Irish Nationalists, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the League for Undivided Ireland and the Irish-American Club. Besides Dr. Kane, other speakers were City Counselor James E. Crowe and George W. Curran, a member of the Irish Nationalists. Competitions in Irish dancing and games were held.

DEMOCRATS PICK ALLAN SHIVERS AS TEXAS GOVERNOR

DALLAS, Tex., July 24 (AP)—Texas Democrats have named Allan Shivers to his full term as Governor.

However, no man in the 12-candidate Lieutenant Governor's race got a majority in Saturday's Democratic primary, and a runoff in the August 3 primary was certain. Two congressional races also appeared headed for run-offs.

Shivers's closest opponent in the seven-man Governor's race was Casa March, a former Baylor University law professor, who made his third unsuccessful bid for Governor. Shivers held almost a four-to-one majority over March throughout the tabulations. Almost a million votes were cast.

March had the endorsement of both the CIO and the AFL.

Shivers was Lieutenant Governor last summer when the death of Gov. Beauford Jester put him in the top office. He is regarded as a conservative Democrat.

The top man in the Lieutenant Governor's race was Pierce P. Brooks, Dallas insurance man. Brooks faces a run-off with Ben Ramsey of San Augustine, who was a state senator for eight years and in 1949 was appointed secretary of state for Texas.

PAIR 350 MILES FROM HALIFAX IN AMPHIBIOUS JEEP

HALIFAX, N. S., July 24 (AP)—Ben Carlin, Australian-born New Yorker, and his Bostonian wife reported by radio yesterday they were about 350 miles from Halifax and were going "swimmingly" in their third attempt to circle the globe in an amphibious jeep.

The Carlins left Halifax Wednesday. Their 24-foot vehicle is of a type known as a duck and is named "The Halfsafe." It carries a 10-watt radio, a message from which was picked up yesterday by a Royal Canadian Air Force ham operator.

The Carlins hope to reach the Azores in three weeks, then sail to North Africa on the second leg of their journey.

KEFAUVER FINDS SIGNS CRIME RINGS SPLIT TERRITORIES

Hasn't Determined
Whether 'Kingpin' Controls Entire Operation,
Senator Says.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 24—Evidence of a territorial division by national crime syndicates has been uncovered by the special Senate Crime Investigating Committee, which has held hearings in Miami, St. Louis and Kansas City, Chairman Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee) said today.

Senator Kefauver said he has not yet determined whether a one-man "kingpin" controlled the entire crime operation. He added, however, that some of the same names crop up in rings in various parts of the country.

The smooth working of the multi-billion dollar rackets is made possible by payment of money to some public officials, the Senator said. Criminals can't operate in any stable community without paying protection, he declared.

Problem of Legalizing. "Legalizing lotteries, slot machines or bookmaking parlors would not solve the problem," he said. "It undoubtedly would provide more revenue, but it would not reduce criminal operations. Gambling and lotteries add nothing to the economy and are accompanied by all other kinds of crime."

He refused to say whether he thought the Federal Bureau of Investigation or other federal agencies should go into states to stamp out interstate gambling and other crime operations, but noted that interstate traffic of stolen automobiles almost ceased when the FBI was given power to break it up in the 1930s.

Although there have been many gang killings, Kefauver said, they in themselves are not the greatest harm society suffers.

"The greatest harm is the corrupting influence upon our people," he said. "The flow of money from these crime rings undoubtedly has a very bad influence upon local law enforcement, upon governing bodies and upon the character and the respect for our laws by our children."

Observers here believe that a pending bill which prohibits interstate transmission of racing information can be passed if the Crime Investigating Committee can pile up a preponderance of evidence to show that the operation is gangster controlled.

The committee to date has obtained no evidence showing gangster control of Continental News Service, which enjoys a national monopoly in serving handbooks, but has found a great deal of evidence that gangsters do control distributors and sub-distributors.

Miami Situation. In Miami, the committee discovered that Harry Russell, an old Chicago bookie and associate of the Capone gang, is a partner in the S. & G. Syndicate, which controls 200 handbooks. The flow of racing news to the bookies was shut off for 10 days in February 1949 while business arrangements were made for taking on Russell as a partner.

Russell has denied that his failure to appear at the Miami hearings had anything to do with the slaying of Charles Binagagio April 5, Kefauver said today. The committee had been informed by an attorney that Russell feared for his life as the result of the Kansas City gang leader's death.

The committee found at Los Angeles that Jack I. Dragna, a leading West Coast gangster, was on the payroll of the Illinois Sports News, a distributor.

At Kansas City, testimony that the gang of the late Charles Binagagio took over Harmony News Service, another distributor, was heard. The wire, now known as Universal Distributing Co., is in control of Tano, Tanco, Eddie Osadchey (Eddie Spitz) and Morris (Snag) Klien.

Although incomplete evidence has been received, the committee is still working on the theory that Frank (Buster) Wortman, East Side gangster, has a place of the Pioneer News Service.

G.I. Trapped in Taejon Tells How He Fled Behind Red Lines to Safety Virginian Parlayed Lent Compass, Straw Hat, Korean Friend and Watermelon Into Extension of His 21 Years.

By ROBERT C. MILLER WITH AMERICAN FORCES
AT THE TAEJON FRONT, July 24 (UPI)—The escape route for Americans trapped in burning Taejon lay to the south, but Pfc. Charles Ferguson, of Narrows, Va., went north behind the Communist lines and saved his life.

Ferguson told today how he got lost and stroled calmly the wrong way, deep behind enemy lines, even pausing to eat a watermelon along the road.

He parlayed a lent compass, a straw hat, a Korean friend—and the watermelon—into an indefinite extension of his 21 years.

Ferguson was "holding the line" in Taejon last Thursday when it started. His retreating convoy was shelled heavily as it attempted to fight its way out of the town.

Truck Wrecked. His truck was wrecked, forcing Ferguson and his three buddies to get out and walk.

"I was the only man who had a compass," the good-looking Virginian explained. "So I gave it to my squad leader."

"However, we became separated after dark and all of a sudden I was all alone behind the enemy lines and lost. I just headed into the mountains and walked all night trying to put as much distance between me and burning Taejon as possible."

By Friday morning, Ferguson had gone several miles, but he had traveled north instead of south and was deep in the North Korean rear.

"I started to climb a mountain but it was filled with Communist soldiers clambering all over it," he said. "So I just boldly walked on down to a village and nobody paid any attention to me."

"I guess they never expected to see an American that far back and took me for a Communist."

Footsore and exhausted, the infantryman created quite a stir among the villagers. They tried to shoot him off for fear his presence would get them in trouble.

"Hell, Joe." "Just when things looked blackest," Ferguson said, "a youngster about 18 came up and said 'Hello, Joe—I speak English. Come over to my house and I will fix you up.'"

The South Korean took the G.I. inside his thatched house. He outfitted him with a big Korean straw hat, white trousers, white vest and a tight-fitting pair of native shoes.

He was also given a typical Korean pack in which he rolled his torn-down rifle, helmet and uniform.

"Then we headed south," Ferguson said, "with one of the boys leading the way, and his pal following. All I did was follow him. We never exchanged a word but just walked as if we were refugees and nobody paid any attention to us."

Once Ferguson came face-to-face with a North Korean sentry armed with a Tommy gun. "He came around the corner and there was nothing to do but walk right past him," he said.

Shuffled Along. "I figured this was it, but took a deep breath, pulled the big hat down over my face and shuffled along like an old man of 80. And believe me, I felt like it at that moment."

Ferguson walked right past the guard, who didn't even give him a second look.

Late Friday, he met with Sgt. John M. Emmel, Philadelphia, who was also trying to get out. Ferguson's young Korean friends spotted Emmel first. They brought him over, telling him there was another American down the road.

"All I could see," Emmel said, "was a bent-over old Korean eating watermelon and I was surprised as hell when he started speaking English. It wasn't until he took off his hat that I recognized him as an American."

They walked all Friday night and most of Saturday before they reached the American lines.

3 CLEVELAND PRIESTS ROBBED OF $13,000

Pastor Slugged as 2 Men Break Into Parish House, Seize Carnival Receipts.

CLEVELAND, July 24 (AP)—Two men with silk-stocking masks broke into a Roman Catholic parish house today and robbed three priests of $13,000. One priest was slugged.

The money came from a five-day parish carnival and yesterday's collection at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church in south-east Cleveland.

The holdup men cut phone lines before jimmying a kitchen window of the parish house. They worked with flashlights in the darkness and fled before dawn, leaving the three priests bound.

Magr. John Motkowski, church pastor, was slugged on the back of the head with a pistol. He gave the robbers $7000 he had in a canvas bag and also the money in the safe. The other priests were the Rev. Casimir Sitko and The Rev. Wacklaw Krausz, parish assistant recently arrived from Poland.

14 STATES LIKELY TO GAIN OR LOSE SEATS IN HOUSE

Census Indicates Missouri, Illinois Representation Will Be Cut — West to Profit.

WASHINGTON, July 24 (UP)—The Census Bureau's preliminary estimates of the 1950 population indicated today that 14 states probably will gain or lose seats in the House of Representatives.

A United Press survey showed that West Coast states will make major gains at the expense of Eastern and Southern states that failed to keep the pace in population growth. Mid-western states also will lose a few Representatives.

States likely to gain are California, Florida, Maryland, Michigan, Texas and Washington. Most likely to lose House seats are Arkansas, Illinois, Kansas, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania.

The constitutional reason for taking the census every 10 years is to make sure that each state is fairly represented, according to its population, in the House.

Truman to Get Figures. The Census Bureau must send President Truman its final tabulations on the population count before Dec. 1 of this year. Truman in turn will submit them to Congress, probably in the first week of next year. The House will decide the new representation of the states.

It will base its decision on final state figures submitted by the President. The House has 15 days to make the apportionment and in the off-chance Congressmen cannot agree, the present allocation of Representatives will continue. It happened after the 1920 census.

Even less likely is the chance that the House would decide to enlarge its size. The law allows it to, but the House membership has remained at 435 since 1880. Redistricting within the affected states will be up to the state legislatures.

California Should Gain. The survey indicated that California should gain the most House seats—seven—to bring its new total to 30. This would put California in a tie with Pennsylvania as the second most powerful state in the House, as Pennsylvania probably will lose three of its present 33 seats.

New York still would have the greatest number of Representatives—43—even if it loses two in the apportionment, as seems likely. Missouri and Oklahoma also will probably lose two seats each. Florida probably will gain two.

States likely to lose single seats are Arkansas, Illinois, Kansas and Mississippi. States likely to gain single seats probably will be Maryland, Michigan, Texas and Washington.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN'S TRIPLETS 'DOING FINE' IN INCUBATORS

Triplets, born Saturday at Eldorado, Ill., to Mrs. John Spears of St. Louis, were "doing fine" today in incubators at Christian Welfare Hospital's premature baby center in East St. Louis.

Mrs. Spears, reported to be in good condition at Farrell Hospital in Eldorado, said she had hoped for a girl and decided on Pamela Ann as the name for her first child. When she learned there were two boys and a girl, she quickly decided on Gary Daye, Jerry Raye and Sherry Gaye as their names. They weighed 4 pounds 1 1/2 ounces, 3 pounds 1 ounce and 3 pounds 6 ounces.

Spears is a cook at the L. and R. Restaurant, 7 South Newstead avenue. He and his wife, 24 years old, live in a one-room efficiency apartment at 4418 McPherson avenue. She had gone to Eldorado, 100 miles southeast of St. Louis, to be near her husband's parents at Harrisburg, Ill.

American Legion Leaders Favor Imprisonment of Subversives

Commander George Craig Calls for Universal Military Training, Drops Benefit Demands for Duration.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 24 (AP)—Department commanders of the American Legion adopted a resolution yesterday calling for imprisonment of any person who supports or sponsors subversive acts against the Government. The resolution was adopted at a conference summoned by National Commander George N. Craig's announcement of a campaign for universal military training.

Craig of Brazil, Ind., who called on the Legion's 3,000,000 members to campaign for "immediate enactment of universal military training legislation."

Lewis K. Gough of Pasadena, Calif., head of the California department, presented the imprisonment resolution. Craig also said the Legion would ask for no additional benefits or extensions under the G.I. Bill of Rights except to make the bill applicable to those now fighting in Korea.

"The American Legion as of now throws overboard for the duration of the present crisis its advocacy of any new veterans' pension legislation," said Craig. "Also, for the duration we shall support no bonus bills."

Craig also said the Legion would ask for no additional benefits or extensions under the G.I. Bill of Rights except to make the bill applicable to those now fighting in Korea.

'DAISY CHAIN' GAME PLAYED WITH MINES BAGS 2 RED TANKS

By O. H. P. KING
ON THE TAEJON-YONGDONG HIGHWAY FRONT, Korea, July 24 (AP)—A few hundred feet from me a North Korean tank was burning. It was trapped by a group of American engineers playing "daisy chain."

Lt. Raymond Whelan explained how they played the game, with land mines wired together. "We laid a daisy chain of mines across the road," Whelan said. "A little way ahead we laid a second. We strung wires to the road's edge, where my men lay."

His men were Cpl. Wayne Harris, 22 years old, of Rolla, Mo.; Pfc. Garnet Cramer, 23, of Michigan; and Cpl. John T. Stevens, 23, of New Boston, O.

When the Reds sent two tanks probing down the road, Whelan let the lead tank go over the first daisy chain. When it reached the second, they let it blow. The tank burst into flames. The crew perished. The second tank was knocked out when it came around a bend in the area.

Lt. William G. Thomas Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., commander of an American tank column who spotted the two enemy tanks, was pleased with the job.

Swiss Prepared for Defense. GRENCHEN, Switzerland, July 24 (AP)—Dr. Karl Kobelt, Minister of Defense, declared yesterday that the Swiss people will fight to the last man to preserve this country's freedom and neutrality. He said no one knew whether the war in Korea can be localized or will spread, but he said the nation's defense forces were well prepared.

Negotiations for Korean Peace Appear to Hinge on U.S. Army Success at Halting Red Drive

American Officials Believe Russia Will Expose Hand Then Only — Truman's Message and Nehru's Failure Said to Have Set Kremlin to Thinking.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP).

PROSPECTS for some new diplomatic negotiation to end the Korean war appear now to hinge on the outcome of the United States Army effort to stabilize the front. The critical point at which Russia's real intentions toward the Korean fighting will be disclosed, American officials believe, will come when and if the Red advance is brought to a standstill.

Russia must then realize, they say, that without powerful outside assistance the Korean Communists will be unable to hold their gains and will be confronted with the threat of ultimate defeat. At that time, according to this line of reasoning, the world will probably find out quickly whether there is to be an end of aggression and a return of peace in Korea or whether the danger of a great war will increase.

Top officials here believe the major decisions on Russia's course have been under study in the Kremlin since the middle of last week.

Two Developments.

Two things happened at that time. One was President Truman's message to Congress, calling for a 10 billion dollar down payment on an expanded military program and warning Russia that a series of limited aggressions of the Korea type might well bring on World War III.

The other development was the failure of Indian Prime Minister Nehru's effort to create conditions for a negotiated settlement. The United States rejected Nehru's suggestion that it facilitate Communist China's membership in the United Nations as a means of getting Russia to resume its place in the Security Council.

These two developments together are taken here as having demonstrated to the Kremlin this country's intention to stand absolutely firm against aggression in Korea or anywhere else, whatever the cost.

In addition officials now believe Truman's message may have scored another point with the Kremlin—that is, that the United States will not permit itself to be involved endlessly in a series of little wars against aggression without finally tackling the main source of the trouble—Russia.

Passage Aimed at Reds. Truman did not say that. In a section of his message which, it was learned, was penned specifically for Kremlin eyes to read, he said simply that the men who have the power to unleash aggression should realize that if continued recourse to such action they would wear the fabric of world peace to the breaking point.

However, suspicious governments normally read each other's official statements for the meaning between the lines. The Russians know that in Korea the United States and associated United Nations have engaged the forces of Russia but those of a minor satellite.

The Russians might be tempted to entangle these countries similarly in other regions—Indochina, the Middle East or the Balkans.

The Russians must know that American strategists have seriously considered this possibility as well as the counter action the United States should take.

So long as the Korean Communists have a prospect of victory by driving American troops into the sea, Russia may let the situation ride unchallenged, but if the Korean Communists lose the prospect due to build-up of American power in Korea, the Soviet Union may take one of three courses of action:

1. Embrace the role of peace-maker by telling the North Koreans to give up a lost cause before they were compelled to do so.

2. Send in troops to aid North Korea, thereby assuring a direct clash between United States and Russian forces.

3. Start trouble in some other place to divide United Nations anti-aggression forces.

PRESIDENT AURIOL OF FRANCE URGES A GLOBAL ARMY

BAR-LE-DUC, France, July 24 (AP)—President Vincent Auriol has called for "define organization" of an international army against aggression.

In his first public statement on the Korean war, Auriol hailed "the building, however late, of the international army so long demanded by France."

"France asks now a definite organization of that army as an element of order and security for all people," he declared.

Speaking at ceremonies honoring World War I President Raymond Poincare, Auriol said France will "seek and propose every solution which may, in the spirit of justice, halt the (Korean) conflict and prevent others from breaking out."

"But first of all," he continued, "it is necessary to stop an aggressor who, by refusing mediation, has exposed himself to the stigma of the U.N. It is first necessary to check an invasion and an occupation."

Aggressors, Auriol declared, must be made to understand "not only that freedom is always bound to win in the long run but that this time collective measures will be taken from the first day."

"This is the reason why we feel happy that the U.N. did not give way this time before the blackmail of the 'fait accompli'—accomplished fact—and has pledged its will to insure respect for the given word and for world security."

Heavy U.S. Tanks on Way to Front

Heavy American M-26 tanks, mounting 90mm. guns, are prepared for movement to the South Korean battlefront after being unloaded at Pusan, southeastern supply base. They are being rushed into Korea to counter the large Russian-made tank force of the Reds.

Business Outlook

U. S. ON ROAD TO SCARCITY ECONOMY

By J. A. Livingston

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S 10-billion-dollar-and-up defense program is inflationary. Only the most stringent credit controls and taxes can prevent a rapid rise in the price level and the cost of living.

The increased war demand comes when the economy doesn't have much "give"—elasticity. What a contrast with June 1944 when France fell. Then we were slowly emerging from a long depression. We talked about economic stagnation and maturity. We had spare manpower, materials, and machines. Unemployment was still a curse. But today, the nation's industrial machine is working 12% harder than last year, harder than at any time since the war. So there's no obvious slack.

America's Hidden Reserves. None the less, a country as great as ours has hidden reserves, of which to take increased production. We could:

1. Put in a longer work week. Today factory employees are working 40 hours. During the war, they worked 46 hours.

2. Cut down unemployment. Industry can absorb nearly all the 3,400,000 persons now out of jobs. During the war, industry used all but 500,000 workers. Actually, unemployment got down as low as 440,000.

3. Employ more women in industry. As jobs become easier to get, as factory pay goes up when employers bid for workers, a greater proportion of women will be drawn into the labor force. Today 29% of United States workers are women; during the war, the proportion got above 35%.

4. Utilize idle or under-used plants. The Army, Navy, Air Force and Munitions Board have some standby plants which can be operated. Likewise some private companies have excess plant. Likewise, there are some machine tools stored away.

But the immediate bottleneck is materials, notably steel. Consumption today is running just about at capacity. And though steel companies have expansion programs under way, the increase will be insufficient to meet potential needs. Tight supplies of copper, aluminum, lumber will also constrict overall production.

War requirements will subtract from civilian supplies, while, at the same time, civilians—workers with pay checks—will have as much money as before, with which to buy goods. That's inflation. The money supply gets too big for the goods supply. We're once again in a scarcity economy.

Truman's Two Lines. President Truman must now hold two lines: The battle line in Korea and the price line in the United States. His program, to that purpose, divides into two parts:

Hint of Sacrifices. There were indications over the weekend, however, that the Labor Government is preparing sacrifices for sacrifices in the interest of defense. War Minister John Strachey asserted last night that some of the present plans for domestic recovery may have to be thrown overboard in view of the current situation. Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell told a Durham audience Saturday that his task is to "promote adequate defense."

Prime Minister Attlee has already promised to match in some way President Truman's call for all-out defense efforts.

Britain presently is spending

G.I.s in Korea Are Fighting a Strange Enemy

Foe Cashes In on Similarity to South Koreans to Get Behind U.S. Lines.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)

AMERICAN soldiers in Korea are battling a strange enemy whose identity is uncertain, whose commanders are nameless, who fights murderously. The northern enemy looks exactly like the southern friend. The enemy uses this to advantage to strike by stealth.

Even the best official records at the Pentagon are reported to contain the name of only one North Korean commander.

This is in sharp contrast with World War II days when the names of enemy field commanders were almost as familiar to American readers as those of United States leaders.

What is the "North Korean army" besides North Koreans?

To date, the only official information has been a terse Pentagon statement that between 10 and 20 Russian officers are advisers with "a certain North Korean unit."

How many others with other units? Apparently that is not known.

Little Better Information.

Because of battlefield captures of enemy soldiers, equipment and records, we seemed to have a little better information on the identity of North Korean army units.

More than six North Korean divisions have been identified in action, including the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Fifteenth. North Korean divisions average about 10,000 men as compared with 17,000 for a full-strength United States Army division.

The enemy is a curious mixture of Asiatic and Russian Communist thinking. The result is alarming. He fights ferociously, with the fatalism of the Oriental and the fanaticism of the Communist. One of his most effective devices thus far has been infiltration—the practice of slipping through the United States-South Korean lines in the guise of a refugee, then shooting from behind.

The Far East Command said in a recent communique that Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker was giving "prompt and vigorous" attention to this practice. The problem has been extremely difficult. There is no difference in appearance, in language or in personal customs between South and North Koreans.

Producing Results.

However, Gen. Walker's program is producing results, according to the Far East communique. In grim, cryptic language, it said: "Gen. Walker has declined, thus

NEHRU'S SECRET, PERSONAL APPEAL TO U.S. DISCLOSED

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—

Indian Prime Minister Nehru is reliably reported to have sent a secret personal appeal to Secretary of State Dean Acheson in India's fruitless effort to get Communist China a United Nations seat as a peace move.

The message has been withheld from publication at Nehru's request, although two other similar appeals were made public on July 19. The State Department refuses to deny or confirm that it exists.

Diplomatic officials told a reporter today that Nehru sent his secret note to Acheson to back up his original proposal made to both the United States and Russia July 13.

The Indian leader, officials said, contended that if the United States agreed to admit Communist China to the United Nations and Russia then refused to help end the Korean fighting, it would be bad for the Russians before world opinion.

Nehru's secret appeal came as the American rejection was being drafted. American officials were pleased to know more about Nehru's motives but nevertheless refused to change their position.

Johnson Reversed Forrestal Policy, Cut Orders, Squadrons — U.S. Forced to War Economy to Recoup Air Power.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

(Copyright, 1950.)

WASHINGTON.

THE United States has now entered upon a war economy. This is the real meaning of President Truman's message to Congress. This desperate, last-minute effort to make up for lost time is necessary simply because the defense "savings" of Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson have brought us, in Korea, to another Pearl Harbor. A single set of statistics is enough to show why this is so.

On Pearl Harbor day, the United States was producing 2429 combat aircraft a month. On Korea day, the United States was producing 215 combat aircraft a month. In other words, although the United States was clearly faced with a threat quite as grave as the threat of Hitler and Tojo, the number of combat planes being turned out on Korea day was one-twelfth what it was on Pearl Harbor day.

This shocking situation was not the outcome of any difficulties inherited by Johnson. When James V. Forrestal left office, Air Force orders, in terms of airframe weight (the most accurate measure of air power potential) were up from the post-war low to 34,000,000 pounds annually. Forrestal had planned an orderly increase towards the 45,000,000 pounds established by the Air Policy Board as the absolute minimum for peacetime defense.

Johnson Reversed Policy. It was Johnson who reversed this process, cutting airframe weight orders to a low of little over 21,000,000 pounds. While he was thus condemning our existing air units to progressive obsolescence, Johnson also slashed the strength-in-being of the Air Force and naval Marine air arms. The Air Force, which consisted of more than 12,500 operational aircraft when Johnson took office, has been reduced to 8600, with only 3300 first-line combat planes. The naval and Marine air arms, which formerly comprised 10,700 operational aircraft, have been reduced to 6200, with 2575 first-line combat planes.

Such, at least, was the position just before Korea day. This Korea day American first-line strength of about 5900 first-line combat planes, which was rapidly declining, must be contrasted with a known Russian first-line strength of more than 15,000 planes. These figures have a simple meaning. Although only unimportant satellite air units have as yet been committed in Korea, the figures cited above have already meant cruel losses of men and hard losses of territory in the Korean fighting. For what our forces in Korea need most urgently is close air support. It is precisely the tactical air units, equipped and trained to give this close air support, which have suffered most heavily under Johnsonian "economy."

Real Stake in 70-Group Plan. Our tactical air power was the real stake in the 70-group controversy. With 70 groups, we would now have minimum strategic air power and high altitude fighter strength, plus reasonable tactical air power. With 42 groups disguised as 48, which is the United States Air Force under the Johnson program, we could not have all these. The Joint Chiefs of Staff therefore chose, and chose rightly, to sacrifice tactical air power in order to conserve the strategic Air Force that is now our only deterrent against further Soviet aggression.

This decision of the Joint Chiefs in turn conferred particular importance on the Marine air arm, however. As Johnson inherited it, the Marine air arm was a fine tactical Air Force of 23 squadrons, all intensively trained in the close support of ground troops in combat, the kind of support our men in Korea now need so desperately. Under Forrestal's build-up plans, this force was to be increased gradually to 31 squadrons.

Yet Johnson took this Marine air arm, which represented almost all the true tactical air power we had, and cut it to 12 squadrons. And when congressional pressure forced him to restore four of the suppressed squadrons, he pointed to this act as proof of the

Recognize Red China

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Should the present government of China be recognized by the United States and also by the United Nations? I believe that it should, for American influence can be more effective with the Communist government's de facto status officially recognized.

True, it is a "Red" nation, but so is Yugoslavia, the recipient of many favors from free countries. Furthermore, "Red" China is recognized by many of the democratic nations—namely Britain—and by drawing it into the bloc of the capitalistic countries, I believe that it would gradually out-Tito Tito in its relations with the Moscow regime.

Recent reports from China show that although religion is restricted there by the adherents of Marxian beliefs, it is not persecuted in the bitter way that Europeans used to do it. Evidently, the Chinese are too wise to feel murderous over ideological differences.

For instance, the Catholic Church is allowed freedom of internal worship, and in China today there are more than 14,000 Catholic missionaries, priests, brothers and nuns who remain at their posts serving the more than 175,000 faithful in that land. This information comes from the International Conference of the Catholic Press, edited by the Rev. Nicholas Maestri, head of the Hong Kong Catholic Truth Society.

McCarthy's Success

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have been reading with great interest during the last few months the attempts by the Post-Dispatch to brand Senator McCarthy a fraud and a liar. As far as the people in this house are concerned (and we're all Democrats) you have not succeeded.

You say Senator McCarthy cannot prove his charges. I think he has proved them to any open-minded individual. Owen Lattimore and his associates have not been charged by any group of Democratic politicians who try to cover up the mess that has come out of Washington with regard to the Communists.

Music-in-the-Round

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Not a few theatergoers in St. Louis know about musicals and dramas "in the round," but we would like to add an enthusiastic vote to those already in. We saw three music-in-the-round productions in Chicago last week and think they're a delightful innovation to the theater.

Municipal Opera stars like Wilbur Evans, Annamary Dickey, Harry Stockwell, and Tim Herbert—among many others—have performed in Round shows. The trend has been noticed from coast to coast and even has ventured to Broadway. Put up some tents, construct some stages about 15 feet in diameter, obtain the services of some more opera singers, and music-in-the-round would make an auspicious local debut.

What a wonderful thing it would be if 15,000 jammed the Arena to see a Round version of "Desert Song" or "Student Prince." Well, it's a thought, Mr. Paul Beisman. ED JOST.

Who Favors It?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The excellent article on the proposed charter, written by Robert Dunlap, is a wonderful contribution to the charter campaign. This article clearly explains many of the fine provisions of the proposed charter.

From the many endorsements received by the Citizens Committee, it certainly appears that citizens interested in good government, in bringing about economy and efficiency in government are in favor of the charter.

Why are political forces opposing it? H. G.

The Silver Lining

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Every cloud has a silver lining, even Korea. The general realization of the inadequacy of our defense forces and the general demand for their rapid expansion, is the silver lining in the Korean "police action."

At this juncture, it is hoped that the American public fully comprehends the enormity of the mistake it committed by demanding rapid demobilization, as soon as the German and Japanese enemies had fallen.

This was our basic postwar error. Europeans shrugged their shoulders at our folly, for they learned long ago that satisfactory peace cannot be negotiated without a fully mobilized army and navy. A.M.S.

Withering Away

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If we don't get wise, St. Louis will be a ghost town. There are two vacant square blocks from Michigan to Pennsylvania, Delor to Maeder streets overgrown with weeds. There are more large vacant plots on the South Side, yet our city boosters are running around looking for vacant land for housing projects.

Transportation fares are too high in St. Louis. I pay 12 cents fare to ride 10 blocks. But I can board a Broadway car at the north or south loop, and for 12 cents I can ride to Lemay, Kirkwood, Maplewood, Jennings, etc. Why? ANN B.

More McCarthyism?

Just how far will Wisconsin's Senator McCarthy be allowed to carry his effrontery? He now threatens to take up the time of a Congress busy on war measures by reading FBI records. Will the Senate really stand for this?

It might be a different story if McCarthy had not been so thoroughly repudiated, and if his wild charges had not been shown to be so utterly without foundation in fact. The long majority report of the Tydings subcommittee read almost like a bill of impeachment. Never before was a Senator so bluntly accused of perpetrating a fraud on Congress and people.

Even Senator Lodge, who felt compelled by political considerations to write a minority report, agreed that McCarthy had not made a case. And Senator Hickenlooper, who acted as McCarthy's mouthpiece during the extended hearings, did not say a thing for the subcommittee's record. What could he say?

McCarthy's line was posterous from the very start. It just did not make sense to believe that Secretary Acheson, one of the chief architects of our anti-Communist policy, was harboring Communists in the State Department. Each of the individuals specifically named by McCarthy has been cleared. Must their names be besmirched again?

McCarthy, of course, is not the type to give up. When one of his charges was shown to be empty, he made another. No doubt, he will continue his efforts to drum up sensations to keep his name in the headlines. Apparently, he still believes there is political capital in such tactics. Or he may properly fear that his own political sun will set unless he can raise doubts about the emphatic verdict against him.

The Senate has always been extremely eager to afford its members almost unlimited freedom of speech. But will the majority of the American people be resigned to seeing this privilege further abused? After all, Washington is dealing with a crisis these days. Neither the Administration, the State Department, nor the Congress can afford to be harassed by new twists to McCarthyism. It is time for the Senate to consider its power to discipline its members.

It is time for the man himself to ask whether his irresponsible self-promotion is not interfering with the nation's most urgent business.

Threat to the West

The contentions of the Communist line in East Germany now call for increased emphasis on the building of a "National Front"—Red shorthand for acceptance of any German, Nazi or not, who is willing to fight the West.

The Communists have been following this policy for many months, but now East German Premier Otto Grotewohl has said that even the struggle to establish a dictatorship of the proletariat must be subordinated to the construction of a national front.

Eastern Europeans have excellent reason to fear this extension of the comradely clenched fist to Nazis. Apparently their fears were supposed to have been quieted by the previous gratuitous signing away of East German claims to the lands east of the Oder-Neisse line.

It looks as though not only a national, but also an international front is in the making in the Soviet world. And the prime constituent of that front will be an army, led by the "Peoples' Police" and now-jobless former soldiers and officers of Hitler's Reich. The time for the West to organize its strength may be growing shorter.

Experiment With a Gate

Illinois is conducting an interesting experiment at the November election this year. Some of its civic leaders are going to find out whether its citizens can be persuaded, by an active and intensive campaign, to vote on a proposal to liberalize the amending article of the State Constitution.

Illinois is still living under its 1870 Constitution. Gov. Adlai Stevenson's effort to let the people vote on the calling of a constitutional convention failed in the 1949 General Assembly. As a pale substitute, the Assembly agreed to let the people vote on a so-called Gateway Amendment, designed to open the gate a crack to future proposals for constitutional change.

The present Constitution has seldom been amended because, to pass, an amendment must receive a majority of all votes cast at the election. Frequently a large majority of those voting on the constitutional issue favor the proposed change, but it fails because many people do not vote on it at all.

Since 1891 the people of Illinois have voted on 14 proposed amendments, and only two have carried. Yet 10 of the remaining 12 actually received a majority of the votes cast on the amendment. And seven of those 10 received more than two-thirds of the votes cast on the amendment.

No very radical change is contemplated by the Gateway Amendment. It provides that future amendments will be adopted if they receive either a majority of all votes cast at the election, as at present, or two-thirds of those cast on the proposition. Certainly it ought to pass; but it goes before the people under the old ground rules. A big vote must be brought out if the gateway is to be opened a trifle.

The Illinois Committee for Constitutional Revision has set itself that task. We commend its efforts and hope that they will be particularly successful in the southern section of the state, where in 1946 only one out of four voters bothered to register an opinion on a similar proposal.

California Compromise

University of California regents have voted to retain 40 faculty members who had refused to accept a loyalty oath as part of their contracts. These professors will keep their jobs because they appealed to the faculty Senate for a hearing and the Senate recommended their retention.

But 157 other faculty members and employees who refused to appeal to the Senate and also refused to accept a loyalty oath have been fired. That the 40 professors kept their jobs is welcome news. That the regents and the administration were willing to accept the advice of the faculty's own representatives on a question of fitness to teach is equally commendable. If anybody is to "try" a faculty member for loyalty, his peers on the faculty are best qualified.

But making the faculty Senate a loyalty clearance agency still does not avoid the dangers to academic freedom inherent in the whole process. Those dangers stem from the initial demand that faculty members accept a loyalty oath or, to keep their jobs, secure Senate clearance.

What this means is that the objector to the oath has to go before the Senate and prove himself innocent of disloyalty. The faculty as a whole is subjected to a blanket suspicion and then each individual must show that the suspicion in his case was unwarranted.

If a faculty member were accused specifically of engaging in subversive activity, or abusing his academic freedom, then a trial before the faculty Senate might very properly render judgment on his fitness to teach. But that is quite a different thing from the California procedure.

President Robert Gordon Sproul would have done the cause of academic freedom a better service if he had fought without compromise for the right of teachers to be judged on their individual merits, and to be considered loyal until proved otherwise.

This, Too, Is Aggression

Unhappily, the breeding of totalitarian aggression is not confined these days to the region beyond the Iron Curtain. There is a sore spot on the democratic side of the dividing line, in South Africa, and it is getting worse.

No sooner had the semi-Nazi Malan Government enacted an almost unbelievably sweeping segregation law, than it set itself in defiance of the International Court of Justice. It did so by the unilateral "annexation" of formerly German South-West Africa.

This area of 317,725 square miles had been entrusted to the administration of the Union of South Africa under a League of Nations mandate after World War I. Recently, the 294,000 blacks of the region have been getting even worse treatment from the 38,000 whites than under the German colonial administrators.

As the Rev. Michael Scott demonstrated to the U.N. General Assembly, the native leaders have never ceased to protest against the abridgment of their rights and the expropriation of their lands, rich in diamonds, minerals and agricultural potential. The Malan Government, however, vociferously denounced U.N. "interference" on their behalf. And now that the U.N. has won the natives' case before the International Court, the South African Government proposes to ignore the verdict.

In its way, this is as outrageous as any Red veto in the Security Council. It certainly does not build up faith in the Western democracies among the millions of Africa and Asia. But there is the hope that, since elections still seem to be free—at least for whites—in South Africa, the Malan Government may some day be repudiated, and its wrongs made right.

Caprice and Confusion

The United States Immigration Service is compiling an unenviable record for caprice and confusion. Most recent in a long list of unexplained and apparently inexcusable actions of arbitrary administration is the barring of Viennese Conductor Josef Krips from the United States.

He arrived in this country a week ago, with a visa from State Department officials in Vienna, to fulfill a brief engagement conducting the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at Ravinia Park.

But instead of being permitted to go to Chicago, he was detained at Ellis Island for two days, and then returned to Vienna when Edward J. Shaughnessy, New York district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Mr. Krips would have to stay on Ellis Island indefinitely while a "further study" of his case was made.

Mr. Shaughnessy, the same Mr. Shaughnessy who has refused to make any explanation in the case of Ellen Knauff, refused to say what information he possessed which made Mr. Krips suspect. Apparently, however, it had some connection with the fact that Mr. Krips had conducted a series of concerts in Moscow and Leningrad in 1947. The conductor denied any political interests. "My party is Beethoven and Schubert," he said.

We know nothing at all about the politics or past political record of Mr. Krips. But if there is real reason why he should have been barred from this country, then he should never have been issued a visa in Vienna. It is inexcusable to permit him to go to the expense and trouble of flying to the United States, only to see Ellis Island.

In the absence of any clarification, it is impossible to say whether the Immigration Service or the State Department is at fault. It would seem, however, that the State Department representatives on the scene in Vienna should know more about Mr. Krips than does Mr. Shaughnessy in New York. In any case, this sort of thing should not be permitted to happen again.

Mackenzie King

The death of W. L. Mackenzie King removes from the scene a political leader who had become almost as well known in this country as in Canada.

He was Canada's Prime Minister for 21 and a half years, and thus established a sort of course record for holding high political office. He owed his long tenure to a highly developed talent for compromise and a remarkable ability to detect the shifts of public sentiment on his private political radar.

This meant that Mackenzie King was not often far out in front of public opinion. Yet he was something more than a bandwagon rider. As he showed in developing Canada's war effort in the face of a predominantly isolationist French bloc, he could lead. His achievements may not have been brilliant, but they were solid.

Not a Housing Dispute

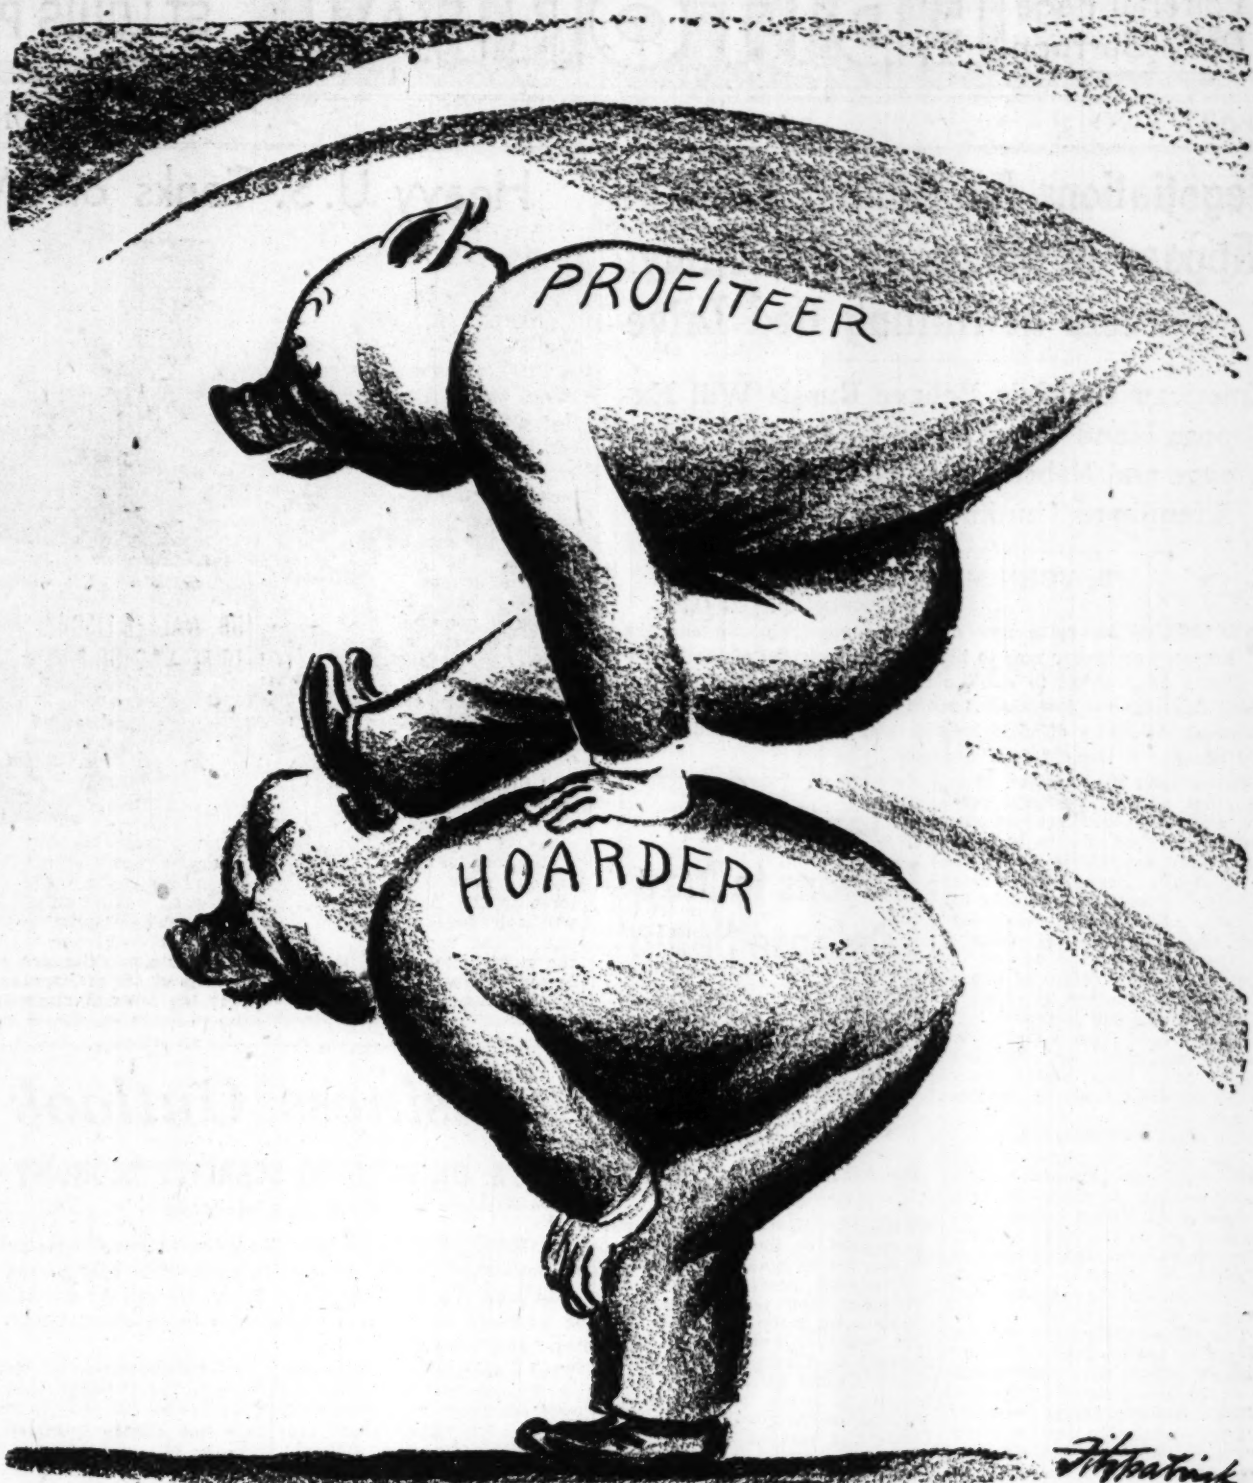

Mayor Darst followed the course dictated by sound city planning when he vetoed bills to declare 100 acres of undeveloped land "blighted" so that promoters of the Westchester Heights housing project could obtain tax exemption.

The Board of Aldermen had done itself no credit by passing these bills.

Only two members of the Democratic majority—William Brady and A. J. Cervantes—withstood the pressure put on by Alderman Alfred I. Harris, whose brother is one of the promoters of the project, and by Committeeman Matt O'Neill of the Twenty-second Ward.

This never was a dispute about housing. The central issue never was whether the promoters of Westchester Heights should build their project. The main question was whether, in building it, they should be granted exemption from taxes which other promoters of similar projects must pay.

Tax exemption can be justified where builders undertake to reconstruct genuinely blighted areas—an enterprise not ordinarily attractive to private capital without special inducements. But to extend this principle to the development of vacant land in outlying sections of the city would make a mockery of the slum clearance program.

Four Charter Rumors Exposed

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Freeholders' chairman denounces misrepresentation of city's proposed basic law; repeats that new charter will not impose new taxes but will in fact increase voters' power to pass on tax measures; says document, seen as whole, promises progress for city.

From an Address by Raymond Tucker, Chairman, Board of Freeholders

There are certain elements in this town who, in order to further their own selfish interests, are going to ignore the charter as a whole. They will endeavor by misrepresentation of fact to convey the impression to the general public that there are hidden in this new charter certain provisions which would react to their disadvantage. This I can assure you is not true.

When drawing up a new charter, one must consider the fact that the new charter when adopted may be in effect for the next 25 or 50 years. During this time, conditions may arise in the community which may make these grants of powers essential to its welfare. Consequently, it behooves those who are drawing up the charter to claim as many powers as possible under the State Constitution and the State statutes. These powers are only to be used when and if needed.

It is against these powers in the charter that some of the most malicious rumors have been circulated. Now let us examine these rumors and see how much truth is contained in them.

Rumor No. 1

A statement is being made that the passage of the new charter will immediately increase taxes. I challenge the opposition to show one statement in the charter which of itself increases taxes. The charter does not levy taxes, the Board of Aldermen levies taxes. A statement that taxes will be increased by the charter is an intentional misrepresentation of the truth or an indication of woeful ignorance and as such should be ignored.

Rumor No. 2

The rumor has been circulated that the passage of this new charter will immediately result in the creation of a general sales tax. This section in the new charter is Article 1, Section 2, Sub-Section 3. This is the same identical provision that is contained in the old charter in Article XIV, Section 2. So the new charter in this respect gives you nothing in addition to what you already have. Under the old charter, you have a merchants' and manufacturers' tax based upon sales and inventory. Under the new charter, there is authorization for this same type of merchants' and manufacturers' tax.

I again challenge the opposition to show any provision in the new charter which would lead any intelligent human being to the conclusion that there will be a general sales tax upon the adoption of this new charter.

Furthermore, I again challenge the opposition to deny the fact that we are at present prevented from enacting any general sales tax by state law.

Rumor No. 3

The rumor has been circulated that on the passage of this new charter, an earnings tax of 1 per cent will immediately become a reality. May I emphatically repeat here that the charter of itself does not impose any taxes.

It is true that within the powers of the city in the new charter, permission is granted to the Board of Aldermen to re-enact an earnings tax. We have limited their authority to a maximum of 1 per cent. This limitation assures St. Louisans of protection against an abnormally high rate, which protection they do not now enjoy. The State Legislature by an enabling act could make the tax anything they saw fit.

Rumor No. 4

It has been stated publicly by Mr. Howard Stephens that Sub-Section 5 of Section 2 of the powers of the citizens in the new charter "in effect" imposes an income tax upon the citizens of St. Louis. This is not true. The charter states: "to assess and levy and collect by ordinance for general revenue purposes, taxes on incomes from whatever source derived when permitted by law."

That clause "when permitted by law" prevents the city from exercising this right unless a state statute is passed permitting the city to do so. At present there is no such state law. Consequently, this never could become a law in St. Louis until a state law is passed. In fact, the enumeration of this power in the charter in no way enhances or detracts from the city's power to levy an income tax.

Under the old charter, all tax measures were emergency measures, and as such were not subject to referendum. Furthermore, only a simple majority of the members of the board were necessary for the passage of new tax measures. Therefore, under the old charter, the citizens of St. Louis opposing a tax measure never had the right of referendum.

Under the new charter, in order for a tax measure to be an emergency measure, a two-thirds vote by the Board of Aldermen is necessary. If the tax measure is only passed by a simple majority, then this measure is subject to referendum. These provisions of the new charter provide an important protection to any group of citizens of St. Louis who are opposed to tax measures.

This new charter which is presented to you represents the best thinking of outstanding men versed in municipal government. Do not be misled by ill-conceived and ill-considered statements that are made. Look at this charter as a whole and you cannot help but agree that it is a definite and progressive step forward for the City of St. Louis.

Next Summer's Show Season

From the Kansas City Star

The enthusiasm aroused by the Starlight Theater indicates a big season of operetta and musical comedy. With John A. Moore at its head the Starlight Theater Association is off to a fast start. Apparently there will be no difficulty in finding the members and underwriters to support the show season.

The next job is to find a theater manager and production man, the full-time team that will run the show. The association hopes to find a manager who can do for the St. Louis summer theater.

Mr. Beisman started with the St. Louis enterprise when the crowds sat on the grass and the show was produced without a stage. In 31 years the fine St. Louis Theater, seating 12,500 persons, and splendid stage equipment have come entirely from profits.

Kansas City has the benefit of Mr. Beisman's advice based on the St. Louis experience. We will start with an excellent theater for 7600 persons built by bond money and contributions. Next summer's attractions will be changing from week to week and they will be thoroughly professional in character.

Starting from the grassy slopes St. Louis had a widely known attraction in a very few years. Starting with the Starlight Theater Kansas City should be a summer show center next year.

Paper Cut-Outs in Love

THE HILL OF GLASS, by Catharine Whitcomb. (Random House, Inc., 311 pp., $2.75.)

"How," asks Lily, a minor character in "The Hill of Glass," page 183, "could a woman live with a man and not love him? And if she didn't—why didn't she leave him, then? Perhaps, thought Lily, 'this is why I'm not upper class; I don't think straight on things—or maybe I think too straight, in a common sort of way.'"

All the other characters in the book are very upper class people, so they all keep muddling on in loveless marriages or become anonymously alcoholic. Among the principals are: Henry Worthington, who loves Eleanor, a WAC he met overseas, and does not love his wife, Marianna; which is all right, as Marianna really loves Clyde Ford; who, in turn, loves no one and is haunted by the memory that he lived in sin with his foster mother, Clara, the name by which he addresses wife, Laura. This doesn't bother Laura, who doesn't love him anyway and is such a lush that her mother considers it a touching gesture to give her, as a Christmas gift, a paid-up course at a fancy sanitarium.

These paper cut-outs walk through a novel that is less to be criticized for its lack of realistic characters and plot than for its conversation, which is either dull and obscure (Sample: "That, my dear, is compliment of a valuable or unfortunately, has more zealots than students."

It is to be expected that Mr. Crews, who is director of field education for the Consumers Co-operative Association of Kansas City, should note particularly the increasing emphasis on education and public relations, and cite co-op groups, such as those in the Canadian Maritimes and Ohio, as effective schools of democracy. From the grass roots, by discussion groups, radio programs and the particularly effective device of listening groups (several co-ops have their own radio broadcasting outlets) co-operation is spreading in America.

Success has brought considerable opposition to the movement, particularly on the agricultural front but always with a latent fear of the spread of non-profit merchandising in the urban sector of the economy. It is evident, as Mr. Crews remarks, that these attacks, when unfair, have helped unite scattered elements and strengthened the whole co-operative movement.

These thousands of local co-ops, aggregated by geographic and commodity affiliation, form regional or wholesale associations, many of which are pushing into processing and manufacture. The advantage here lies in having a known demand through the neighborhood units. The Yearbook totals the annual co-op business in the United States and Canada at the conservative figure of two billion dollars.

With a figure such as this, it is natural that the erroneous assumption should arise that a co-operative is an acquisitive economic unit, though economists distinguish all these agencies as operating "at cost."

In this view, the fund for patronage dividend purposes is not the profit of the association, or its income either underpaid to the members or (in case of deficits) overpaid to them on their transactions. It is apparent, even in the statistical reaches of the Yearbook, that co-operatives mix old-fashioned American individualism with an altruistic long view to obtain a balance that has increasingly important social significance. PAUL GREER.

The Co-operative Record

THE CO-OPERATIVE LEAGUE YEARBOOK 1950, edited by Cecil R. Crews. (The Co-operative League of the U.S.A., 200 pp., $1.)

Here are the bedrock facts concerning the most difficult and important art of co-operation which, fortunately or unfortunately, has more zealots than students.

It is to be expected that Mr. Crews, who is director of field education for the Consumers Co-operative Association of Kansas City, should note particularly the increasing emphasis on education and public relations, and cite co-op groups, such as those in the Canadian Maritimes and Ohio, as effective schools of democracy. WALTER LIPPMANN

Terms for Peace in Korea

THE part that the United Nations is playing in Korea is not to be measured by the military contribution of the other members. Their continuing political approval of the campaign to halt the invasion and to repulse it is a great moral support: it gives reason and purpose to what would otherwise be a dirty little war.

But that is not all. The task of the U.N. in Korea will not end with the repulse of the invasion and the withdrawal of the North Korean army to the thirty-eighth parallel. In fact that will be only the beginning of the principal work of the U.N. in Korea. For only under the auspices of the U.N. can there be any kind of decent settlement.

It would be an intolerable settlement of course if the North Korean army conquered South Korea. But it will not be a decent settlement if at the end of the Korean fighting the American Army finds itself at the thirty-eighth parallel, and is involved for the indefinite future with the task of defending South Korea, and therefore of occupying it, and of policing it against guerrillas, and in fact providing it with a government.

There is no use pretending that South Korea as we know it can be set up again and maintained as even a quasi-independent state. We, on the other hand, have too many other things to do in the world to wish to govern an Asiatic dependency add to the three or four American divisions.

A United Korea.

The only way out of this dilemma is to rely upon the United Nations to work out an arrangement for selecting or electing an all-Korean government — which would be admitted to the U.N., would accept the obligations of the Charter, and would receive the protection of the Charter.

This in principle is bound to be the political settlement we are fighting for in Korea. Forcing the withdrawal of the North Korean aggressors to the thirty-eighth parallel is not an end in itself. It is the means—morally and politically the necessary means—to what must be the true end for the United Nations and for ourselves. That is to abolish the partition which has ended in war and to achieve a united and independent Korea.

By making it clear to the whole world that our objective in Korea is a United Nations settlement, we shall strengthen and simplify our position. We shall dissociate ourselves from the idea that we are fighting to keep Korea partitioned. The Korean people in the South as well as in the North can never regard partition as anything but an evil.

We shall remove also the sinister accusation that we are fighting to keep the southern half of Korea as an American military base. By committing the settlement of the Korean problem to the U.N. we shall destroy the accusation that the U.N. in the absence of the Soviet Union and of Red China, has been reduced to an instrument of American military policy.

It is difficult to exaggerate the importance of our convincing the uncommitted nations of Asia and the great masses of the people everywhere that MacArthur is in truth fighting under the U.N. flag and not behind it.

Role for Asiatics.

The best way to prove it is to invite the United Nations to go to work on, not only to end the fighting but, an over-all settlement for Korea. This means the creation of a government in an Asiatic country which is just beginning to achieve its independence, and that the statesmen of the independent nations of Asia should take the lead in working out proposals.

We should explain to them that we are prepared to accept as the basis of negotiations any proposals for Korea which are agreed to by the leading independent statesmen of Asia. In fact we should take the position that it is not merely the right of the governments of India and of Pakistan to work out proposals for a settlement. It is their duty to do it.

They are the leading independent powers of Asia, and theirs is the responsibility for discovering the arrangement through the U.N. for the kind of settlement which the peoples of Asia will accept and will come to like. Inside Asia we have no interests that run contrary to ending the Korean war by the fullest independence of the Asian states acting in their foreign affairs within the framework of the United Nations.

It seems to me that a firm and well-developed American commitment to an over-all Korean settlement by the United Nations—not merely to an armistice at the thirty-eighth parallel—would be a sincere and honorable way of giving our intentions. The best reply to the "peace offensives" is to make a contribution to peace.

Chinese Settlement.

So deep a commitment to the U.N. may make it possible for the Security Council to unseat the tangle of Chinese representation. It is true that Red China cannot be seated as a reward, or as the ransom for ending the Korean aggression. The dignity of the U.N. would be gravely injured if that were the outcome. But it is also true that there is a close connection between the Korean problem and the Chinese problem. Mr. Truman recognized that even before Stalin talked about it when he neutralized Formosa as he intervened in Korea.

President Truman's Formosa action does not have the approval of the U.N. It can be justified under the U.N. policy, however, as a necessary means to localize the Korean war. It would follow, therefore, that a Korean settlement by the U.N. would lead to a U.N. intervention in the Formosa question.

MACKENZIE KING'S FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE WEDNESDAY

OTTAWA, July 24 (AP)—The world's great joined Canadians today in paying tribute to former Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King, who died Saturday night of pneumonia.

A state funeral will be held Wednesday. For the 24 hours preceding the body will rest in state in Canada's Parliament.

Funeral services will be in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here. Burial will be in Toronto beside his father, mother and brother. A sister survives. Mr. King was a bachelor.

FUNERAL SERVICES WEDNESDAY FOR JOSEPH C. McLAIN SR.

Funeral services for Joseph C. McLain Sr., president of McLain Bros., Inc., a poultry and egg commission company, will be Wednesday at 9 a.m. at St. Ann's Catholic Church, 7532 Natural Bridge road, Normandy Village, followed by entombment in Calvary Mausoleum.

Mr. McLain, who was 58 years old, died of a heart ailment Saturday night at his home, 7226 St. Andrews road, Glen Echo Park. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Giffin McLain; a daughter, Mrs. John R. Johnson, and a son, Joseph C. McLain Jr.

MRS. PAUL W. GRAY FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth M. Gray, widow of Paul W. Gray, insurance executive, will be tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. at the Alexander & Sons undertaking establishment, with burial in Valhalla Cemetery.

Mrs. Gray, who was 82 years old, died Friday of infirmities at the Bernard Nursing Home, 4385 Maryland avenue. She was a graduate of Monticello College, Godfrey, Ill., and had been active in child welfare work. Surviving are a son, Charles M. Gray, and two granddaughters, all of 721 Radcliffe avenue, University City.

BELGIAN NEWSPAPER EDITOR IN ST. LOUIS TO STUDY CITY

Dr. Louis Meerts, a Belgian newspaper editor, was in St. Louis today for a glimpse of the city, its newspapers and the social status of its inhabitants, as part of a tour of this country on a State Department grant-in-aid.

Dr. Meerts, editor of the Gazet Van Antwerpen, also is interested in observing operations of American mass production industry, agricultural enterprises, coal mines and steel mills, for purposes of comparing them with those of Europe.

BAPTIST UNITY URGED BY THE REV. DR. JOHNSON

World Alliance Head Cites Affiliations With 'Other Groups of Christians.'

CLEVELAND, July 24 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson of St. Louis, Baptist World Alliance president, said yesterday that differences among constituent bodies must not "mar" the unity of the Baptist world movement. He spoke at the eighth world congress convened by the alliance. Some 20,000 are attending. The alliance is made up of more than 100 autonomous bodies.

"Some bodies in our fellowship," he said, "have established connections with other groups of Christians not of our Baptist family. These efforts at inter-cooperation have in some instances and conventions been desirable for common interests and ends."

"Others in our family have not so united for good and sufficient reasons to them," he added, noting that:

"So long as we hold together on our great doctrines as set forth in the New Testament we will hold together at the center and at the same time recognize the rights of some to follow the leading of the spirit in their particular union or convention."

"Notes Cloud of Conspiracy," The Rev. Dr. Johnson, pastor of Third Baptist Church of St. Louis, spoke of a "cloud of Communist conspiracy" and said its "blackness makes our lights brighter." He also urged the congress not to forget "the darkness is not all confined to Communist dominated countries."

"There are sadly neglected areas in all our lands which present a dark picture needing light," he said. "We are again hang over the world with forbidding awe," the Rev. Dr. Johnson said that back of the Baptist Christian fellowship stands our belief in a God, a God of power and justice and righteousness to be sure, but also a God of love, mercy, peace and good will."

R. FAIRFAX FUNSTEN DIES, RETIRED NUT FIRM OFFICER

R. Fairfax Funsten, retired vice president of the R. E. Funsten Co., nut processors, died yesterday at his summer residence at Northport, Mich., after a stroke. He was 54 years old and lived at 19 Wydown terrace, Clayton.

A native of St. Louis, Mr. Funsten attended Washington University and was graduated from Princeton University in 1917. In World War I, he served as a lieutenant in the Army. He was active in the St. Louis Audubon Society, was a former president of the board of the Neighborhood Association and was a member of the Missouri Athletic Club.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Gladys Beamish Funsten; a daughter, Mrs. F. J. Pollnow Jr.; a son, Randolph F. Funsten Jr.; a sister, Mrs. Herbert Durand, and three brothers, Eugene, Edward and Fitzhugh Funsten.

A memorial service will be held tomorrow at Northport Point and funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

HENRY SHAW Praised AT GARDEN CEREMONY

1400 Attend Service Marking 150th Anniversary of His Birth.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Tributes to Henry Shaw, founder and donor of Missouri Botanical Garden, were made yesterday in the Italian garden of the park at 2345 Tower Grove avenue before 1400 persons assembled to do honor to the noted public benefactor of the 150th anniversary of his birth. He was described as a man of broad interests, wisdom, religion and humility.

With botany as his major enthusiasm, he enriched his life with sculpture, paintings and a large library, it was pointed out by James M. Douglas, former judge of the Missouri Supreme Court and a past president of the Missouri Historical Society, and by United States District Judge George H. Moore, president of the society.

Douglas discussed Shaw's will as a reflection of the donor's character. Judge Moore told the story of Shaw's life, noting that his gift of the garden to the public was made while he was still alive and that he—unlike most other philanthropists—stipulated it was not to bear his own name.

Quoting from Andrew Carnegie, Judge Moore said it was Shaw's view that "rich men hold their wealth in trust for the good of the public." He observed that the garden was given to the public, rather than to the city, and accordingly the estate had paid more than $2,000,000 in taxes since Shaw's death. It is run by a self-perpetuating board of trustees.

Judge Moore cited the careers of other public benefactors, naming Rockefeller, Stephen Girard, Busch and Klotz. Shaw was unusual, Moore said, in making his gift while living and then contributing his own services during the latter part of his life.

Shaw, having earned $250,000 by the time he was 39 years old, retired from business and enlisted the aid of the leading botanical authorities in the world to build up his plant collection, drawing men from famous gardens in London and Berlin, Judge Moore related.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Harold E. Camp, pastor of Shaw Avenue Methodist Church, and the benediction by the Rev. Cornelius A. Moynihan, pastor of St. Margaret's Catholic Church.

With 40 Boy Scouts as guides, visitors were admitted yesterday, for the first time since World War I, to three rooms of Tower Grove, the old Shaw residence, and viewed several oil portraits of Shaw, part of his library, his manuscripts and charts of the garden.

'DESERT SONG' TO OPEN WEEK'S RUN TONIGHT

Victoria Sherry and David Atkinson Have Leading Roles at Park.

"The Desert Song," by Sigmund Romberg, will open tonight for a one-week run at Municipal Opera in Forest Park. All performances will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

The cast includes Victoria Sherry and David Atkinson, who are making their first appearances in the leading roles. Others in the play are Lynn Joelson, Lidija Franklin, Penny Bancroft and Mandy Kay, who also are making their debuts on the Forest Park stage, and Joey Faye, Lloyd Thomas Leech, Edwin Steffe, Evans Thornton, William Mende and Robert Dale Martin.

Some of the best known songs from the production are "One Alone," "Song of the Riffs," "Then You Will Know," "I Want a Kiss," "Romance," "Margot" and "The Sabre Song." The libretto is by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein II and Frank Mandel.

The story deals with the adventures of Pierre Birabeau, who is forced to leave the French Army of Occupation because of his disapproval of the treatment of the North African governor. Disguised as the Red Shadow, Pierre joins the Riffs as their captain and makes love to his sweetheart, Pierre, branded a coward, is reconciled with his family and finances in the end.

Eighty-two groups of civic, religious and agricultural organizations from St. Louis and nearby communities in Missouri and Eastern Illinois have made reservations for "The Desert Song," it was announced.

MUNICIPAL OPERA TO GET ADVERTISING CLUB AWARD

An award honoring the Municipal Opera for "advertising St. Louis" will be given by the Advertising Club at its luncheon tomorrow at Hotel Statler.

Jacob M. Lashly, president of the Municipal Theater Association, will receive a bronze plaque in behalf of the organization. Similar awards have been given to the city's leading brewers and baseball representatives.

Speakers at Tuesday's luncheon will include John Kennedy, Opera productions manager; Paul Beismann, manager; Watson Barratt, art director; and Edwin McArthur, musical director.

MRS. HULDA MARKMAN FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mrs. Hulda Markman, widow of the Rev. O. L. Markman, who was pastor of First Methodist Church, East St. Louis, from 1926 to 1931, were held today at First Methodist Church in Benton, Ill., with burial at Benton. Mrs. Markman, 75 years old, died Saturday at her home in Benton. Surviving are a son and daughter.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Money for More Than Korea

WITH ten billion dollars added to military spending for the fiscal year of 1951, which began on July 1, Pentagon planners believe they will accomplish two things: (1) they will be able to end the war in Korea successfully, and (2) they will make a satisfactory start toward rebuilding America's strength in being, at home and abroad, quite apart from the Korean conflict.

Roughly, one-half of the 10 billions is to go for Korea and the other half for building up the three services from the low point of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson's economy drive. Not all of the five billions for Korea will be shot up since at least a part of it will contribute to the long term build-up of American strength.

It is easy to exaggerate the argument that went on in the White House over the total amount to be recommended in the President's message. But, if the figure had been six billions instead of 10, then the margin for building up the services would have been slim indeed.

When you add the 10 billions to the 1951 defense figure of $14,500,000,000 and then put on top of that the figure for Marshall Plan aid and military defense for the North Atlantic treaty power, you come out with about $30,000,000,000. Assuming no more Koreans, the civilian planners in the Pentagon believe that a figure, approximately 25 billion a year, will be essential for an indefinite number of years to the security of this nation.

The fear of Air Force officials is that Congress will enforce in appropriation measures, or in some other fashion, an undue emphasis on the tactical. This will then be at the cost of trying to build up branches where deficiencies do cause great anxiety. The conviction still holds that the principal—the pessimistic would say the only—shield against wholesale Communist aggression is the strategic Air Force now in being. This force has the power to carry atomic bombs to the enemy. To fail to build it up would be to permit that shield to decline in effectiveness.

Air War Runs High.

The plea for the 10 billion figure was particularly urgent from the Air Force. With the share allocated to the air arm, it will be possible to add 10 new groups within a period of 15 to 18 months. This will be in addition to the rather shaky 48 groups in being at the present time.

Some idea of the cost of modern war can be gauged by the fact that the B-36s for one strategic bombing group cost about $100,000,000. This does not, of course, include all the extras and the intensive training of the crews.

Deep concern to top Air Force officials is the increasing emphasis in public opinion on the tactical air arm. This has been whipped up by early reports from the Korean war to the effect that Air Force planes were not geared to that kind of operation. From this, the conclusion has been drawn by some that the tactical branch was seriously deficient.

Part of the added money for the Air Force will go to speed up research and development. There has been a serious lag here. And with this realization is the growing awareness that in all probability the Russian capacity in this direction has been greatly underestimated. That has been an American trait—to overestimate our own powers and to underestimate a potential enemy. Finally, the continental air defense of the United States is to be strengthened with part of the allocation to the Air Force. These are all steps of the first importance to the safety of every American citizen.

That is a fact which Congress can take in. The prayerful hope of those who are planning these steps toward greater security is that there will be time in which to take them.

30 PCT. JOBLESS PAY AVERAGE RAIL PRICE IS DROP IN LAST 6 MONTHS

Number of Persons Drawing Benefits Declines Between January and June.

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—
Nearly everything is going up these days but here is something that is going down: The number of payments to the unemployed.

The Bureau of Employment Security at the Labor Department announced yesterday that between January and June there was a 30 per cent drop in the number of persons drawing unemployment insurance benefits under state laws. The statement did not estimate the number who had exhausted the amounts they could draw.

The average number of persons:
In January, 2,077,568; in June,
1,388,000.
The total amount paid out:
In January, $186,383,000; in June, $119,430,000.

The Census Bureau has announced that the total United States unemployment was:
In January, 4,480,000; in June,
3,384,000.

NATIONAL OUTPUT IN 1949 PLACED AT $255,500,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—
The national output in 1949 was put by the Commerce Department today at $255,500,000,000—far below the current rate, which President Truman last week estimated at "nearly" two hundred and seventy billion dollars a year.

This production of goods and services last year, however, was only $3,500,000,000 below the 1948 high mark for a full year.
Department estimates show a $263,900,000,000 rate was attained in the first quarter of 1950, and Truman's report indicated a second quarter rise.

The department said the national income—"the sum of incomes accruing in production"—was two hundred seventeen billion dollars in 1949 against $223-500,000,000 in 1948, the record full year to date.

STEEL CAPACITY 10 MILLION TONS ABOVE YEAR TOP NEEDS

CLEVELAND, July 24 (AP)—
Some form of Government distribution controls for the steel industry due to an anticipated surge in military orders was predicted today by "Steel" magazine.

"Present voluntary allocations will give way to a system patterned after the one prevailing immediately after World War II,"
"Steel" said. "An agency likely will be set up in the Department of Commerce, with distribution experts from the steel industry serving as advisers."

The steel industry is in excellent condition to handle whatever burdens may be imposed by the defense effort, "Steel" said.
Ingot capacity now ranges from 100,000 tons annually.
This is about 11,000,000 tons more than was required in 1944, the industry's biggest year in the last war.

LUCIEN C. WHEELER DIES; EX-SECRET SERVICE CHIEF

LOS ANGELES, July 24 (AP)— Lucien C. Wheeler, who headed the White House Secret Service staff during the tenure of four Presidents died yesterday. He was 73 years old.

Wheeler was born in Mechanicsville, Ia., and was an outstanding athlete at the University of Notre Dame, where he received a law degree. He entered the Secret Service in 1907 and was in charge of the White House security detail during the terms of Presidents Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and Harding.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul helped 1199 families at a cost of $47,639 during the quarter ending last June 30, Msgr. John J. Butler, executive secretary of the organization, reported yesterday.

Msgr. Butler said the aid was expended through the central offices of the society and the 82 parish conferences in St. Louis and St. Louis county. More than 600 persons attended the meeting at St. Anthony's parish, Meramec

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET '50 TOP IN LOWER LIST

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)— Railroad and aircraft stocks took the play in today's market.
Ralls were up most of the day while aircraft made a last-minute start. Gains in the two groups ranged to an extreme of about $3 a share, although most were about $1 a share or less.

The market generally closed
under the best prices for the day.
For a while it seemed likely that the rail group might power a broad rise. Too many issues sold at lower prices, however, to indicate a clear-cut upward trend.

Lower most of the time were motor, radio-television, copper, oil and building material shares. Losses were limited mostly to $1 a share or less.

Trading hit a good clip.
Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed down .1 of a point at 74.7. The rail index, however, made a new 1950 high on .6
of a point rise to 46.6.

closed off, 416 up, 214 unchanged.

Sales of 2,300,000 shares comprised with 2,810,000 last Friday.
Ralls supplied the energy for a sharp and broad rise in last week's market, the largest overall advance in more than 10 years.

Among the rails Santa Fe was about the only one to stay consistently lower. Higher prices were paid for Atlantic Coast Line, Nickel Plate, Southern Railway,
Union Pacific, Chesapeake &
Ohio, Southern Railway, and N.Y.
Central.

Also up were Goodrich, Boeing, United Aircraft, Lockheed, Internat. American Woolen, American Locomotive and Baldwin Locomotive.

Holding back were General Motors, Chrysler, Studebaker, Admiral, Emerson, Phillips, Radio
Corp., American Telephone, Dow
Chemical and Standard Oil (N.J.).

PRINT CLOTHS, BROADCLOTHS DEMAND HEAVY

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)—In the textile market today, demand for print cloths and broadcloths was heavy. Demand for broadcloths was heavy in the morning, but faded in the afternoon. Demand for print cloths was steady throughout the day.

The wool goods market indicated heavy buying for women's wear industries. Demand was taken place prior to higher price schedules which will take effect in the near future.
Indications were that some of the finest quality of woolen goods were being sold.

EXPANSION IN HEDGES TURNS WHEAT LOWER

CHICAGO, July 24 (AP)—Wheat fell today after showing signs of abatement from the start.

There wasn't much pressure on the bread cereal until late in the session.
When an expansion in hedging took its toll on price values. Some of the late selling may also have come from day traders who bought in the morning.

Weakness in the bread cereal spread to corn and oats, and it also helped to drop gains in soybeans and lard.
The latter two, lard going to new yearly highs, line with general falls and oil strength.

Culture Pops Up in Washington Society

By Elise Morrow

WASHINGTON, July 24. CULTURE has never been one of the sights of Washington—to put it mildly—but now that the weather is too hot for an all-out social schedule, the arts are slipping in the backdoor, by way of embassy receptions.

Music appeared to be the diversion of the week, with no less than four receptions in honor of musicians instead of diplomats and departing or arriving Mohammedans. Culture in the capital, like everything else here, is inevitably tied up with the frenetic social life, and it always helps out the enterprises commercially to have the snob appeal of an embassy reception after the concert, ballet, exhibition, drama, or what have you.

Last night, the scholarly Italian Ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani, and Signora Tarchiani entertained informally at their embassy after a National Symphony Orchestra concert. Their guests of honor were the soloists of the evening, and the conductor, all of whom are Italian. As always, the Tarchianis deserve some sort of decoration for their restraint in entertaining. They are hospitable, but never extravagant; they behave as though they are living in the world, and not in the rather isolated lavish never-never land which so many less sensitive diplomats inhabit.

SEVERAL DAYS EARLIER, the British Ambassador, scholarly (we seem to be in a rut here) Sir Oliver Franks, had a stag luncheon for Leon Goossens, the oboist, who played with the National Symphony. The Dutch counselor, Dr. N. A. C. Sijtemaker de Bruino, entertained at a buffet supper for Fania Chaplin, soprano, and Jurilian Andriessen, conductor, both of The Netherlands, who were guest artists at one of the concerts. And the Belgian Ambassador, chic and impeccable Baron Robert Silvercrus, had a buffet dinner for the Belgian conductor, Fernand Quinot. Having got all of this culture out of its system, Washington will now doubtless slip back into its less high-minded routine.

The scholarly British and Italian ambassadors, the chic, impeccable Belgian envoy, etc., reminds me that someone should compile a glossary of diplomatic descriptions. When an ambassador is unostentatious, shy and obviously got through third grade, he is called scholarly—which is not to deprecate either Tarchiani or Franks, both of whom are genuine scholars. When an envoy is unmarried, he is dashing. It doesn't matter whether he has thin hair, no shoulders or a paunch, he is a bachelor, and a bachelor in Washington is dashing.

BARON SILVERCRUS is clearly well-born, in the most snobbish sense, and has exquisite taste in food, interior decoration and the finer things of life. He is handsome, and also a bachelor, so he is not only dashing but chic and elegant as well. If a diplomat knows the difference between sauterne and ginger ale with aspirin in it, he is either sophisticated or a well known connoisseur. If he is Latin-American, he is always delightful and gay, no matter how negative his personality or how unnering his rumba; a British diplomat is invariably distinguished, since that pretentious adjective covers a multitude of pretensions, and if a man's skin is slightly tanned, or he departs in any detail from western dress, he is exotic.

If our diplomat knows when to laugh at the dull stories inflicted on him by Congressmen and dowagers at parties, he is known to have what is called a fabulous sense of humor. If he retains his European manners and kisses ladies' hands, he is known interchangeably as gallant, courtly, or continental. If he has talent for sinister intrigue unexcelled since Michiavelli, he is described as "astute." End of glossary.

GEN. AND MRS. GEORGE C. MARSHALL came up to Washington the other day from their home in Leesburg, Va. The general, who is now head of the American Red Cross, had a business lunch, and Mrs. Marshall lunched alone at the Sulgrave Club before her own Red Cross meeting. The Sulgrave is always full of busy dowagers, and one of them bustled over to Mrs. Marshall. This nameless one was full of glad cries of vague recognition, and she busied herself trying to place Mrs. Marshall. "How lovely to see you," she said. "What are you doing here today?" Mrs. Marshall answered that she worked for the Red Cross and that she was lunching before a Red Cross meeting. The dowager gasped at this straw. "Oh," she cried, "you work for the Red Cross—how do you like your new boss?" "He's not my new boss," Mrs. Marshall replied coolly. "He's been by boss for 20 years."

Midsummer madness meantime proceeds. Royalty may be extinct everywhere else, but Washington is continually running the gamut from Iranian princes to cherry, cotton, tobacco, etc., queens. The current Michigan cherry queen, Joyce English of Cadillac, Mich., was in town this week, accompanied by nine frozen cherry pies, one of which she presented to Senator Homer Ferguson, the Michigan Senator.

THE CEREMONY MOVED Senator Ferguson to reminiscence. He recalled with statesmanlike grasp the first pie of his life. It was the first pie he ever had, he said. He worked very hard on a farm in Pennsylvania. Senator Ferguson was born in Pennsylvania, not Michigan for a few hours when he was a boy, and the farmer's wife was broke and couldn't pay him in money, so she gave him a large piece of custard pie. It wasn't a whole custard pie, Senator Ferguson said, but it was the biggest piece of pie he had ever seen, and nothing, he says, has ever tasted so good since. The Senator was quite carried away, but the cherry queen stood her ground. "Senator," she inquired, "for Michigan, couldn't you change that to a cherry pie?"

G.I.s IN TAEJON BATTLE

A dead Korean in civilian clothes lies sprawled between two American G.I.s during house-to-house fighting in Taejon, which the Yanks yielded to the Reds only after a bitter struggle. Max Desfor, Associated Press photographer who took this picture, said soldier in shadow, near doorway, (left rear), killed the Korean just a few minutes before. North Korean Communists in civilian clothes continue to infiltrate Allied lines on espionage and sabotage missions.

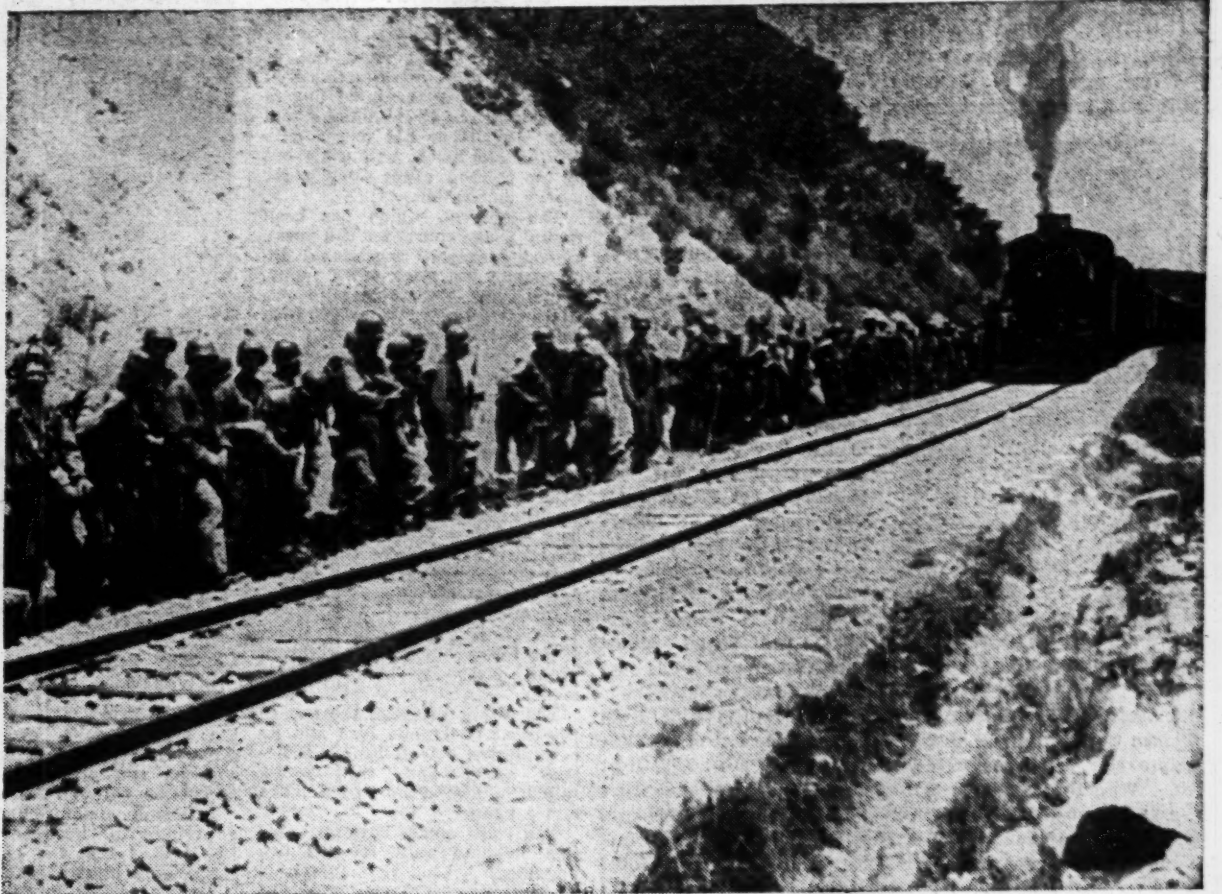

These Yanks take no chances on encountering an evacuee, one of the thousands who streamed from Taejon as the Americans pulled out. Sgt. Willis Millican, Brownwood, Tex., covers the Korean as Cpl. Alvis B. Laeson, Pineville, Ky., examines papers taken from him.

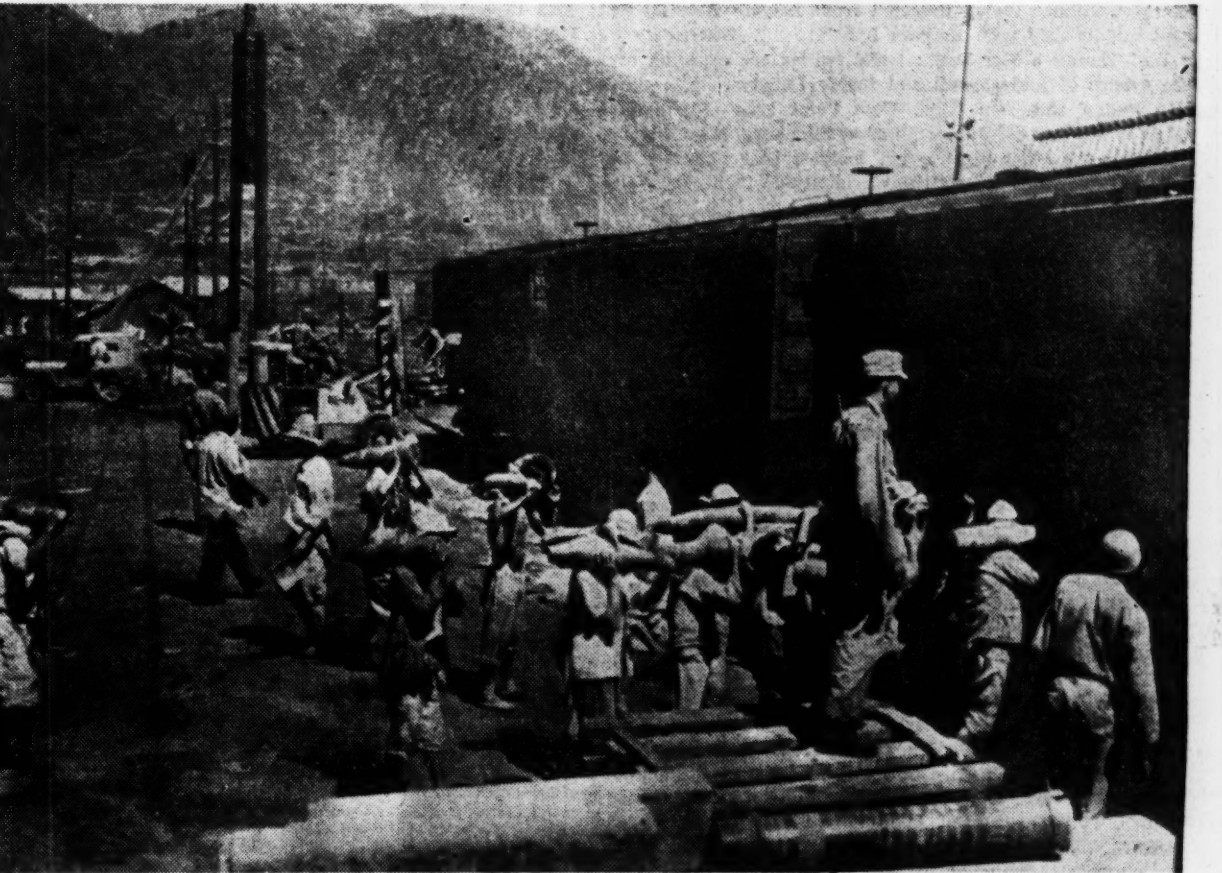

MARKING SHAW ANNIVERSARY

Scene at Shaw's Garden, 2315 Tower Grove avenue, yesterday during ceremonies commemorating the 150th anniversary of the birth of the philanthropist who gave the Missouri Botanical Garden to the city. William E. Bader, master of ceremonies, is at microphone and in front of speakers stand members of the St. Louis Post Office Junior Drum and Bugle Corps. Visitors toured the garden and inspected the old Shaw residence after the formal program, which was sponsored by the Thirty-Ninth Street Business Association.

After marching to a railroad, G.I.s of the First Cavalry Division line up along the right of way to board a train for the fighting front south of Taejon. The fresh troops, which landed last week to relieve weary veterans who bore the brunt of the initial Red assaults, were engaged in heavy fighting today.

South Korean dock workers loading 105 mm. and 155 mm. artillery shells aboard boxcars at Pusan, major Allied supply port in the southeast. Increased supplies of armor, artillery and munitions are moving to the front and the Far East Air Force has shifted its advanced base to Korea from southern Japan.

Evidence of the fierce struggle for Taejon is this view of an unidentified sector of the city, taken July 20 before the American withdrawal. Wisps of smoke rise from wreckage in background and only brick walls remain of the large structure at left.

ST. LOUIS-BOUND TRAIN IN FATAL WRECK

Overturned locomotive and derailed cars of the Memphis, St. Louis-bound Frisco passenger train, which was wrecked near Holland, Mo., yesterday. The engineer was killed and 13 passengers and crew members were injured. An investigation is under way to determine who opened a switch on the main line that sent the six-car train speeding into a freight siding without warning. Officials said a red signal light had been broken. Holland is 228 miles south of St. Louis.

BROADWAY

By WALTER WINCHELL

ANTHONY EDEN and Merle Oberon, who deleted their dates (when the press recorded their mutual adoration), have resumed. . . . Louise Van Allen (of the Soc. Reg.) is keeping her big gem burglary a secret. . . . Irene Castle's son, Wm. McLaughlin, weds Deloras Fellu in France on the 29th. . . . Arline Judge's No. 7 may be her rich dentist (Dr. Ackerman), helping her get unmarried in the Virgin Isles. . . . Eddie Arcaro, the star jockey, flattened a Long Island dealer who tried selling him a new Caddy via under-the-table-racket. . . . Auto dealers here (new to the biz in the last 5 years) have been warned their car quota will be cut 17 per cent. Begins now. . . . Robert Q. Lewis is Valerie Wallace's stage-door Johnny at "Peep Show." . . . Ramon Blackburn is Wendy Bartlett's, and Virgil Moore wings up from Florida just to wait for Jean Tyler.

ARLINE JUDGE

Liz Scott will be pained to learn that Mort Hall is fickle. Ruth Roman (featured in the new Look) consumed most of his time this week. . . . The recently wed Ty Cobbs are acting zilly. . . . Wasn't a CIA agent murdered on Madison Avenue (New York) in broad daylight over 2 wks. ago? Motive: Espionage. . . . Lois Andrews, weary of Hollywood husbands, may link with Memphis mint Fred Goldsmith. . . . Mrs. Cully Richards no longer considers her comedian comical. She's melting in Las Vegas. . . . Yvonne Adair of "Gents Prefer Blondes" (wed only 2 months to orchid millionaire Harold A. Patterson) is a grandma, already! . . . Showgirl Pat Clark and Don Luis Dominguez are a Madrid heatwave. . . . They say Wm. Hiltner (being unsealed from Babette Holmes) will next middle-aisle with Barbara Lynch. . . . Where There's a Will There's a War Dept.: Legal battles are expected over the estates of Lady Mendi and Buddy DeSylva. . . . Joyce Van Patten and Tom King, West Point grad (who ignited while in the cast of "Junior Miss" at Fitchburg, Mass.), eloped to Elkton the other night. . . . Insiders hear publisher Roy Howard would rather junk the Worldtellysun than okay Newspaper Guild proposals.

Los Angeles has war hysteria. Travel agents report over 1000 persons daily are deserting to get away from the 12-hour distance from Russia. . . . Marilyn Maxwell reconciled with groom Andy McIntyre after last week's splitup. They were married 7 months ago. . . . When vociferous Yvette Jordan sheds her male intimates suspect she will blend with Giants' pitcher Sheldon Jones. . . . Charles Barnett is back at Bop City with his crew after his sleeping pill accident in H'wood. . . . The ex-Mrs. Earl Thomas (he's the ad biggie) was knocked unconscious and robbed of all her jewelry at her villa near Eden Roc. No insurance—it lapsed after the divorce. . . . Stalin's current Time cover is his 8th—matching FDR's record with that mag. . . . Is Fred Clark Benay Venuta's next? . . . The Syndicate held a conclave here this wk.

THE LA-MOTTA-MITRI bout at the Garden was the puniest betting "big-gate" fight in fistfight history. . . . The Sugar Ray Robinson-Charles Fusari event at Roosevelt Stadium (Jersey City), August 9th, will have the most glamorous star-studded ringside of all time. The Runyon Fund gets most of it. . . . What's Fred Allen miffed with Arturo Godfrey about? . . . Boston sleuths claim they know the Brink bandits but no got standup evidence. . . . When Frankie Carle opens at the H'wood Palladium in Sept. he will get 50 per cent of the gate besides $5000 per. . . . See mag publisher Ned Pines's $1000 to the Runyon Fund is in. . . . Thanks also to Quick, People Today and Reader's Digest for their spreads. The latter's is due on the 25th. . . . Edna Wilson, formerly in the "parade ensemble, and her husband have quit after 11 years. . . . The premiere audience at Noel Coward's "Ace of Clubs" applauded throughout and then catcalled, jeered and whistled derisively at the final asbestos.

THE PUBLIC RELATIONS dept. of a Rhode Island fire insurance firm must be a beast. With 180,000 depositors—it failed last week, but a few of our conservative dailies put it on page 17 at the bottom. The others didn't even mention it. . . . Those socialites you may have seen in the Little Club and other spots wearing new plaid jackets are on the payroll of their mfr. . . . The beauty industry reports 40 per cent of the girls now tint or touch up their hair. Ten per cent of the men do, too. . . . Add Street Scenes: The truck marked "Business Letter Service" which delivers fish to Toots Shor's. . . . Murray Hamilton of "Mr. Roberts" and Rowena Royal, the Barbizon Cover-Glebe, are uh-huh. . . . Thrush Fran Warren, mended from the illness which cancelled her out of the Riviera, is signed for the Starlight Roof next month. The Met's new top mezzo will be Italy's Senora Barbieri.

Oilmen say no matter how bad the war gets they do not expect gas rationing for a year, at least. Because of the big surplus. . . . Gertrude Nielsen stars in "Gents Prefer Blondes" in L.A. Aug. 28th. . . . John Davis, the "Lawless" actor, and Beverly Linet of Photoplay are Completely Gone. They met when she interviewed him. . . . Rita Hayworth just sold her last American possession, her 1939 Lincoln. Gil Gay, ass't director at Columbia, bought it. . . . Adam and Eve are getting married! She's Eve Maier and he's Adam Reis, instructors at Arthur Murray's. The Bill Johnsons (he was in London's "Annie Getcha Gun") are unwinding at Las V. . . . Lord Beaverbrook's "Standard" headlined: "Peasants Outclass the Mighty U.S.A." . . . Thanks, pal. How about sending over a few heroes and save your poor old rich Uncle Sam?

GARBO'S FRIEND, DR. GAYLORD HAUSER, is courting Flor Trujillo, dght of the Dominican Republic chief, May merge after her divorce, they say. . . . Humphrey Marshall, the oil man, weds Lynn Starr when his Renotary gives him the nod. . . . Martha Cuneo's miniature poodle wears a diamond and sapphire collar. Show-off! . . . The new Normandie Theater goes into the old Lotus Club edifice on W. 37th. . . . Donald Buka, playing in "Corn Is Green" (at the Woodstock Playhouse), kicked a door so hard he broke his best toe. Which is what comes from overacting. . . . Daily Variety rapped a few color columnists for Judy Garland's defeat.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A YOUNG man has a plan which he explains as follows: "I'd like to break my fiancée of her habit of continual cigarette smoking. When I don't jump up and offer her a light she's upset and says others will think I'm not only inattentive to her, but that my manners are discourteous. Therefore, I was wondering what you would think of my overplaying this laxness and perhaps getting her to cut down her smoking. How bad do you think it would stand me in with other people?" It will "stand you in" extremely well with me for one, and I don't think it will stand you out with anyone except chronic smokers like your fiancée.

The Man Who Spurned $2,000,000

Multi-Millionaire's Son Turns Down Offer to Buy Him Out in Family Row

By Claude F. Sitton

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 24. A FAMILY feud right out of fiction has electrified this steel town. Everyone is waiting to see whether multi-millionaire "old Bob" Ingalls or his son, a chip off the old block, will come out on top in their bitter struggle for money and power.

The quarrel, which has been raging in the courts for two years, exploded another sensational development last week when young, disinherited Robert Ingalls Jr., flatly turned down $2,000,000 cash from his father.

The offer was not a gesture of appeasement, but an attempt by the elder Ingalls, who built a $12,000,000 steel empire, from a small metal shop, to buy the son out. The two broke when young Ingalls divorced his first wife, wealthy Eleanor Flick of Birmingham and New York, and married attractive Jane Sevier Smith, 36-year-old Birmingham war widow and mother of two.

Ingalls Jr. says: "My father, Mr. Ingalls rather, swore that another man's children would never lay hands on his money."

The father removed the son as president of Ingalls Iron and its subsidiaries, cut off his $45,000-a-year salary and, says young Ingalls, declared he would make him a pauper.

The son's stock, however, plus that held in trust for his two daughters by his first marriage, amounts to over three quarters of the company's 15,000 shares.

The elder Ingalls, an iron-fisted gray-haired man of 68, is claiming the right to 4501 shares on the basis of an option signed in 1943 to buy the stock any time young Ingalls should no longer be associated with the company.

But last week, when a 170-pound cart of greenbacks topped with a shining 50-cent piece arrived to make the purchase, young Ingalls gave his father's lawyers a flat "no." The greenbacks—mostly $1000 bills—were trundled back into a Birmingham bank's vault.

James A. Simpson, attorney for the elder Ingalls, charged the son with refusal to recognize the contract and promised to force acceptance through the courts.

Ingalls Jr. counter-charged with a promise to "keep that stock." He insisted that the option was "absolutely invalid" and said: "It was made when I began having trouble with my first wife as a protective measure to prevent her falling heir to it in case of my death."

In New York, where she is now living, the first Mrs. Ingalls Jr. exclaimed: "That is news!"

He said that while she had not "seen eye to eye" with the elder Ingalls, she was "sure he would never have agreed to anything like that." She added: "I don't know what is the most fiery of the two—father or son. But I do know that the father built up that business. It was his."

Ingalls's mother has testified that her son is unable to handle business affairs. But young Ingalls claims that his mother really "is on my side."

The elder Ingalls, whose doggedness and shrewd business sense have enabled him to amass his industrial fortune, claims his son took little interest in what happened to the company when he left him in charge for three months in 1947 while he was recuperating from a heart attack.

His father says he gave his son "everything he has," including a $36,000 mansion in the swank residential section stop Birmingham's Red Mountain. Young Ingalls says he worked up "the hard way" from draftsman to president of the organization.

Their relationship has been in the best tradition of the millionaire father and his poor little rich boy son.

Young Ingalls, who had a tutor during most of his youth, went to Taft Academy in Connecticut at one time. He ran away and was later found in New York. A four-year tour of Europe under a doctor's care followed before he returned to Birmingham.

Birmingham business men describe "Old Bob" Ingalls, who turned the earnings of a small metal shop with ten employees in 1910 into his present fortune, as "a driver, one of the last of the old school."

His holdings include the Ingalls Iron Works of Birmingham and Pittsburgh, Birmingham Tank, Ingalls Shipbuilding, Ingalls Steel Construction, Ingalls Security, Realty and Investment Co.

But if young Ingalls' legal attempts to become trustee of the stocks of his two daughters by his first marriage, Elizabeth, 14, and Barbara, 11, are successful, he will be able to move into the driver's seat.

Be Natural And You Will Be Popular

By Elsie Robinson

THEY had some very rude verses, when I was young, that have stuck to the ribs of my memory when more glittering gems have faded me. This, for example:

Big dogs have big fleas upon their backs to bite 'em; Little dogs have little fleas, and so on ad infinitum.

That sounds like a home run, doesn't it? Every one of us has some sort of personal flea consuming us. Fleas, fleas everywhere, going through life hanging on to someone else.

And the worst fleas are those we manufacture for ourselves. We're afraid to think for ourselves. Afraid to talk and act according to our natural impulses for fear we might lose strength and favor. Living off a stronger man's power and vision.

Fleas—ugh, we are all infested with them.

And it's all so silly and unnecessary. For the secret of real strength and progress is exactly opposite to this blood sucking and cringing. It's just being natural.

Just be natural and you'll attract everyone to you. Not trying to show off, pretending, flattery, blustering or fawning, but just expressing your own unique personality.

Within each one of us is that distinctive personality we were meant to be and can be. We weren't meant to be geniuses or statesmen or diplomats. That's out of the picture. But there's something more wonderful than being a statesman or a genius and that's being a natural man, thinking his own thoughts, acting his own acts, doing the things that come natural to him.

The man who draws his strength from his own life will be, to all who know him, a moving miracle. He will own the world. He will influence every human being that comes near him and the other little men who hang on and draw their ideas and acts from others are just fleas.

Vanilla ice cream, half melted, is delicious served over bowls of blueberries.

No Charm Without Tact

By John Robert Powers

TACT IS WHAT OPENS DOORS TO YOU IN BOTH BUSINESS AND SOCIAL LIFE.

EVERY time you make a new friend, it is said that you increase your personal charm a little bit more.

It's true, because you can't acquire friends without liking people. You can't like people without wanting them to be happy. If you want people to be happy you are sure to use tact. So the more friends you acquire the more tact you must have. And tact is one of the most attractive and important facets of personal charm.

WITH A COMBINATION of ambition and some ability you can accomplish much toward any goal. But if to these attributes you add tact, you will get farther ahead and far faster. Tact opens doors to you in both business and social life. Your tact gains for you a warm welcome wherever you go.

Tact is not a sometime thing which you can store away and bring out to use on special occasions. It is a way of life, a state of mind—not a bag of tricks into which you can dip for help to accomplish some selfish motive.

If you try to use tact in that fashion, it will react against you. It will make people skeptical of your sincerity and integrity.

Any defect in your tact can usually be attributed to a lack of perception. It's correction lies in broadening your sympathetic understanding of the other fellow's point of view. Instead of just saying what you think, think of how what you say will affect those to whom you speak. Before you speak and act, consider the effect of your words and deeds on others' feelings.

NEVER MISTAKE fawning flattery for tact—you can be sure the recipient of such expressions will either immediately or later discover their emptiness, and no approbation or affection will be accorded to their donor.

As Emerson said, "We have a great deal more kindness than is ever spoken."

If you concentrate on tempering everything you say with some of that kindness, you'll never have to worry about your tact. You'll have a plentiful supply of it that will be proved by the number of friends you have!

How It Started

By Jean Newton

The Word "Flirt."

"With many a flirt and flutter."

These are the words of the American poet, Edgar Allan Poe, and they were written in the last century. If such use of the word "flirt" is surprising, this is only because we no longer employ it in the sense of its origin. Flirting in the sense of coquetry, of playing at courtship, the popular extension of its significance, has obscured its earlier usage.

"Flirt" goes back three and a half centuries to denote a jerk or quick motion, as in "flirting a fan." Joseph Addison, writing at the turn of the eighteenth century, neatly illustrated this in his allusion to "several little flirts and vibrations." Addison also wrote as follows: "Several young flirts about town had a design to cast out of the fashionable world." Since this was written when a flirtation still denoted a quick, passing motion, the connection could be drawn with the transitory, the "upstart" nature of the "young flirts about town" to whom the writer referred.

"Flirt" used to be spelled also "flurt." Its derivation is attributed to the Anglo-Saxon "flear-dian," meaning "to trifle." From this, "fleared" denoted a trifle, a bit of folly. And who will say it is not folly to flirt?

Playing Canasta to Win

By Albert H. Morehead

IN order to prevent a mad rush to put red threes down and grab the replacement cards, to avoid the having several players reach for the top card of the stock at the same time, the lawmakers ruled that dealt red threes should be replaced at the beginning of each player's first turn. But that rule, adopted to avoid confusion, has caused some when a player meets the situation illustrated by the following hand:

You need 50. The dealt upcard was a deuce, covered by an ace. It is your play first, but before you make your regular draw you put down your red three and draw the top card of the stock. It turns out to be another red trey. So you face that card, too, and draw another. This time your replacement draw is an ace.

Now you want to make the initial meld for your side by putting down your pair of aces and taking the pack. It contains only two cards, but includes a valuable deuce that you particularly need. But when you go to do this your opponents object. You were entitled to draw a replacement card for the red trey that was dealt to you, they admit. But not for the second red trey that you picked from the stock. That was a draw, they claim, and the laws do not permit you to draw from the stock and then change your mind and take the pack.

But your opponents are wrong. Your second draw wasn't your regular draw. It was to replace a red trey which you had drawn as a replacement. Your draw doesn't begin until you have 11 cards in your hand not including a red trey. It doesn't matter that you didn't draw the ace that gave you the natural pair until you took the replacement card from stock, if you hadn't been dealt a red trey you might have been dealt another ace instead. And, on your first play, you are entitled to 11 cards, without a red trey among them, before your real turn begins.

Question: Player takes the last card from stock and discards a card that does not match our melds. But it does match a pair in my hand. Discard claims I may take the pack only if forced; i.e. if discard matches a previous meld. Otherwise, the deal is over. I claim I may take it with my natural pair. Who is correct?

Answer: You are. The deal is not over until the next player is not compelled to, or if able, does not choose to take the pack. As long as the last discard may legally be taken by the next player, the deal continues.

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

SOME day when I need money badly I'm going to invent a type of paint which removes itself when it has served out its days. But, until that time, you are just going to have to use a few of the old paint removing methods.

A paint film that is cracked like the back of an alligator will respond to a stiff wire brush and sandpaper. When you are finished, the surface will be smooth and ready for more paint even though some of the old paint remains.

Blisters and localized peeling can be fixed up with a good sharp scraper and sandpaper. Have a file handy to keep the blade of the scraper good and sharp. All you have to do here is get rid of the loose paint.

For large outside surfaces, a blow torch with a wide flame is still about the best bet. Hold the torch so that the flame points down and don't allow the hot part of the flame to touch the wood. Keep the flame near enough to make the paint blister. After it has blistered it can be removed with a scraper and finished off with coarse sandpaper.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM 17 and live in a small town. There is hardly any recreation to be had. The closest movie is 15 miles away. There are about 30 kids from 15 to 20 and we all go around together. We have hay rides and picnics, but would like something different to do. We have no suitable place for parties, and there are too many of us to get together in each other's homes very often. We don't all belong to the same church. What can you suggest we do by way of recreation and entertainment?

Even though you do not all belong to the same church I am sure if you would ask one of the pastors in your town, he would turn over space to you in the parish house for your activities, providing he has the space and isn't all booked up. Failing that, try the principal of your school, or some merchant who may have a vacant store he will let you use. Get the help of your parents and with their aid start a teen-town as so many other places have done. You can get furnishings from the homes of many of you, kitchen chairs or bridge sets, a radio and record player, cards for card games, magazines to read, etc. Parents can take turns being hosts and hostesses and helping to keep things supervised and at the same time lively. You can choose officers for your club and let them map out programs, activities, etc. All this is really more of a fall than a summer project but you can begin to lay the groundwork now for your plans, decide on the hours your teen-town will be open, rules for it, etc., and begin to assemble equipment and determine dues. In the interim, you will have to be content with the usual summer sports. Get together for wicker roasts, picnics, record parties, etc. If you would divide your group for some parties, into ages 15-17, and 18-20 there would be less worry because you don't have space to entertain in your homes, as 15 are a lot easier to accommodate than 30. I have party leaflets for many occasions and if you would like to have them I'll be glad to mail some that will interest you if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IN ANSWER TO "Unsigned": It seems to me you already are doing pretty well when it comes to activities of various kinds, and you don't seem to lack for friends. How about the girls and men you knew here in college? Look them up if you have lost track of them, and then you will find out what their interests are and whether they coincide with yours. But after all, one can skate and bowl, play tennis, like to swim, etc., whether or not one is a college person. Have you inquired into the activities for young people in the nearest church of your denomination? Find another music lover to attend the Little Symphony on the Washington University campus with you.

IN ANSWER TO "Unhappy": I feel sure once you get into high school your parents will be more lenient with you, will let you join a congenial teenage crowd of which they approve, and date within the group. In the meanwhile try to be patient, try to show them they can trust you. If they do not do so now, what have you done to cause them to take this attitude? As to sitting with a boy in the movies, there is no particular age to start that, but if your mother doesn't want you to do this, then don't do it until she agrees to it.

Have you a problem? Martha Carr will be glad to help you work it out. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you would like to have a personal reply. Address your letter to Martha Carr, St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It will receive prompt attention.

When 60 Weds 21

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

WHAT do I think of it? Mrs. P. inquires. She read in the newspapers of a man of 60 who has married a girl of 21. "Do you call that a marriage, Dr. Popenoe?" If they had a proper license and satisfied all the other forms of the statutes therein made and provided, we'll have to admit that it is a marriage. What you mean, of course, is whether I consider it a satisfactory marriage, Mrs. P. For that purpose I have provided a rating scale which will enable anyone to measure the success of any marriage. Write me in care of the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and I'll send you a free copy. You can test this marriage you mention—and your own, too, if you like.

IN JUDGING a marriage like this, with wide disparity of ages, I think we should also ask just why two such persons want to marry each other.

A man of 60 might conceivably want children. A wife of 21 could bear them. Unlike women, men do not reach any age at which they regularly lose their fertility. There are well attested records of men well up in their nineties who fathered offspring by young wives. There can hardly be much companionship between equals in such a marriage, however.

A GIRL OF 21, marrying a man of 60, is certainly not getting equality in companionship, either. He will not be interested in the people or the activities that would naturally interest her. She may get a substitute father, if that is what she needs. She may be satisfying a tendency to hero worship. Do you think all those features, put together, are enough to make a good marriage, Mrs. P.?

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

HERE'S that big "going steady" question and a high school boy's opinion on it. It's for you, girls: "My boy friends and I are puzzled about the girls. We would like to take nice girls to a show or dance once in a while, but do not wish to go steady at this stage. We are senior high school boys and find that having a steady girl on our minds interferes with our studies."

"It seems if you do take a girl out a few times, she expects a date every week and should you not date her, then she phones to plan something with you, not always involving money, but keeping you on the string. Girls should wake up to the fact that they would be more popular if they were not so anxious to go steady. There is lots of time ahead for that. What is your opinion?"

Answer: It's strictly up to the boy to be the first to mention "going steady" or to make it obvious that he'd like to. The only way to encourage a boy to go steady, girls, without being obvious about it is to be so much fun when you're together that he'll prefer your company.

"Going steady" is a matter of preference, but it seems common sense that it's best not to go steady until you've dated enough boys or girls to know that you really do have more fun with Jack or Joan and do like him or her best of all.

Going steady just to be sure of a date every Friday night or an invitation to school dances isn't fair to either of you and leads to unhappiness later in life. Why? Because restricting your dates to one girl or boy merely for the sake of steady dates doesn't give you a chance to meet the one you'd really like best.

Sometimes Pays to Be a Rolling Stone

Many People Are Actually Committing Suicide by Sticking to Jobs They Hate

By Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn

Thousands of Americans, says Dr. Steincrohn, are unconsciously killing themselves. This article, the second of a series, describes two of these subtle ways of slow suicide.

There are three classes of men! Those who enjoy their work, those who tolerate it as a means of survival, and those who die every day in the working. Heaven has blessed the first; the devil has cursed the last. As for the middle group, they are the forgotten men.

You either live whole hog or not at all. Probably you have known people who might fit into any one of the three classes. The other day I discharged a 70-year-old man from the hospital. He had had pneumonia. The most difficult part of my job was convincing him to stay in bed for a few days.

He had never been ill before. Bed was anathema. Not so much because he didn't like the hospital itself but because he was restless while away from his work. He is a grocery store keeper. He and his wife have served their neighborhood for thirty-five years. This man fully believes he is fulfilling his destiny in running his little store. All those years he and his wife have worked side by side counting out eggs, passing out bread across the counter, preparing vegetables, and handing over tins of soup and fish. He is at his store at six-thirty in the morning and turns out the lights at ten at night.

"Isn't it tiresome?" his friends ask. "Don't you wish you were doing something more creative or constructive? Don't you long to make enough money to be able to sell the store and take a well-earned rest?"

His answer is "No." As it happens, he has enough money to retire—at least for the few years he and his wife have remaining. No, he won't give it up because it is his life—and his wife's. But his, especially.

He loves people. He wanted to get out of the hospital so that he could be with the people who came in every day. "I like to talk to people and to listen to them," he told me. "I want them to bring me their troubles and problems. Some people have an ear and heart for music. God gave me an ear and heart for people's troubles. And they feel it. That's why they come in to talk to me. They know I'll listen and advise and try to cheer them up."

Usually we see this love of work in those of creative bent: inventors, artists, musicians. They must be torn away from their work to eat, rest and sleep. Yet I have seen the happy workman as plumber, carpenter or gardener. The largest group might be called the neutral workers. They are the massive body of drones who leave their little hives on time every morning and leave their work on time at evening—happy at the conclusion of another workday.

THREE KINDS OF WORKERS
THERE ARE THOSE WHO DIE EVERY DAY IN THE MORNING—
THERE ARE THOSE WHO ENJOY THEIR WORK, AS DOES THE STOREKEEPER WHO LOVES TO TALK TO PEOPLE—AND THOSE WHO ARE HAPPIEST AT THE END OF ANOTHER WORK DAY

How to Eat Your Fill And Still Lose Weight

HERE is a tested diet recommended by Dr. Steincrohn in which you may eat as much as you want of the foods listed. It was prepared by Dr. H. L. Marriott, of Middlesex Hospital in Great Britain, and was written for the British Medical Journal.

Eat and drink as much as you like of: lean meat, poultry, game, rabbit, liver, kidney, heart, sweetbread—cooked in any way without flour, bread crumbs, or thick sauces. Fish (not canned), boiled or steamed only; no thick sauces. Eggs, boiled or poached. Potatoes, boiled, steamed, or baked in skins, but not fried, roasted, sautéed, or French-fried. Other vegetables of all kinds (fresh, canned, or dried) cooked in any way not involving use of fat.

Also permitted: salad and tomatoes without oil or mayonnaise. Beetroot, radishes, water cress and parsley. All fresh fruits, including bananas. No canned or dried fruits such as dates, figs or raisins. Some pickles, but no sweet pickles or chutney. Clear soups. Salt, pepper, mustard, vinegar, and Worcestershire sauce, but no other sauces. Saccharin for sweetening. One half pint of fresh milk a day. Three small pieces of bread each day. Nothing else whatever. No fats, sweets, sausages, cheese, cocktails, beer, cider, wine or spirits. Dr. Marriott's patients who "adhered faithfully" lost 15 to 35 pounds in twelve weeks.

They do not resent the clatter of the alarm in the morning. They do not jump out with alacrity and keen expectation of the day's labor, but neither do they pull the covers over their heads and berate themselves as fools in continuing in their present job.

Work, for them, is but a means to an end; that they may raise a family and enjoy themselves away from work. They are not to be pitied or envied.

We come at last to the group which is perhaps larger than we realize. Unless these persons do something about it, they go about partially killing themselves. Their daily lives have none of the satisfaction that comes from good work; their existences are never seasoned with pleasant should allow no other consideration to undermine his resolve to change. Granted, it is easier to find a square hole for a square peg when one is younger. It is often a nerve-shattering, back-breaking experience for the man in his late fifties or sixties. If you are young, if you dislike your job and feel that you are not getting anywhere, cast off and away to something you may like. Only the rolling stone, provided it does not roll forever, can find a more suitable resting place to conform to its dimensions.

A man unhappy in his job

ANOTHER form of self-destruction is obesity. Obesity is a disease. It is unnatural for the body to have more fat than it requires for its necessary functions. I know of no other ailment that is so lightly considered. Slow suicide by obesity is the commonest form of death. But fortunately, when you are overweight, you can make the diagnosis without the doctor's help.

An examination in a full-length mirror, a close inspection of the notches in your belt, the fit of your clothes, the remarks of your friends—any, or all, of these show you whether or not you are the slim youngster you used to be.

The man or woman who over-eats blames his extra layers of fat to some peculiar, mysterious, disorder of his glandular system. This has long been disproved. When you are overweight, 99 times out of 100 it is due to increased food intake.

Recently we have come to the conclusion that the fat man is not necessarily the happy man. On the contrary, among the common causes of added weight are nervousness and frustration. Patients will say that they began to pick at food, and have an almost insatiable desire to keep eating throughout the day, after they experienced some tragedy.

Divorce, loss of a loved one, emotion, transfer from one job to another less enjoyed, fear of illness—these are a few of the many reasons why people overeat. Obesity must be considered a disease because it is the beginning of many diseases. We know that high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, gall bladder disease, and many forms of arthritis thrive in the fat man or woman.

Every fat person should have a complete physical examination consisting of blood studies, metabolism, and other indicated investigations before he begins his diet. If the doctor has before him on his chart a picture of both the mental and physical background of his patient, he is better able to treat him.

If the patient's food intake is primarily due to carelessness and maladjustment to trying situations, sometimes treatment by a psychiatrist is indicated. I have known a psychiatrist to reduce an obese patient where other physicians have failed.

The treatment of obesity is simple provided we know our patients thoroughly—and provided the patient has the willingness to dissolve his layers of fat. It requires continued co-operation over a period of months and years. Losing weight is not a matter of weeks.

About one out of every four persons in this country is overweight. If weight is more than 10 per cent above normal, life expectancy is reduced about one-fifth. It has been estimated that 10 pounds of extra fat require the development of half a mile of blood vessels. Naturally the heart must work harder.

Remember that exercise will not take off poundsage. According to recent tests at the University of Alabama you would have to walk 66 miles at four miles per hour to take off one pound.

James Rorty, in Harper's Magazine of May, 1949, wrote an excellent article entitled "The Thin Rats Bury the Fat Rats." This could be accurately paraphrased to read "the thin man buries the fat man."

Here is his recommended non-specific diet:

BREAKFAST: Coffee with milk, but no sugar or cream. One egg. Citrus and other fresh fruit in quantity to satisfy hunger. Whole grain muffins or bread. One pat of butter.

LUNCH: A large salad composed of lettuce, celery, cabbage, carrots, peppers, peas, lima beans, etc., with a small amount of soybean oil, lemon juice or vinegar dressing. Fruit. Butter milk.

DINNER: A hearty soup or meat, usually one of the more nutritious organ meats such as pork liver, kidneys, heart. One or two vegetables. For dessert, fresh, dried, or canned fruit without sugar.

Fortunately, no other enemy of modern man can be so easily vanquished as obesity. This is one struggle out of which you can always emerge the victor. The question is: just how anxious are you to win?

However anxious, never take thyroid or benzidine under your doctor's advice.

Tomorrow: Vacations can kill you.

South was extremely ill-advised to bid four hearts over North's three spades—he would have been far wiser to conceal his heart length and merely bid four spades. After all, he didn't have such a big hand that he could hope for a slam—in fact, many fine players would bid only two hearts on the first round on South's holding, feeling that this single raise would be enough. Since South chose the other course—which was perfectly all right—he should not have become so optimistic simply because North gave him a double raise. North took the four-heart bid back to spades because he felt that South might want to go further on his own hook.

If the bidding had not been quite so revealing, West probably would have opened an "off" suit, but as it was he put down the ace and another heart in the very hope that his partner had a singleton. East was ready and very willing to ruff—and then East completed South's route: he under-led his three top diamonds!

It is very obvious indeed that South could have played the diamond jack and taken the rest of the tricks—but how many players would be that thoughtful (or optimistic)? South was discouraged! He just knew that West was going to get back on lead with some diamond honor, and his heart return would give East another ruff to set the hand. So South mournfully tossed on the nearest diamond—and it didn't happen to be the jack!

West was a very surprised defender to find himself back on lead with such a lowly card as the diamond 10, but his surprise didn't keep him from playing another heart!

My Day -O-

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

ONE of the extremely difficult problems that confronts our nation at the present time is to preserve a balance which will give due weight to the importance of strengthening our military position, but which, at the same time, will not cripple our economic position. From the events of the past few weeks, it should seem evident to the world that we have no aggressive intentions, whereas the Soviet Union, in spite of all its words in favor of peace, has proved that it was actually increasing its aggressive military strength.

To a great many people, however, the situation in the world today seems very menacing, particularly if they are small nations. They see two great nations, each capable of great military and economic strength, seemingly traveling the road which will eventually lead to a clash between them; and they realize that that clash will affect not just the two great powers, but may very easily destroy many of the smaller nations.

FOR THIS REASON they are suspicious of both of us. Therefore, if we let down today on the programs which have helped them to build up their standard of living and their own independent strength, they are going to feel that we also are a menace and they will not know where to look for that hope of peace and security which keeps them working and building for the future.

This is the real reason why great wisdom and financial acumen is needed in making the plan for our over-all effort today. To preserve peace in the world, it must be abundantly clear that we can and will develop a mobile striking force that can be used against aggression by the United Nations anywhere in the world until the United Nations has set up its own force, which should be made superior to that of any one nation or combination of nations. At the same time, however, our own economic situation must remain strong, and our aid in the development of other countries must be continued.

The Point Four program is one which will eventually be of economic value to us because, with increased production capacity here, there must be increased buying capacity throughout the world. But this program is mainly important at the moment as a weapon against Communism.

IT HAS BEEN PROVED that poverty and want are what make people Communists. Freedom means nothing to a man with an empty stomach. He will accept a dictator if, with the dictator, comes the promise of food and shelter. We have never been in real danger in this country of having great numbers of our people become Communists except during the depression. Then democracy seemed so helpless to meet the material needs of the people that they were naturally vulnerable to suggestions that something else be tried.

From that point of view the Point Four program, the Marshall Plan and all other specialized agencies of the United Nations, which work to help raise their standard of living and their general health and education, are of vast importance in the spread of democracy throughout the world. None of this can be accomplished if we do not keep our economy in good condition, and we had better search for the wisdom that understands how to keep a wise balance between our various needs at the present time.

It is pretty wonderful that an English actor can play eight entirely different parts in one picture. But what do you do when you look like Gable?

Social Activities St. Louisans Visitors at Grand Haven

By a Special Correspondent.
GRAND HAVEN, Mich., July 24. THIS resort, neither too far north nor too far south, provides not only a delightful mecca for St. Louis vacationers, but also a convenient day-or-two stopping place for those en route to the Little Traverse Bay country in upper Michigan. Lake Michigan, with its broad sand beach, offers swimming and steam travel, while nearby Spring Lake has excellent facilities for water skiing, canoeing and outboard motor trips.

Mrs. Samuel A. Mitchell and her sister, Mrs. William B. Jones, have already enjoyed a month at Fern Hill Farm, the Mitchell summer home overlooking Spring Lake, and plan to stay for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Tobin accompanied by their daughter, Virginia, a debutante of next season, arrived last Wednesday and are well ensconced in their cottage, Songbird, on St. Louis Ridge, where they will be until the end of the season.

MISS VIRGINIA ROBYN was hostess recently at a cocktail party at the cottage she is occupying with her father, Paul Robyn, and her sister, Mrs. Lucille Tobin. Included among her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Tobin, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George L. Heil and Mrs. Heil's mother, Mrs. Hugh Powers, a former St. Louisan now living in Chicago. The Tobins, vacationing at the Highland Park Hotel, arrived there July 2, with their young son, Thomas III, to spend a month. Mr. and Mrs. Heil have rented the Sara, a cottage on Five Mile Hill, high above the lake, and will have their four children with them.

Also at the Highland Park are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Krings and their three children, and there for their first summer, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coghlan and her daughter, Peggy, who drove up July 15.

The Norma cottage on St. Louis Ridge is occupied this summer by the John H. Lashly family. Mr. Lashly drove north with his wife and their three sons, Mark, Jim and Patrick, then returned to St. Louis. He will be back later for another short stay.

SEVERAL ST. LOUISANS were seen dancing one night last week at the Highland Gardens. In the crowd were Elizabeth Murphy, daughter of Judge and Mrs. David Murphy, who was staying with her mother and sister-in-law, Mrs. Dave Murphy Jr., the former Mary Foristell. Elizabeth and her guests, Rosemary Dyer and Patricia Murphy, a daughter of the late Judge and Mrs. William B. Homer, returned to St. Louis July 16 after a few weeks' stay.

Also at the dance were Taylor P. Gamble, Joseph Feldmeier, Marjorie Rosenthal and Susan Barnickie, who drove up from Macatawa Park, where they are spending the summer. Richard Kloecker, Virginia Tobin and Jacqueline Koon completed the St. Louis list.

Mr. and Mrs. Heil and their son and daughter represented St. Louis at a dance the same night at Spring Lake Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis McMahon and their three small children are staying at The Ranch, a cottage they rented for July.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Stewart, 10 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, departed by plane a few days ago for San Francisco where they will visit their daughter, Miss Peggy Stewart, who has been living there for several years. Next week Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will fly to Alaska and plan to return to St. Louis in three weeks.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Wilson, 807 Clara avenue, became the parents recently of their first child, a daughter, whom they have named Mary Christine. Mrs. Wilson was Miss Dorothy Homer, granddaughter of the late Judge and Mrs. William B. Homer.

Lt. Roger C. Loving, U.S.A., and Mrs. Loving are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hughes, 12 Hanley Downs, Richmond Heights. The Lovings, who have been stationed in Tokyo for the last two and a half years, will visit here for several weeks before going to Fort Benning, Ga., to live.

MRS. GERALD T. DUNN ... TO BE BRIDAL ATTENDANT.

Mid-October Wedding For Miss Jane Porter And Charles Klamon

THE marriage of Miss Jane Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Walden Porter, and Charles Klamon will take place Saturday morning, Oct. 14, at St. Roch's Church. The Rev. George Lodes will read the ceremony, and afterward the immediate families and close friends will go to the Porter home, 5834 Waterman avenue, for the wedding breakfast.

Attending Miss Porter will be Mrs. Gerald T. Dunn (Nancy O'Neill), at whose wedding in the spring the bride-elect was bridesmaid, and Mrs. Eugene Wilger (Marion Boyd) of Cincinnati. Miss Porter, Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Wilger were classmates at Maryville College.

Richard Roberts will be best man and G. Walden Porter Jr., groomsmen. The prospective bridegroom, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Klamon, lives at 5215 Vernon avenue. The list of pre-wedding parties and ushers will be announced later.

Miss Darr Honored at Pre-Wedding Parties

MISS DOROTHY DARR, daughter of Mrs. Sturmfels Darr and Mr. Sturmfels Darr, will be married Saturday evening to Robert John McClenahan, will be given a dinner at a spinster dinner tomorrow to be given by Miss Mary Jo Crean, 7552 Wydown boulevard, Clayton. Thursday night Mr. McClenahan's rents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack McClenahan, will give the rehearsal dinner at their home, 7823 Stanford avenue, University City. Miss Darr and her fiancé were honored at a party given Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chester Brooks, 605 Ferguson avenue, Ferguson.

Others who have given parties for the bride-elect are: Mrs. George E. Murray Jr., at the home of her mother, Mrs. John William Cooper, 612 Hawthorne drive, Kirkwood; Mrs. Arthur W. Meyer, Mrs. Charles C. Wassmann Jr., and Miss Virginia Lucille Sparks.

Webster Groves

MISS FAYE KERR and Charles Sumner Ross, both of Kansas City, were married last Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Spillman Jones, 209 South Maple avenue. Mrs. F. E. Bobbit sang before the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. T. Cecil Swankhamer, pastor of Webster Hills Methodist Church.

After spending a few days at the Gatesworth Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Ross will return to Kansas City to live.

MR. AND MRS. John W. Losse Jr. will return today from Macatawa Park, Mich. They spent 10 days at the resort as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard V. Bibber, 8020 Orlando drive, Clayton. The Losses moved here to 55 Joy avenue a few months ago from Chesterfield. They purchased the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Neuhoff Jr., who now live on Magnolia drive in Ladue.

Mrs. Hugo K. Graf, 164 Plant avenue, entertained a few friends at an informal luncheon last week in honor of Miss Leonelle Gamble of Washington, D.C., a former St. Louisan. Miss Gamble is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Perle E. Burton, 204 East Swon avenue.

MISS NANCY GREENBURY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Greenbury, 449 Fairview avenue, has chosen Aug. 12, as the date for her marriage to Sheldon Anderson Nowell of Columbia, Mo. After the ceremony, which is to be performed by the Rev. Wilbur S. Yoder at First Methodist Church, there will be an informal reception in the adjoining parlors.

Miss Elizabeth Bryant of Chicago, who was Miss Nowell's roommate at the University of Missouri, is to be maid of honor. Two other classmates, Miss Mary Prime of Chicago and Miss Janice Haug of Kansas City, will be here for the wedding.

Mr. Nowell, son of the late

Oetting-Prange Wedding Planned For Late August

MISS MARIE DOROTHY PRANGE has chosen Thursday evening, Aug. 24, as the date of her marriage to William J. Oetting. The Rev. Dr. Walter A. Scheer will officiate at the 8:30 o'clock service at the Bethany Evangelical and Reformed Church, after which the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer William Prange, 587 Purdue avenue, University City, will give the wedding reception at Glen Echo Country Club.

Miss Nancy Gruendler will serve as her cousin's maid of honor and Miss Dorothy Hanter, Mrs. Robert Murphy, Miss Shirley Pye, Miss Shirley Oswald, Miss Phyllis Franklin and Mrs. Henry Oetting, sister-in-law of the prospective bridegroom, will be bridesmaids.

HENRY OETTING will be his brother's best man. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Julius H. Oetting, 7270 Winchester drive, Normandy, who will give the rehearsal dinner at the Missouri Athletic Club the evening before the wedding. Among parties also to be given for Miss Prange are two luncheons, Saturday Mrs. Robert J. Gaddy (Martha Jane Dunbar) will be hostess at her apartment, 5660 Kingsbury avenue, and Saturday, Aug. 12, Mrs. John E. Maas (Elizabeth Dangerfield) and her mother, Mrs. Ralph H. Dangerfield, will entertain guests at the Congress Hotel. Miss Gruendler will give the spinster dinner, probably Monday evening, Aug. 21, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Gruendler, 6336 Devonshire avenue, St. Louis Hills.

PARTIES already given for the engaged couple include a buffet supper July 16 which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stahlhut (Eileen Sells) gave at their home, 8736 Marvita drive, St. John's Village; a miscellaneous shower given last Tuesday by Mrs. Richard Rose (Huberta Rame), 2501 Cecilia avenue, Brentwood; and a luncheon and bridge party last Thursday at which Miss Betty Bachle was hostess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Bachle, 539 Sherwood drive, Webster Groves.

The Forum

Readers are invited to send their letters to the Forum. Keep them reasonably brief and we'll try to print a representative selection of them. SIR: I HAVE a problem that may disrupt or end permanently what otherwise was a happily married life. Simply stated the problem is this: "Why do women readers of all ages desecrate, disassemble and disabolically scatter pages and entire sections of the daily and Sunday newspaper to the four winds, six rooms and 24 corners of the entire house, yard, and bedroom when reading for their so-called education and enjoyment?"

On the surface, that does not seem to propose a serious and perplexing problem to the adult male mind who has successfully solved the secrets of atomic energy, the strapless evening gown, etc. However, I ask you to pause momentarily and give careful thought and your valued suggestions after taking into consideration what has been unsuccessfully attempted by this weak-minded and distraught male:

1. Arrived home via the back door, removed shoes, quietly opened door, dashed to bathroom, smuggled complete and untouched product to this sanctuary. Result—Failure; lock on door jammed by number of bent bobby pins and this inviolable place of refuge and protection lost.

2. Purchased a one-man dog, spent months training him to greet me at the end of each tired day; take paper in mouth directly to the Master's Den and to bite anyone en route. (Result—Failure; the beautiful sex, home all day, candied said animal and won him over.)

3. Suggested sitting on one chair, dropping each section in one pile covering a five-foot

Be Smart

You don't have to be rich to be smart. If you are handy with thread and needle, you can look expensive at very little cost. We offer you two suggestions easy to make and flattering to your new summer dinner dresses. A black velvet choker with a few of your favorite flowers tucked on it, and a veil for that sophisticated touch with your black dinner dress. Place several tiny velvet bows in the most flattering places, as we illustrate. And remember, men do notice what you wear.

area. (Result—Failure: Same judgment of distance that is used in parking and denting the car.)

4. Appealed to the sense of values used in the care and protection of favored newspaper by taking frau on an escorted tour of your newspaper plant. (Result—Failure; lost two and a half hours, parking fee, plus the cost of cocktails and dinner.)

5. Purchase of two copies of a single Sunday issue in the hope that Father could hide and read one fresh untouched product. (Result—Failure; article located over right shoulder that was completely missed in the Mrs. disheveled copy.)

6. Discontinued (temporarily) the purchase of said newspaper; visited reading room of public library. (Result—Failure; found favorite newspaper in the hands of more of the so-called orderly sex.)

I could enumerate many other equally unsuccessful undertakings but in desperation I now appeal to you for a possible solution. E.P.M.

Modern Parables Lost the Job but Found God By Fulton Oursler

DEAR FRIENDS AND GENTLE HEARTS: THE head of a great wholesale house in New York had died and the directors were meeting behind closed doors to elect his successor.

At a desk, not far from the board room, sat the executive vice president. His eyes were half-closed in a confident dream. For the last 10 years, he had been an important executive of the business; now he was sure he was being chosen as the new president.

Then the office boy dropped a freshly typed bulletin on his blotter. An outsider had been called in, a man who knew nothing of the firm; an executive from another field was to be the new president.

Deep bitterness filled the heart of the vice-president. He could not understand it. He was icily polite to the newcomer, he scrupulously attended to every detail of his own work—but in every idle moment he brooded. At home, he became grim and silent; his wife could not cajole him out of his gloom, even his dog would not come near him, except at meal-times. Then one day he overheard by accident a discussion by two clerks about the feud between himself and the new president.

Until then, the disappointed man had fancied that he had kept his misery to himself. The thought that his private suffering was an office spectacle, staggered, and even frightened him. He left the office forthwith, wandering through wintry streets. When it got dark and he felt tired, he sat down to rest in a back pew of Fifth Avenue's Marble Collegiate Church. There the Reverend Norman Vincent Peale, not yet the author of the best-selling "Guide to Confident Living" was giving a talk. And he seemed to speak directly to the stranger near the door—

"There is nothing that makes the heart of a man ache that cannot be healed by prayer. Prayer is the way we talk with the Father who made us and loves us all.

Obedient some native and deep-rooted impulse, the disconsolate vice-president went back to walk the streets once more. This time he tried to pray. But in doing so, he felt of two minds, and was more uncomfortable than before. A university man, he felt that prayer was unscientific; he had always opposed faith as superstition.

"Even if I bring myself to the point of believing I could talk to God," he asked himself, "what could I say to Him? Ask Him to get rid of that other fellow and give the job to me? That's really what I want!"

THE THOUGHT WAS degrading. The very contemplation of his littleness forced from the unhappy man a spontaneous cry—"God show me how to change things and make them right."

He shook himself like a swimmer after a plunge. That, he felt, was prayer enough; no need to rehearse the details; the Lord must know. Perhaps the very emotion of his experience was a kind of grievance drainage; anyway, for the first time since the directors' meeting he had a night of solid sleep. But the next morning came the surprise. He entered the office and there, standing by the switchboard, he saw the new president.

"Hello, John!" he chuckled. "Come inside and talk to me, will you? I need your help like all-get-out!"

The vice-president is still vice-president, and outwardly, nothing more. But he is a happy vice-president, and as Rev. Dr. Peale will tell you he is a praying man in all his affairs.

Autumn Clothes
 Many evidences of ingenious designing are shown in the autumn clothes designed by Jane Derby. For example, she shows yokes on coats as well as dresses; a typical bit of handling being the use of soft hand-crocheted yokes on straight little wool jersey dresses. She also shows the cardigan line in many ways such as a coat of chinchilla cloth or a simple velvet dress. She likes the little sweater top worn outside the top of the skirt, preferably in black or dark brown.
 Fur touches also are cleverly applied. There are gray American broadtail suspenders on the skirt of her two-tone gray suit which has a short, moulded jacket. Equally effective is her lining of a pumpkin-and-tan plaid wool coat with natural white baby lamb. Black lapin fur is combined with pink satin in the creation of a striking evening coat.

"Separates"
 In a year when "separates" are the most popular themes in the wardrobe, no scrap of material or part of a dress should be discarded. It may prove exactly what is needed to add an apron, a capelet or a stole on a simple basic frock. These extra parts which transform a costume are varied in fabric and styling. Checked and plaid wool is being used by some designers for triangular aprons which also serve as capes.

the New Shape is the news

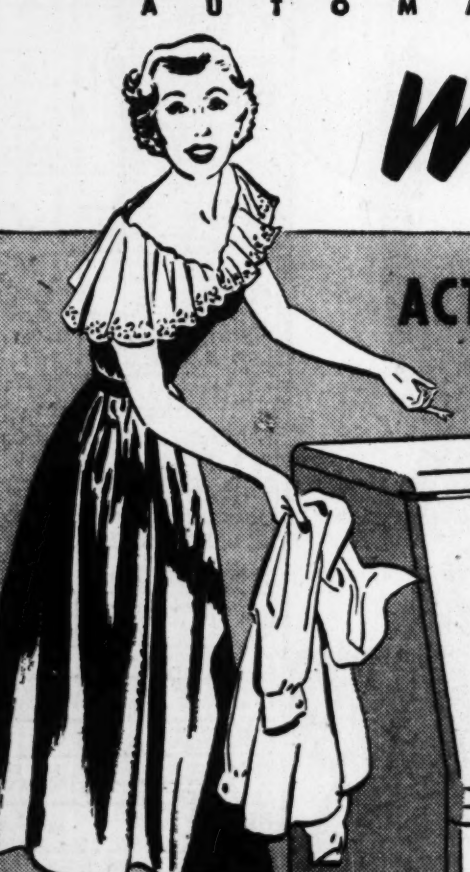

The new-shape sweater-top dress is news because its little knitted top is shaped as dramatically as an evening gown. That's imaginative designing!
 The new-shape Modess box is news because it, too, is a triumph of imaginative designing. It's shaped like so many other kinds of boxes, you'd never guess the wrapped package held Modess. Another tactful feature—boxes are pre-wrapped before they even reach your store.
 Same number of fine napkins. Same price. Regular, Junior, and Super Modess sizes.

AUTOMATIC WASHER

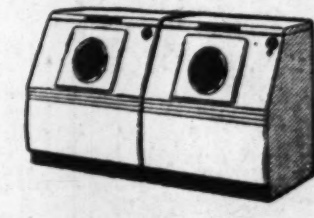

ACTUALLY WEIGHS CLOTHES, ASSURES SOAP AND WATER SAVINGS!

FIRST YOU WEIGH
 No more guessing. Just place clothes on the Weigh-to-Save Door, and you see at a glance the load size on the Weigh-to-Save Indicator.

THEN YOU SAVE
 Set Water Saver to load size shown on the Indicator—"small", "medium", "regular". You are sure of maximum savings of hot water and soap.

WESTINGHOUSE Gives You IDENTICAL "TWINS"
 To take ALL the WORK OUT OF WASHDAY
 Let the Laundromat take over the work of washing, rinsing and damp-drying. Then let the Clothes Dryer dry your clothes; either bone-dry for storage, or just right for ironing. These "twin" electrical servants will add beauty to your home. They will transform the hard work of washing and drying into an odd-moment's task.
